WAR REFUGEE BOARD
Present: Mr. Pehle

H,M.,JR: Now, what is on your mind?

MR. PEHLE: Oh, a few things, Mr. Secretary, one or two of which you asked to speak to me about. You might be interested in that.

(Hands Secretary clipping concerning President’s Declaration of March 24)

That is the German on one side and Norwegian on the other, version of the President’s Declaration.

H.J.,JR: Who's is it?

MR. PEHLE: OWI.

I think we are by Mr. Stimson. I was sort of worried about his reaction. I called him on Thursday a week ago, and I didn't get a call back for eight days. So he called me and was very apologetic, which helped. So I told him what had happened—an additional memorandum had gone and I told him the only doubt was a thousand refugees. He thought that was very good. So then I got up a memorandum to go to the three Cabinet officials. I just wanted to get your thought as to tactics, indicating the contents of what happened when I saw the President and transmitting all the documents, so that they would each be on notice.

H,M.,JR: I see.

(Mr. Pehle hands the Secretary attached memorandum dated May 20, 1944)
MR. PEHLE: Do you think it would be a good idea to send a further memorandum to the President along that line? (Hands Secretary proposed memorandum, attached:)

H.M.JR: I'll find out. It may not be necessary. Let's find out.

MR. PEHLE: All right.

Now you wanted to know what this new Hebrew Committee of National Liberation is. That is a very controversial thing, as your probably can see already. It is Bergson's latest activity. He has started and formed around himself what he calls the Hebrew Committee of National Liberation. They bought the old Iranian Legation out here. Where they got the money, I don't know. It cost them sixty-five thousand dollars. He has installed himself in there with a group of young Palestinian Jews, the same ones who have been behind the Emergency Committee.

(Secretary speaking over White House phone:)

Hello...

How are you?...

You don't sound very peppy...

No...

Is it cold up there?...

Oh, good...

Two questions: I was anxious to know whether the President had a chance to read that Pehle memorandum...

You don't think he has yet...
And the other thing, at Cabinet I brought up this question about this memorandum I sent him, either May 10th or 11th, on the Argentine, and he didn't seem to act as though he had ever seen it or read it.

Yes, it was either May 10th or May 11th, one day or the other, a letter or a memorandum on the Argentine.

Would you look at it?

You don't know yet when you are coming back?

I gather you're not alone.

Oh...

Oh...

O.K. Give my regards to Duchess County.

Thank you.

H.M.JR: She hasn't got to the one and she doesn't know. It is very difficult to get this to him. I won't know how to get it to him unless you sent it over there. Then it may get messed up. I think it is a mistake.

Mr. PEHLE: All right.

H.M.JR: I mean, here is the thing like this Argentine thing.

Mr. PEHLE: If he gets back here without doing it, this will be a nudge.

H.M.JR: That is all right. I wouldn't send it up to him. She said she didn't know. It might still be in the basket. At Cabinet the President acted as though he hadn't read it or seen it. And your memorandum had not yet gotten to him.
MR. PEHLE: Bergson now, on this committee, proposes to speak.

H.M.JR: It is wonderful, the service she gives me.

MR. PEHLE: Yes.

He purports to speak for the Jews of occupied Europe. It is a very bold and daring thing. I, myself, don't see any possibility of its going over, because I don't know where he has any support. The American Jewish group are just so mad that they want to kill him. I mean, really mad. Oh, they are just fit to be tied. Doctor Goldman, Rabbi Wise, the American Jewish Committee, all the Jewish organizations are just up in arms, you see, because this man, even goes farther than Zionism. What he is, in effect, saying is the Jews of Europe owe their allegiance to the Hebrew Nation, and he proposes to speak for the Hebrew Nation. He wants a seat in UNRRA; he wants a seat in the United Nations; and he wants a seat in the peace conference.

H.M.JR: Didn't you the other day sort of give him a pound on the back, say he was all right, not to worry about it? I thought you said that.

MR. PEHLE: I don't know whether I said that. I don't remember.

H.M.JR: Didn't you or somebody connected say I didn't have to worry about Bergson, it was all right?

MR. PEHLE: I don't know whether I said that or not. I doubt it, because I worry about him constantly. He is a very controversial figure. Now, DuBois feels much more favorably disposed toward Bergson than I do. He is very convinced of his sincerity. He is a very smart person and daring. And as far as I know, he is sincere. But he always worries me because you never can tell what he is going to do next. He has not embarrassed us, at least not publicly.
MR. PEHLE: But you never know. He is just one of the very controversial elements in this picture and Doctor Goldman, who is Rabbi Wise's colleague, was in the day before this came out. He was very disturbed about it. I mean, they are just livid with rage about this man. But it is the sort of thing you just never know what will happen. I don't see that there is any chance, but it is just possible that this man may step into a situation where he will get some place.

H.M. JR: Oh.

MR. PEHLE: You can't tell. He has only been over here three or four years and he gets tremendous public support. People like Ickes have backed him all the way through on this Emergency Committee.

