THE NEW YORK WOMEN'S TRADE UNION LEAGUE
is beginning its thirty-eighth year of activity on behalf of industrial women. Recent events add a new challenge to the League's responsibilities, which we are attempting to meet by renewed efforts in the organizing, legislative and educational fields through which we operate.

Progressive social laws need strengthening and extension; there are still many unorganized workers who do not understand the benefits of trade unionism and who have never had an opportunity to discuss their problems in the free and friendly atmosphere of workers' education classes. The League believes that in promoting such activities we are helping to strengthen our democratic institutions and spirit.

The organized working women of this state join the officers and members of the League in expressing their gratitude to Mrs. Roosevelt and to each of you for your interest. We are glad to bring you this brief word about the League and its efforts towards making the lives of countless women wage earners a little happier, more secure, better informed and, as a result, more useful in their unions and their communities. Further information about the League, membership and classes may be secured from the headquarters, 247 Lexington Avenue, New York City.

“GOD BLESS AMERICA”

God bless America, land that I love;
Stand beside her, and guide her
Through the night with a light from above.
From the mountains, to the prairies,
To the oceans white with foam—
God bless America, my home, sweet home!

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

1940-1941

THE NEW YORK WOMEN'S TRADE UNION LEAGUE
247 Lexington Avenue, New York City
THE WOMEN'S TRADE UNION LEAGUE

was organized in 1903, to promote the welfare of wage-earning women. With the help of its many affiliated unions, the League has fought for beneficial labor legislation, organized women into unions, represented wage-earners at public hearings, and sought to interpret the aims of organized labor to the public.

The educational program, started in 1922, and one of the pioneers in workers' education, has aimed to train workers for leadership in such activities. It has brought to the individual student wider personal interest, to industry, better equipped workers and to the community, more capable citizens.

EDUCATION FOR DEMOCRACY

Recent events add a new challenge to the League's responsibilities, which we are meeting by new courses and new emphases. Among other issues confronting working people today is the supreme one of defending the democratic way of life. Labor has certain special contributions to make to that task, and they can be made only by an informed, trained membership. To help prepare working men and women for such service, is the purpose of the League Educational Program of 1940-41.

THE CLASSROOM WITHOUT WALLS

The Educational Program is only one of many activities carried on at the League. Delegations, conferences, organizing campaigns, membership meetings and committee work all go on continually. For the past two years, groups of students from the Public Affairs course have made trips to Washington to observe various governmental agencies at work. Because students have opportunity to participate in these activities as part of their training, the League Program has been called a "Classroom Without Walls."

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

League students, coming from many different occupations and a variety of backgrounds, enjoy a warm comradeship. They share not only the common determination to serve the labor movement, but also the hearty good fellowship of classroom discussions and social activities. Dances, get-togethers, supper forums, poetry readings all may be found at the League,—a time and a topic to suit every taste!

League Membership Meetings are held the first Monday evening of each month. At these meetings, interesting reports are given of current happenings in the labor movement. Students are always welcome at the meetings, and frequently take part in the program.

Full Speed Ahead

We take it, too, that most Americans now are agreed on the following items: That for better or for worse the United States is unofficially but inextricably in the war on Britain’s side... that if Britain loses decisively and Hitler gets the British navy or any considerable part thereof, we shall be in a most serious spot... that if Britain loses, the least disagreeable thing we can expect thereafter will be to have hostile fleets heaving to off our richest coastal cities, one after another, and offering them the choice between paying heavy tribute and being bombarded... that you can draw your own picture of the most disagreeable thing we can expect if Britain loses.

14,000,000 Pennies

Well, the Children’s Crusade for Children, which we had the pleasure of endorsing on this page a few months ago, wound up with almost $140,000 deposited in mite boxes posted in schools all over the country. The money was split roughly as follows for the relief of child war victims: $22,500 each for Chinese, French, Polish, British and Jewish children; $7,500 each for Dutch, Finnish and Belgian children; $2,000 for Norwegian children.

