Chapter A begins where all the other works on this subject end. War is generally considered as an unevitable fate. To refuse this misconception and to prove that similar catastrophies could in all probability be avoided in the future this work has been written. Competent references from both official and private persons can be furnished.

CHAPTER B written in underground Berlin 1943/45 deals with the principles of the above manifest and is of particular interest with a view to present day Germany. This part could also be published separately and by subscription .

Each chapter ca. 130 pages .

A renowned politician , asked to give his opinion of the work, wrote as follows :

" ... I do not find it easy to express in a few words how deeply I was interested by your original and practicable suggestions for organized action against war itself .

... Studying for a long time this crucial problem with all the difficulties involved I believe it possible that your brilliant book could really bring about progress. It is a manifestation of common sense and straight forward thinking which in politics are rare, very rare today.

Difficulties of translation ? Do we have a spiritual defense or do we not ? I trust that you will be successful in finding a publisher soon. Not too much time ought to be lost . "