H.M. JR: Oh, well, Ickes, what shall I say—-I mean, on the one hand Ickes does that and on the other hand he has Mr. Davis of Standard Oil of New Jersey at sixty-five thousand dollars a year, in charge of oil.

MR. PEHLE: I would be the last person to defend his oil position.

H.M. JR: You can't just say that because Ickes does it, that is the last word. That is what I am saying.

MR. PEHLE: If you are interested in looking at the material they put out.

H.M. JR: That is all I am saying. I am very fond of Ickes and I think he has done a swell job, but he isn't always right.

MR. PEHLE: Oh, no, I didn't mean right. All I meant was that Bergson does get important support.

(Hands Secretary file of documents relating to Bergson's activities)
H.M.JR: Can I borrow this stuff?

MR. PEHLE: Oh, yes, sir. Here are the clippings on it. You will be interested in those, because they show the rage with which this thing has been met.

(Mr. Pehle hands Secretary the file of the clippings)

H.M.JR: So far, he hasn't picked on me. I am prepared for him.

MR. PEHLE: This, you asked that I tell you what it's about.

H.M.JR: Yes.

MR. PEHLE: It is two things: one is a petition left with Stettinius while he was in London about the Hungarian situation which doesn't add anything new. The other is a little memorandum which consists of a couple of his discussions and one that Wallace Murray had with the British group on the Palestinian thing. I saw Stettinius, and I told him that (a) Wallace Murray was the worse possible person to deal with Jewish questions, as I told him before he went; and (b), that the British position there was awful. He didn't dispose to argue about it. He first seemed a little proud of what he had accomplished on that. He hadn't accomplished anything.

This, Mr. Secretary, is a very interesting document. I'll have to tell you about its background before it makes any sense to you. A man came in here about three months ago, named David Zagha, he is one of these international people who has done all sorts of things. He was in North Africa before we got in, and the Army Intelligence assures me he was an enormous help to us. He did not play along, however, with Murphy and the new crowd that came in when we went in. Consequently, he was in disfavor. But he was a great help to the Army, they say, and he was one of their people. He came back here. He was vouchèd for by Colonel Bernstein and by other people who said he was reliable. And he still works for Military Intelligence. He came in here and wanted to do some work for us in the Underground situation. He didn't ask for pay, all he wanted was a letter; and we gave him a letter. It didn't say very much, but it was a letter to any of our people abroad to be of whatever help they could. He went down to South America, to Argentina with the Army's consent, approval and help. And now he is back in North Africa. While he was in Argentina, he got in to see not only the President of Argentina, but Colonel Perron. And he had a conference with him. And this is his memorandum of the conference. It is an unbelievable document. It was sent to me through Military Intelligence and I called up Military Intelligence and said, "Have you a copy of this?" They said, "No, our man in Argentina has, but we haven't." I said, "I'll send you one."

"I am not going to send it to State. You send it to State."

They said, "Thank you, we don't want it to go to State. State will raise Cain." But this fellow Zagha, has been working with General Lang, who is the Military Attache in Argentina, and he got to see Perron and Farrell and talk to them. It's an amazing document.

(Hands document to Secretary)

H.M.Jr: His family is in the Argentine?

MR. PEHLE: Yes.

H.M.Jr: What is Zagha, what nationality?

MR. PEHLE: I don't know. I think he is of Balkan nationality.

H.M.Jr: "In spite of provocations by Stettinius"?

MR. PEHLE: Yes, that must be one of those places where you make a face at him.
H.M.Jr: Who are they trying to kid?

MR. PEHLE: As far as I'm concerned, they are trying to kid Zagha. They think he will be taken in by all that stuff.

H.M.Jr: It's a lot of claptrap.

MR. PEHLE: Isn't it though? This is what the General writes to Zagha. General Lang, he is a Military Attache.

(Hands Secretary communication from General Lang to Zagha)

H.M.Jr: Well, they knew undoubtedly who he was. They weren't so dumb.

MR. PEHLE: Sure they did. He was just filling him full. They thought it would get back to the United States.

Corff has been trying to see you, as you know. I saw him and he handed me this memorandum. The memorandum deals with the Hungarian situation. It doesn't suggest anything that we aren't doing, and I just wanted to say that, so that you would be in a position of having sent the memorandum.

H.M.Jr: O.K.

MR. PEHLE: I had a conference with Harriman. He was quite friendly. He seemed quite favorably disposed.

H.M.Jr: Where did you see him?

MR. PEHLE: In State. He seemed quite friendly toward Russia, which I was a little surprised by. Not too well informed on some things, but other things he was very frank and friendly about. He discussed the Polish situation. He discussed--I asked him about anti-Semitism in Russia. He said in certain local situations there was some development of that; that in the Government itself there was none, but that due to the growing tide of nationalism and the de-emphasis of internationalism, there were fewer Jews in high places in the Government, because it was a Jewish group that was fostering—tended more to foster—international thinking on the part of the Russians. I said that there won't be any point in sending anybody there at this point. We had suggested that. When you do, not to send anybody to stay there, just send them on a mission. The minute you send them to stay there, the Russians aren't interested, but if you come in they will open their doors and will really put on a show and let you see really what is going on. He invited me to come as his guest, and he was quite nice and I think he will be helpful. We have followed it up with a memorandum asking him to do something right away on the Hungarian situation. He said Russia thought we were too soft on the neutrals and can't understand why we don't clamp down on them.

