Maury Maverick wants to see Mrs. Roosevelt about the child-care program. He says he would like her to have lunch with him - as his guest - He apparently feels that when he has lunch here he never has a real chance to talk to Mrs. Roosevelt because the other guests want something - like putting through war contracts, jobs, etc., and he never gets an opportunity to see Mrs. Roosevelt. Thinks she should really be doing something about the child-care program.

11:00 a.m. PRESS CONFERENCE
MEMORANDUM FOR

MRS. ROOSEVELT

This is a letter which Florence Kerr sent me. It is very possible that she sent one to you too.

I think it is very interesting.

encl.
Hi —

I'm writing again today because I can now tell what you presumably already know — The Amazing Eleanor has flashed thru town! I missed her by five minutes at a Red Cross Club which almost broke my heart but I got a story out of it anyhow.

Seems The Lady Eleanor breezed in at the place entirely unheralded about 9:30 A.M. followed by a brace of Generals and Admirals meaningly teetering on the edge of collapse. And as would not otherwise have happened, two little privates were standing by an electric heater without benefit of trousers, those articles being in the process of rehabilitation at the moment. Well I don't imagine that any of the high-paid wrecks she had along had ever faced a situation of so little dignity since they made the equivalent of Full Colonel as such evidence in military circles is invariably announced hours before so that the show may go on. But it was Eleanor's show this time. While management gasped for breath and the entourage gasped for breath she cooly and graciously chatted with the two boys, both paralyzed with astonishment and chagrin but thrilled thru and thru. The talk over, Eleanor departed, the management collapsed, and the two boys grasped their scorched legs and burst into all sorts of excited exclamations.

That was where I came in and one of the kids, eyes big as pool-balls, said "She— the wife of the President—talked to me" and shook his head in a dazed sort of way while he nursed his leg. It's somethin when a half a dozen general officers wait gasping for someone to complete a casual talk with two privates! It's somethin and it's Eleanor.

She went over big with the local population. All were charmed by her simplicity, and graciousness. Her speeches were beautifully done. Many times local people have said to me with an air of fresh discovery "You know—she's really almost homely but when you see her she's so lovely you forget all about it."

The enlisted men too like her and are excited and pleased at her coming. But the officers could write copy for Colonel McCordick. They caricature her speech, estimate the cost of the trip and—if they're gentle—as that the hell she's doing tearing around; why doesn't she stay home. Even the Col. Spence keeps still because he knows my feeling but that's the only reason.

The cause I think goes back to certain statements contributed to Mrs. R. concerning the Marine Corps: "A bunch of animals who should be locked up for a good while after their return from overseas" "Brutal in their treatment of the enemy on Guadalcanal" etc. I don't believe she ever said anything of the sort. Can you tell me where they came from so I can argue intelligently? As a unit I believe ours. Coolidge once said something like the first quote regarding Marines on China station but I'm not sure. I'm a smaller minority here than in Winnetka! I keep thinking of those two boys without any pants and how they'll remember that morning perhaps when they're in a nasty fox hole trying not to do anything foolish or panicly. I think Eleanor created two damn good Marines in a few minutes that morning and I don't know an officer in the battalion who could do the same.

I've stowed Mike Hutch's address away—Thanks. Don't pay any attention to low moos. They seem I'm thinking about sea duty and I always rebound quickly. Actually I'm very seldom depressed at all—too many interesting things going on everywhere.
Two of the packages have come—Commandos is grand—small pictures as well as very interesting text. As passing it around, and I do like the Regents. They came thru in perfect shape and are one. Fall Malls unavailable to me here. I gave a few to some of the people who entertained me on leave—they of course can't get any American cigarettes and very few of the inferior local variety. I also gave them a few Fall Malls from a carton I was able to get downtown and several Chesterfields.

The Ships and Aircraft was the wrong edition unfortunately—one I had already. The one I'm anxious to see is the 1943 which should have come out in June. But this one wasn't wasted—Spence had been envying me mine so I gave him this one.

And that reminds me—I had a letter from Lou the other day. He's fine and very busy. I can imagine what that means from my newspaper. Do you remember John Chester at Abbott? Tall blond boy who lived next door to me and whom Lou and I disliked a good deal. He was unfortunately killed by a direct hit near Budalcena.

As for Christmas there's very little I need. A few socks—cotton, brown, ribbed size 13 would be welcome but I'm not sure you can get them. You see I don't have any idea what's available or of what I'll be doing at the time. Books are swell always and cigarettes likewise. But the suggestions I see in magazines leave me cold—I still have a number of things from last Christmas that I've never been able to use. Actually our needs are very few and we can't take on much in the way of gadgets until we get back to the States. A good pair of fine-pointed fingernail scissors would be good. But there again I'm not sure you can buy them.

I weigh five pounds more than when I first enlisted in the Navy. That's my maxim and I don't believe I was ever more than ten pounds below it at any time. I just don't seem to be subject to much change as to bulk.

Willkie's book was very interesting. The old egotism of course but I did think he lost that when he was sufficiently absorbed in human problems. Actually, too, I'm still not sure whether he's a convincing career man or a somewhat bungling humanitarian. Certainly I should not want to vote for him for so tremendous a job as President. From where I sit a 4th round is the only answer if the R constitution can stand the strain. He's an amazing President and came to us when our need was more desperate than at any time in our history taking the period since 1932 as a whole, if you can stand it all in one thought. It's a rather dismaying day but we have Barbara Stanwyck tonight in "Queen of Burlesque" which I expect to enjoy tremendously. That fire-eatin' Stanwyck gal goes great guns with me. Last night was "Cabin in the Sky" with Ethel Waters, Rochester and an all-Negro cast but I found it very disappointing somehow. Ethel Waters is terrific at Torch but not so hot on other things. And I do enjoy a good torch song with gestures.

We saw "H.M. Pulham Esq." while we were on leave—see if you can or failing that see if you can get the book. His problem interested me particularly and Father I know would like the Boston atmosphere. Did you ever see Kitty Foyle?

Best always—keep punchin' and don't worry if you can help it about me. I fumble but I get there.
