Dear Mrs. Roosevelt:

You may remember that we asked you last spring to do another article for THE DIGEST on the Human Rights Commission, and you said you preferred to wait until after the next session before writing it. You suggested we remind you in July, as a meeting was scheduled for that month. I understand it was postponed to August, and now to December, so I have not reminded you earlier. I wonder if I am mistaken and if a meeting has been held which escaped me entirely.

We plan only two more issues this year - October-November, for which the deadline is October 15, and December-January, for which the deadline is December 15. Would you be willing to do the article for one of these issues or, if the only meeting this year is the one scheduled for December, would you prefer to wait until after that meeting? We will, of course, be glad to have the article any time you care to do it for us.

Sincerely yours,

(Mrs.) Dorothy F. Girton