H.M.JR: All right. Anything else?

MR. PEHLE: That is all, sir.

H.M.JR: All right.
KUNDMACHUNG

Keiner, der schuldig ist, wird seiner Strafe entgehen

Die Vereinten Nationen kämpfen für eine Welt, in der Barbars und Gewaltt interessicht nicht möglich sein werden. Sie kämpfen für eine Welt der Freiheit, Gleichheit und Gerechtigkeit. Sie kämpfen für eine Welt, in der alle Menschen ohne Unterschied der Rasse oder des Glaubens in Friede, Ehre und Würde leben können.

Aber während wir noch kämpfen, wütet in Europa und Asien die Herrschaft der Foliert und des Mordes. Es ist die Herrschaft der Nazis und der Japaner.

Wo immer die Nazis oder die Japaner ihre Terrorherrschaft aufgerichtet haben, haben sie unschuldige Polen, Tschechen, Norweger, Holländer, Dänen, Franzosen, Griechen, Russen und Chinesen in Hunger und Kälte zugrunde gehen lassen oder sie in Massen hingemordet.

Es ist daher angebracht, neuerdings unsere Entschlossenheit zu verkünden, dass keiner, der irgend einen Anteil an diesem Verbrechen hat, ungestraft bleiben soll. Die Vereinten Nationen haben keinen Zweifel darüber, dass sie die Schuldigen verfolgen und der Gerechtigkeit überantworten werden.

De skylldige skal straffes

E Forente Nasjoner kjemper for en verden hvor tyranni og overfall ikke kan finne sted, en verden bygget på frihet, likhet og rettferd, en verden hvor alle mennesker uansett rase, farve eller tro kan leve i fred med ære og verdighet.

I mellomtiden fortsetter nazistene og japanneren den systematiske tortur og mordene på civile — menn, kvinner og barn — med usvækket kraft. I områder under det nazistiske regimet, som Tyskland, Polen og Sovjetunionen, blir uskyldige politikere, tsjekker, nordmenn, hollendere, dansker, finsmenn, grekere, russere, franskeisere, flippiner og mange andre sultet ihjel, frosset til døde eller myrdet med kaldt blod i et råhetens felttog...

Det er derfor passende at vi atter kunngjør vår beslutning om at ingen som deltar i disse grusomheter skal forblive ustraffet. De Forente Nasjoner har gjort det klart at de vil forfylle de skylldige og utlevere dem for at rettferdigheten kan skje fyldest.

Dette advaret appellerer ikke bare til lederne, men også til deres funksjonærer og underordnede i Tyskland og i vassallstatene. Alle som medvirkende tar del i deportasjonen av jøder til deres død i Polen eller nordmenn og franskere til deres død i Tyskland, er like skylldige som de deler selv. Alle som deler skylden skal dele straffen.

Hitler utforer disse forbrytelser mot menneskeheten i det tyske folkes navn.

Jeg oppfordrer hver tysker og hver mann hvor som helst under nazi herredomme til å vise verden ved egen handling, at han i sitt hjerte ikke deler disse sinnsyns forbryterske ønsker.

La ham gjemme disse forfulgte ofre, hjelper dem til å flykte over grensene og la ham gjøre hva han kan for å redde dem fra den nazistiske bødden. Jeg ber ham også å være på vakt og skrive ned de grov som en dag skal brukes til å domme de skylldige.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
WAR REFUGEE BOARD
WASHINGTON 25, D.C.

MAY 20 1944

MEMORANDUM TO:

Secretary Hull
Secretary Morgenthau
Secretary Stimson.

As you have already been informally advised, I saw the President on May 11, 1944, and handed to him the memorandum signed by each of you. A photostatic copy of this memorandum is enclosed.

The President began by saying that he had heard that the War Refugee Board was doing a very good job, particularly in his reports from occupied territory. He said that he had heard that many refugees had been very disheartened and about ready to give up before the Board was established, but the establishment of the Board and its activities had given many people new hope and that he was very pleased.

I summarized to the President the contents of the memorandum, stressing the feelings of the individual Board members with respect to obtaining Congressional approval or advice. The President was very sympathetic with the proposal. He commented that he did not like the words "free port" because he felt that these words did not indicate clearly enough that the refugees brought to the United States would return after the war; and he suggested we find a more suitable name. I mentioned to the President the possibility of using a War Relocation Authority camp at Jerome, Arkansas, soon to be vacated of Japanese. The President felt that it would be preferable to keep the refugees in the Atlantic Seaboard area and mentioned that there were a number of Army camps in this section which had been or would soon be vacated and which could be used for this purpose. He stated that the refugees could be brought to the United States in returning Army transports.