We believe the answer to that question is Yes. Or if the answer is No, we’d better begin to think of how best to fight a heartbreaking defensive war against the Axis and Japan, with some further thought on how best to endure a possible ignominious loser’s peace afterward.

Collier’s is not urging a military dictatorship, or curtailment of civil liberties or any other wartime hysteria.

We do suggest that public opinion will back up the government in any steps compatible with our present state of semiwar and of threatened actual war, and that the word for America is full speed ahead and damn the torpedoes.

Soldiers’ Tearooms—Well, Why Not?

Modern, commodious regimental tearooms are being rigged up for the soldiers of the 27th Division at Fort McClellan, Ala., and the news has set jesters jesting, old Regular Army top kicks muttering in what would be their beards if they wore beards and retired generals striving to think of other things lest they have apoplexy.

Wings for the Border Patrol

What we say is, what of it? Why shouldn’t men of the new draft forces have as pleasant surroundings as may be?

The new Army should be a democratic outfit to which it is worth a man’s while to belong—though, of course, with all the essentials of first-class modern military training. Don’t baby the boys; but don’t make their year in the Army equivalent to a year in jail, either.

We’re for the tearooms, for good-looking hostesses around canteens and post exchanges, and for any other trimmings that will help to make life in the new Army enjoyable. That’s the way you build a strong, enthusiastic, super-loyal fighting organization—by making it something a man likes to belong to.

The United States and get busy on the wrecking work here.

We’d better equip the Border Patrol with an adequate flying force, and do it without delay. These pilots had better be instructed to track down undocumented border-jumping planes, and shoot them down if need be. If now and again one of these patrol planes should fly into Mexico in performance of this duty—well, Avila Camacho, new Mexican president, allows repeatedly as how he wants to be a Friend of ours, with a capital F.
These songs, written for the 25th Anniversary celebration of the League in 1928, illustrate the difficulties encountered in the early days of organizing women. It wasn't quite "respectable" then for women to be seen marching on the streets, but we marched! Attendance at union meetings was a risky and furtive business, but we passed out the handbills and finally the girls came! And in those days -- the "guardians of law and order" were a power to be reckoned with in all organizing activities! (The audience is invited to join in singing these songs.)

SONG OF THE ORGANIZERS (Tune: Sweet Little Buttercup)

We pass out our handbills and call girls to meetings,
And pray that they only may come,
But no, they are tired and fear to be fired,
And so they stay feebly at home.

For we agitators, and very good haters,
Are not what you call popular,
The girls will not hear us,
Though for them we fuss, fuss
They'll only come out for a star.

So Gompers and Mitchell,
And London, Wise, Hillquit,
Announce them we do on our call,
And girls come in rushing with eyes and cheeks flushing,
To fill all the seats in the hall.

We call on their families, and speak to them gently,
And give out our handbills galore,
Oh come here on Wednesday and hear how you raise pay,
And shorten your hours some more.

THE LABOR DAY PARADE (Tune: When Johnny Comes Marching Home)

They say that man's superior, Aha, Aha!
We stay in our place, a subordinate race, We are, We are!
But here we come on Labor Day,
In spite of all that men may say,
Sitting on floats in a brazen way, Aha, Aha!

THE GUARDIAN OF LAW AND ORDER (Tune: The Last Rose of Summer)

I'm the guardian of law and order,
In the City of New York,
I'm the servant of all the people,
But I like just a little pork.
I arrest the girls when striking,
For the boss tells me that's right,
I'm the guardian of law and order,
In the City of New York.

Treat 'em rough, is our motto,
And we treat them rough, we do,
The patrol wagon stands quite ready,
To take up all the fighting crew.
We must keep our law and order,
For the girls lack all respect,
I'm the guardian of law and order
Which I'll keep in New York, by heck!
