

Pao - Pag

Central High School
2425 Thruade
Detroit 6 Michigan
January 17, 47

My dear Mrs. Roosevelt:

I thought you might enjoy reading the enclosed composition written extemporaneously by one of my 10-13 students.

The assignment was to read up on the one person above all others they admire and then to write the reasons for their choice.

Very truly yours,
(Mrs.) Frieda Paperno

English Dep't.

Roose

is also active in helping me

Paperno

Corrected
I will correct your own
Yes, Most of my mistakes are sus + care less.

Lois Fireman
Comp (2), VIII Hour
Room 206
January 3, 1947

Eleanor Roosevelt

This wonderful person mentioned above, is the ex-first lady of our country and as far as I'm concerned, she still is. Eleanor Roosevelt is the widow of president our most famous president, Franklin D. Roosevelt. I think she is still our country's first lady because she stands up for everything that has the best bit to do with freedom and democracy.

I hope you won't consider me disrespectful if I call Mrs. Roosevelt by her first name, Eleanor. It's much more convenient.

Eleanor is broad minded. She doesn't slander minority races. She does everything in her power to help them. Which includes ^{not a sentence} ~~speech~~ ^{speech} making. Eleanor is very active in helping the displaced people of Europe. Among the many organizations she is the honorary chairman of. Roosevelt is the Allied Greek Aid, Mrs. Roosevelt is also active in helping the poor and ^{Papans} oppressed in our own country.

In the political field, Mrs. Roosevelt is a great liberal, and she is ^{afraid} not afraid to say so. Eleanor is one of two American women who are members of the U. N. Eleanor also writes a daily column which ^{universally} appears ~~universally~~ in many languages.

In the above I have mentioned a few of the reasons why I admire this great humanitarian.

I think we could learn a great deal from studying Mrs. Roosevelt. We could learn to be broad minded, unselfish, and democratic. If we used Eleanor Roosevelt as an example, we would be liberal and modern, too.

We would make the best of situations and not brood over things which are out of our control. Just recently she lost her two front teeth in an automobile accident. Her almost joking words are ^{practically} ~~practically~~ famous. Eleanor said that she was glad to be rid of her of producing some of the

sp
protruding protruding centrals and would welcome some nice porcelains.

If we followed Eleanor Roosevelt's foot steps the youth of our country would have more to say in ^{various} the governments instead of ^{being} being run by some reactionary bigots. Mrs. Roosevelt is a great believer in youth.

Once we achieve the goal of being democratic, liberal, and unselfish
I think our world would be utopian.