I showed the President the clippings of news items and editorial comment on the "free port" proposal and also the organizational support now behind this proposal, including the A. F. of L., the C. I. O., the Federal Council of Churches of Christ, the Y. W. C. A., and many others. The President seemed pleased at the substantial favorable publicity which the proposal had received. He indicated, however, that without Congressional approval he would be reluctant to issue an announcement that large numbers of refugees were to be admitted to the United States. Instead he said that if there were a specific situation involving approximately 1000 refugees he would be willing to bring the refugees into the United States and at the same time send a message to Congress indicating what he had done and the reasons for the action. He asked me to send him a further memorandum outlining any such situation and indicating how the matter could be handled.

There is attached hereto a copy of a memorandum to the President, dated May 18, 1944, which has been transmitted to him, with the documents referred to therein. These memoranda deal with an emergency situation of the type which the President apparently had in mind, arising in connection with the influx of refugees into Allied Italy and the need of additional havens for these refugees.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

Attached is a memorandum discussing the proposal that this Government provide temporary havens of refuge in this country for oppressed peoples escaping from Hitler - these people to be placed in camps established in this country and to remain there until the termination of the war at which time they will be returned to their homelands.

Under this proposal the refugees would be brought into the country outside the regular immigration procedure just as civilian internees of Latin American countries have been brought here and placed in internment camps. There could be no objection on security grounds any more than in the case of prisoners of war.

The overwhelming humanitarian reasons for taking this action, and the considerations involved in deciding whether this step should be taken now by Executive action or submitted to Congress, are discussed in the memorandum, which indicates the views of the Board members on this matter.

The Board has decided that, in view of the importance and urgency of this question and the great responsibility involved in reaching a final determination as to what should be done, the whole matter should be submitted to you for your consideration.

Among the possible courses of action which you will of course want to consider are:

(1) Consultation with appropriate members of Congress with a view to Executive action.

(2) Putting the program into effect at once by Executive action.

(3) Presidential message submitting the matter to Congress for urgent action.

(4) Having a bill first introduced in Congress, followed by a Presidential message urging its immediate enactment.

MEMORANDUM RE: Establishment of Temporary Havens of Refuge in the United States

In the Executive Order creating the War Refugee Board you directed that the Board make appropriate recommendations to you to overcome any difficulties encountered in the rescue and relief of war refugees.

Although the Board has already initiated many measures which, if fully implemented, may result in saving many lives, there is one basic obstacle which lies athwart all our efforts. This is the simple fact that the United Nations have not been prepared to supply even temporary havens of refuge for substantial numbers of the persecuted peoples of Europe, particularly the Jews.

Why This Is The Main Obstacle

The following brief summary will reveal why this constitutes the basic weakness in our whole program.

(1) Our best chance of saving many people from death, particularly after recent events in the Balkans, lies in an effort to convince the Hitlerite forces, and more particularly their functionaries and subordinates, that it is in their interest to spare the lives of these people. In this connection, the statement issued by you on March 24, which is being given the widest possible publicity in German controlled territory, will of course be most helpful toward this end, especially if followed by concrete action.

(2) And there is also an opportunity to actually bring some of these people out of enemy territory. The recent developments in the Balkans may limit opportunities there, but there still remains a possibility of stimulating the flow of refugees to Spain and Switzerland.

(3) It is essential to both of these avenues of approach, however, that we and our allies convince the world of our sincerity and our willingness to bear our share of the burden. Thus, great substance would be added to our threats, and other countries would be much more ready to cooperate in aiding the escape of refugees, if we made it clear now by action that our doors are open to these people.

(4) The United Nations must not merely threaten our enemies and ask them to stop killing Jews; the United Nations must themselves offer the Jews a haven. Only in that way can the great moral issue involved be made clear.

Such a step would show the Germans clearly that our threats of punishment and promises of action are not mere words. It is even possible that after such an announcement the Germans might be prepared to release or permit the escape of these persecuted peoples.
(5) And such a step would certainly cause the neutral countries to encourage the entry of more refugees into their territory since they would then know that they would not be required to keep all refugees until the war ends. Thus, one of the reasons why we are not meeting with any success in Spain is the fact that the Spaniards are not convinced that we will take the refugees off their hands. Although we have been stating for a long while that we are going to take the Jewish refugees in Spain to Camp Lyautey at Fedhala (near Casablanca) in North Africa, none have been moved there to date. And although several hundred are expected to be moved there shortly, under the agreement with the French authorities only 2,000 refugees may be in this small camp at any one time. The Spaniards of course know of this limitation and of the reluctant attitude of the French, which attitude has been the main reason for the long delay in moving these refugees. And the inarticulate major premise of the French attitude is the conviction that such refugees are to be dumped and left in French Africa and that neither the United States nor Great Britain will receive them.

Proposed Solution

Many private organizations, as well as John Pehle and his staff, have strongly recommended that this Government act at once in this humanitarian cause and announce to the world that we will provide temporary havens of refuge in this country for all oppressed peoples escaping from Hitler - these people to be placed in camps established in this country and to remain there until the termination of the war at which time they will be returned to their homelands.

