Early days of FDR's law practice. In a civil suit, the opposing counsel was a veteran who was an unusually effective jury pleader. FDR realized as he listened to the veteran's summing up that he could not match it for persuasiveness.

The veteran however, made a mistake: he continued his oration for more than an hour and FDR

The veteran however
made a mistake;
he continued his
oration for more than an hour and FDR
saw the jury became restless and lose interest. So, playing a hunch, when his turn came, FDR arose & said, "Gentlemen
you have heard the evidence. You also have listened to my
distinguished colleague,

a brilliant lawyer.
If you believe him,
and disbelieve the
evidence, you will have to decide in his favor.
That is all I have to say."

The jury was out 5 minutes and brought in a verdict for Roosevelt's client.
