Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt
Hyde Park, New York

Dear Mrs. Roosevelt:

Upon the shoulders of the youth of today, the future citizens of tomorrow, rests the great responsibility of seeing that our world remains a peaceful and happy place in which to live. With this goal in mind, the editors of the Ongiara, the yearbook of La Salle High School in Niagara Falls, New York, have chosen as the theme of this year's publication "The United Nations," our only hope of preventing a chaotic third World War.

We are furthermore dedicating this edition to your late husband, who devoted all his energies to the formation of a strong international organization. Therefore, the Ongiara would greatly appreciate from you, a photograph of President Roosevelt, together with a short letter accepting the dedication and stressing the utmost importance of the UN to American youth.

Respectfully yours,

THE ONGIARA

I am very appreciative of your tribute to my husband's memory in dedicating your Year Book to my husband's memory.

My husband believed firmly in a limited nations organization as a means of keeping the peace of the world. All young people should keep themselves informed of the progress made, the subjects under discussion & debate & try to know the conditions under which people live in the world in order to understand why they say & do certain things.

My best wishes to all of you

My dear Mrs. Roosevelt,

My daily paper is the Sun-Times and I always read your articles with interest. Why do the swearing gentlemen (if they call themselves gentlemen) never recall a single good deed - I like to remember the "Fireside Chats".

and the "Good Neighbor Policy" brot into play by Mr. Roosevelt among the lesser new ideas. His endurance & his infirmity was so heroic and his wit and good nature part-belief. The statue in Trafalgar Sq. in London! So many testimonials & his remarkable character surely outweigh any thing

A Jesse Jones or Westbrook Pegler or others of their ilk can say just to attract attention to themselves.

Cordially yours,
Emily Larned.