Nature and Benefits of Proposal

(1) Under this proposal the refugees would be treated in effect as prisoners of war. They would be brought into the country outside the regular immigration procedure just as civilian internees from Latin American countries have been brought here and placed in internment camps. No violation or attempt to evade immigration laws would be involved since the refugees would remain only until the termination of the war and would not come in under the quota system. There could be no objection on security grounds any more than in the case of prisoners of war.

(2) The principal United Nations involved have already agreed that each of them will receive after the war its nationals who have fled for their lives and have been given asylum in other countries. These nations have also agreed that it is a part of their settled policy to assure such conditions in enemy and enemy occupied countries as will permit the return thereto of all persons displaced therefrom who have sought refuge elsewhere. This agreement, already concurred in by the United States, Great Britain, the Soviet Union, Luxembourg, Yugoslavia, Norway, The French Committee, Greece, Belgium, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and the Netherlands should serve to make clear to those concerned that such refugees as may be accepted in camps here will be returned to their homelands at the end of the war.

(3) The humanitarian considerations which might be urged against the confinement of the refugees are answered by the simple fact that treating them as prisoners of war is better than letting them die.

(4) The general idea has been discussed with a number of organizations, Jewish and non-Jewish, and they have all expressed their approval. Most of them feel that it is by far the biggest step the Board can take to accomplish the purposes for which it was established.

(5) The necessity for unilateral action now by this Government lies in the fact that we cannot expect others to do what we ourselves will not do, and if we are to act in time we must take the lead.

(6) The practical effect of such a step by the United States might be tremendous. Our allies would without doubt follow our lead. That this country, which has always been a refuge for the fugitive from injustice, oppression and persecution, should take the leadership in this matter would be in keeping with our heritage and with our ideals of liberty and justice.

(7) In the hearts and minds of all peoples under Nazi domination and throughout the world such action might well have an effect very much favorable to our whole war effort and to our reputation as a nation which has always carried the torch in great undertakings.

In a report to the War Refugee Board in early March, Ira Hirschmann, the Board's representative in Turkey, concluded as follows:

"I am sure you will be gratified to learn that although still on the threshold, the work of the War Refugee Board has injected new life and hope into thousands of down-trodden, tormented refugees throughout the European continent. This is not my opinion but one that is confirmed by all of the refugees I interviewed during my visit in Istanbul. The first Jewish refugees of Turkish origin just arrived from France said to me feelingly, 'For two years there has been only one phrase on everyone's lips - when are the Americans coming?'"
(8) Even if no refugees were ever actually brought to these camps, the mere announcement of our readiness to receive them would remove the basic obstacle to our efforts to save them. In view of geographical and time factors, it is not likely that many refugees would actually come to the United States. The important thing is that we offer to receive them.

Question of Congressional Approval

Secretary Hull, Secretary Morgenthau and Secretary Stimson carefully considered this proposal at the meeting of the Board on March 21. There was no disagreement as to the potential benefits of such a program, and all the members of the Board agreed that the matter should be presented to the President.

Secretary Stimson in particular felt that it was a matter which should be presented to Congress for its approval. Secretary Stimson's views on this, in his own words, are as follows:

"The principal objection which I had to the proposal to bring these refugees into the United States was my fear that the proposal would be considered so at variance with the policy of our immigration laws that the President should not undertake it without conferring with and obtaining the consent of Congress. The reasons were as follows:

"Our present immigration laws were the result of a very deeply held feeling of our people that the future immigration of racial stocks should be so limited as to coincide with the existing ratio of such stocks already within the country. Furthermore these laws were adopted at the close of the last war by overwhelming majorities of our Congress for the purpose of preventing the entrance into this country of large blocks of immigrants who were likely to come from the very countries in which most of the present refugees with whom we are concerned now originate. Our people then showed that they strongly feared that an uncontrolled immigration from such countries would modify the proportion of the racial stocks already existing in our own population and would introduce into the United States many people who would with difficulty be assimilated into our own population and brought into conformity with our own institutions and traditions.

"I fear that your proposal would meet with a similar reaction from our people today who would feel that it was merely the beginning of a permanent immigration. This would be accentuated if it was carried through by Executive authority alone and without the assent of Congress.

"One of the considerations which faces us in attempting to obtain the consent of the European nations to take these people off our hands at the end of the war is that many of these countries are not now free to make valid commitments supported by responsible governments."
"But even if the obtaining of such commitments were possible, I am informed that the mere introduction of these people today on such a scale and for humanitarian purposes alone would be contrary to existing American law. In this connection I am not at all clear that the war power of the President would be held to cover a transaction like this which has no direct connection with the prosecution of the war.

"For these reasons I felt then and feel now that it would be unwise to advise the President to take such a step without the consent of Congress.

"At our meeting at which this was discussed I think you stated your belief that it would be impossible to get the consent of Congress. On reflection I am not at all sure that you are right. If presented with the support of the overwhelming humanitarian reasons and with adequate safeguards for returning the refugees to their own countries, I am not at all sure that the measure could not be carried. If thus presented, the Congress would be able to take such precautions as it would deem necessary and would be consulted in regard to the financial responsibility which it is quite evident that this country must ultimately assume."

