Dear Mrs Roosevelt.

I was so pleased to find your kind letter waiting for me on my arrival in Savannah; & I shall look forward with great pleasure to seeing you when I arrive in New York on my way home to England.

I am motoring across the country with an American friend of mine and having such a lovely time: I have quite fallen in love with your country and all the delightful people I am meeting.

I shall let you know when I return to New York as the date is so sincerely.

I have always had such admiration for your husband and the wonderful way he overcame his disability; and as I have the same complaint I know a little bit of what he had to put up with, and have often tried to be like him.
With many thanks for your letter

Yours Sincerely

Marjorie Beckwith

Dear Phoebe

It is such a far cry from those happy days at Allenswood - that I feel I must introduce myself as "nee Phyllis Lucas"! Although we did meet again for a few hours at the reunion lunch at Claridge's when you came over during the War. A great friend of mine Miss Marjorie Beckwitt is just leaving for a year's visit to the States with an American friend Miss Olmsted. Marjorie has for many years suffered from Infantile Paralysis and her visit to America is partly in

Hilda
I
her

the hopes that she will visit Springs and derive some relief from the treatment there - She is a most gallant person and I think must be gifted with some of the same wonderful spirit and courage that your husband showed to the world - She worked indefatigably for the American Hospital which was located near her home and was loved by both Staff and patients - My object in writing to you is that if by chance she should find herself in your location on her way South - perhaps you would be kind enough to see her and give her some of your valued advice and help

I am giving her this letter to send should the opportunity arise - Do forgive me for adding to your many calls.
I wish I lived nearer Hilda and could see more of her. I did see her in her lovely home some years ago when I was staying in her neighbourhood.
With my very best wishes Very sincerely yrs