The Attorney General has informally advised the Board that if you wish to put this program into effect without Congressional approval, legal justification could be found for such a temporary arrangement. The Attorney General believes, however, that in view of the attitude of the Congress toward immigration policies it would be unwise for you to take the proposed action without Congressional approval having been first obtained.

Secretary Hull and Secretary Morgenthau feel that before taking any action you should consult with appropriate members of Congress.

In considering whether this step should be taken now by Executive action or submitted to Congress for its approval the following points should also be borne in mind:

(1) Time is of the essence and, even assuming Congressional approval could eventually be obtained, it might be too late to do any good.

(2) If, as many believe, the immediate adoption of this program is fundamental to our efforts to save many people from death, the question arises as to whether you should not act at once, as you did in the case of the delivery of destroyers to Great Britain - taking the leadership in molding public opinion in support of the action.

(3) If the proposal were put up to Congress and Congress failed to act, the result might be to minimize the gains which have already resulted from your establishment of the War Refugees Board.

TO THE PRESIDENT

Attached are the following documents:

(1) Memorandum outlining emergency refugee situation in Italy which requires urgent solution not only to save additional lives but also to relieve the burden on military authorities. This situation more than justifies carrying out your suggestion for bringing approximately 1,000 refugees to this country to be placed in a War Refugee Center.

(2) A draft of a message to be sent to Congress at the appropriate time, informing them of the action taken.

(3) A cable from you to Robert Murphy, asking him to make immediate arrangements for the transportation to the United States from Italy of approximately 1,000 refugees of various categories.

(4) A memorandum from you to the Secretaries of War, Navy, and Interior, the Director of the Budget and the Executive Director of the War Refugee Board, requesting them to make arrangements for receiving these refugees in the United States.

MEMORANDUM TO THE PRESIDENT

On May 11, 1944 I discussed with you a proposal of the War Refugee Board that consideration be given to the establishment in this country of temporary havens of refuge. I attach hereto the memorandum on this subject signed by the members of the Board. During the course of our discussion I emphasized the great importance of a measure of this kind to the success of the Board's program, both in its psychological aspect and in the actual evacuation of refugees from enemy territory. I also mentioned the numerous indications of a favorable public reception of such a step.

You will recall your view that if an emergency situation should arise in which it became important to bring a relatively small number of refugees to this country in order to pave the way for the saving of additional lives, you would be favorably disposed to take such a step, informing the Congress of your action.

Such a situation has now developed in Italy.

As a result of the limited facilities in that part of Italy under Allied control, the military forces have not been able, generally speaking, to encourage the escape of refugees to Italy from enemy territory, and for this reason, the escape of the largest possible number of refugees has been prevented. Moreover, the problem of the care of the fairly substantial number of refugees who have arrived in Italy by their own efforts, has constituted a considerable burden to the military authorities. Quite recently the facilities for the care of refugees in southern Italy have become so overtaxed that the military authorities have taken steps actually to discourage the escape of further refugees to that area from German occupied territories until many of the refugees now in Italy can be moved to havens of refuge elsewhere.

This situation not only prevents the rescue of people in Yugoslavia who are being indiscriminately slaughtered by the Germans, but also interferes with efforts to rescue Jews, from their desperate plight in Hungary, through Yugoslavia.

Moreover, the military authorities are now insisting that a number of refugees be taken elsewhere without delay in order to relieve the congestion. The British authorities have been and are removing many refugees from Italy to camps in Egypt. However, in order to meet the problem, some refugees must be removed promptly to other areas. The military authorities have suggested that approximately 760 refugees be taken at once from southern Italy to Camp Lyantay near Fedala, Morocco. It is our view that such a step is not feasible for the following reasons:

(1) The UNRRA representative in charge of supervising Camp Lyantay has advised that in the present circumstances it will not be possible to care for more than the approximately 900 refugees who are being brought to the camp from Spain.
(2) The bringing of refugees from Italy would practically exhaust the quota of 8,000 which may be taken to that camp, thus interfering with our effort to increase the number of refugees escaping from France to Spain by removing them to Camp Fuyauté as soon as they enter Spain.

To insist that the British or French take additional refugees when we ourselves are taking none, would in the best of cases involve long delays and would be unsatisfactory from many points of view.

This emergency situation is, I believe, exactly the type of situation which you had in mind. We can break this bottleneck by immediately bringing to the United States approximately 1,000 refugees from southern Italy and placing them in an unused Army camp along the Eastern seaboard, where they would remain until the end of the war. This step will not only enable us actually to bring more people out of enemy territory, but will also demonstrate to the Germans and to the world that our refugee policy is being implemented by action. In this connection it should be emphasized that in view of military developments the potential escape route through Yugoslavia from Hungary and the Balkans is of primary importance and should be exploited to the full before the situation again changes.

(signed) J. W. Pehle
Congress has repeatedly manifested its deep concern with the pitiful plight of the persecuted minorities in Europe whose lives are each day being offered in sacrifice on the altar of Nazi tyranny.

This Nation is appalled by the systematic extermination of helpless minority groups by the Nazis. To us the unprovoked murder of innocent people simply because of race, religion or political creed is the blackest of all possible crimes. Since the Nazis began this campaign many of our citizens in all walks of life and of all political and religious persuasions have expressed our feeling of repulsion and our anger. It is a matter with respect to which there is and can be no division of opinion amongst us.

As the hour of the final defeat of the Hitlerite forces nears, the fury of their insane desire to wipe out minority groups in Europe continues undiminished. Knowing that they have lost the war, the Nazis are determined to complete their program of mass extermination of minorities. This program is but one manifestation of Hitler's aim to salvage from military defeat victory for Nazi principles - the very principles which this war must destroy unless we shall have fought in vain.

This Government has not only made clear its abhorrence of this inhuman and barbarous activity of the Nazis, but, in cooperation with other governments has endeavored to alleviate the condition of the persecuted peoples. In January of this year I determined that this Government should intensify its efforts to combat the Nazi terror. Accordingly, I established the War Refugee Board, composed of the Secretaries of State, Treasury and War. This Board was charged with the responsibility of taking all action consistent with the successful prosecution of the war to rescue the victims of enemy oppression in imminent danger of death and to afford such victims all other possible relief and assistance. It was entrusted with the solemn duty of translating this Government's humanitarian policy into prompt action, thus manifesting once again in a concrete way that our kind of world and not Hitler's will prevail. Its purpose is directly and closely related to our whole war effort.

Since its establishment, the War Refugee Board, acting through a full time administrative staff, has made a direct and forceful attack on the problem. Operating quietly, as is appropriate, the Board, through its representatives in various parts of the world, has actually succeeded in saving the lives of innocent people. Not only have refugees been evacuated from enemy territory, but many measures have been taken to protect the lives of those who have not been able to escape.

Above all, the efforts of the Board have brought new hope to the oppressed peoples of Europe. This statement is not idle speculation. From various sources, I have received word that thousands of people, wearied by their years of resistance to Hitler and by their sufferings to the point of giving up the struggle, have been given the will and desire to continue by the concrete manifestation of this Government’s desire to do all possible to aid and rescue the oppressed.

To the Hitlers, their subordinates and functionaries and satellites, to the German people and to all other peoples under the Nazi yoke, we have made clear our determination to punish all participants in these acts of savagery. In the name of humanity we have called upon them to spare the lives of these innocent people.

Notwithstanding this Government’s unceasing efforts, which are continuing, the numbers actually rescued from the jaws of death have been small compared with the numbers still facing extinction in German territory. This is due principally to the fact that our enemies, despite all our appeals and our willingness to find havens of refuge for the oppressed peoples, persist in their fiendish extermination campaign and actively prevent the intended victims from escaping to safety.

In the face of this attitude of our enemies we must not fail to take full advantage of any opportunity, however limited, for the rescue of Hitler’s victims. We are confronted with a most urgent situation.

Therefore, I wish to report to you today concerning an extraordinary step which I have just taken in an effort to save additional lives and which I am certain will meet with your approval. You will, I am sure, appreciate that this measure is not only consistent with the successful prosecution of the war, but that it was essential to take action without delay.

Even before the Allied landing in Italy there had been a substantial movement of persecuted peoples of various races and nationalities into that country. This movement was undoubtedly prompted by the fact that, despite all attempts by the Fascists to stir up intolerance, the warm-hearted Italian people could not forsake their centuries-old tradition of tolerance and humanitarianism. The Allied landings swelled this stream of fleeing and hunted peoples seeking sanctuary behind the guns of the United Nations. However, in view of the military situation in Italy, the number of refugees who can be accommodated there is relatively limited. The Allied military forces, in view of their primary responsibility, have not been able generally speaking to encourage the escape of refugees from enemy territory. This unfortunate situation has prevented the escape of the largest possible number of refugees. Furthermore, as the number of refugees living in southern Italy increases, their care constitutes an additional and substantial burden for the military authorities.

Recently the facilities for the care of refugees in southern Italy have become so overtaxed that unless many refugees who have already escaped to that area and are arriving daily, particularly from the Balkan countries, can be promptly removed to havens of refuge elsewhere, the escape of refugees to that area from German occupied territory will be seriously impeded. It was apparent that prompt action was necessary to meet this situation. Many of the refugees in southern Italy have been and are being moved to temporary refuges in the territory of other United and friendly nations. However, in view of the number of refugees still in southern Italy, the problem could not be solved unless temporary havens of refuge were found for some of them in still other areas. In view of this most urgent situation it seemed indispensable that the United States in keeping with our heritage and our ideals of liberty and justice take immediate steps to share the responsibility for meeting the problem.

Accordingly, arrangements have been made to bring immediately to this country approximately 1,000 refugees who have fled from their homelands to southern Italy. Such refugees will be placed in a War Refugee Center where, under appropriate security restrictions, they will remain for the duration of the war. These refugees are being brought here outside of the regular immigration procedure, just as prisoners of war have been brought here. Here they will receive the humane treatment which our civilization provides, and here they will be safe. Upon the termination of the war they will be sent back to their homelands.

The refugees, upon their arrival, will be placed in a vacated Army Camp on the Atlantic seaboard. While the War Refugee Board is charged with the overall responsibility for this project, the Army will take the necessary security precautions and the actual administration of the camp will be in the hands of the War Relocation Authority.

With the cooperation of the United Nations, we are determined to insure that these and other refugees from death may live again on their own soil. To this end the principal United Nations involved have already pledged that each of them will receive after the war its nationals who have fled for their lives and have been given asylum in other countries. These nations have also made it a part of their settled policy to insure such conditions in enemy and enemy occupied countries as will permit all persons who have been forced to flee from these countries to return. These humane principles already have the support of the United States, Great Britain, the Soviet Union, Luxembourg, Yugoslavia, Norway, The French Committee, Greece, Belgium, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and the Netherlands.

It is my hope that other interested nations will also expand their already existing programs of asylum. In this way we shall have a plan and a program that will represent the triumph of the forces of decency in a war-torn world.

I am convinced that the emergency action which has been taken will be possible the saving of additional lives. I am also convinced that such action will effectively contribute to the successful prosecution of the war by inspiring in the minds of all oppressed peoples a conviction of the sincerity and effectiveness of a democracy.

It is indeed fitting that this great Nation, which by the very nature of its conception has always been a refuge for the fugitive from justice, oppression and persecution, should now furnish to those whose very lives are threatened by Hitler the sanctuary and asylum which since biblical times have been afforded the defenseless by civilized peoples.
PROPOSED CABLE FROM THE PRESIDENT TO ROBERT MURPHY

Information available to me indicates that there are real possibilities of saving human lives by bringing more refugees through Yugoslavia to southern Italy. I am also informed that the escape of refugees by this route has from time to time been greatly impeded because the facilities in southern Italy for refugees have been overtaxed. I am advised that this is the situation at the present moment and that accordingly possibilities of increasing the flow of refugees to Italy are being lost.

Accordingly, I have decided that approximately 1,000 refugees should be immediately brought from Italy to this country, to be placed in a War Refugee Center where, under appropriate security restrictions, they will remain for the duration of the war. These refugees will be brought into this country outside of the regular immigration procedure just as civilian internees of Latin American countries and prisoners of war have been brought here. The War Refugee Center will be well equipped to take good care of these people. It is contemplated that at the end of the war they will be returned to their homelands.

In my opinion it is important that the United States indicate in this way that it is ready to share the burden of caring for refugees during the war.

Arrangements are now being made here to make available one of a number of vacant Army camps in which these refugees will be placed upon their arrival. You may assume that we will be ready to receive these refugees when they arrive. I will appreciate it therefore if you will arrange for the departure to the United States as rapidly as possible, consistent with military requirements, of approximately 1,000 refugees in southern Italy. You may call upon representatives of the War Refugee Board in Algiers to assist you in this matter. The full cooperation of our military and naval authorities should be enlisted in effecting the prompt removal and transportation of the refugees.

In choosing the refugees to be brought to the United States, please bear in mind that to the extent possible these refugees should be selected for whom other havens of refuge are not immediately available. I should however like the group to include a reasonable proportion of various categories of persecuted minorities who have fled to Italy, bearing in mind my wish for speedy action.

I understand that consideration is being given to moving 750 refugees in southern Italy to Camp Lyautey at Fedhala. In view of the fact that the facilities of this camp are limited and that to the extent that Camp Lyautey is filled with refugees from Italy it will diminish the number of refugees who can be brought from Spain, it seems desirable to meet the pressing problem in Italy by using havens of refuge other than Camp Lyautey. Accordingly, you should consider carefully the desirability of including part of these 750 refugees in the group which is to be brought to the United States.

You should also bear in mind that since these refugees are to be placed in a War Refugee Center in the United States under appropriate security restrictions, the procedure for the selection of the refugees and arrangements for bringing them here should be as simple and expeditious as possible, uncomplicated by any of the usual formalities involved in admitting people to the United States under the immigration laws.

I intend to send a message to Congress informing them of this action.

If you encounter any difficulties in arranging for the prompt departure of these refugees please let me know.
MEMORANDUM FOR: Secretary of War
Secretary of Navy
Secretary of Interior
Director of Budget
Executive Director of War Refugees Board

There is attached a cable which I have dispatched to Robert Murphy in Algiers, requesting that he make arrangements for the departure to the United States as rapidly as possible of approximately 1,000 refugees now in southern Italy.

These refugees will be brought into this country outside of the regular immigration procedure and placed in a vacant Army camp on the Atlantic seaboard. While the War Refugee Board is charged with the overall responsibility for this project, it is my desire that the Army take the necessary security precautions so that these refugees will remain in the camp and that the actual administration of the camp be in the hands of the War Refugee Authority.

Accordingly, the following steps should be taken as expeditiously as possible:

(1) The War Department and the Navy Department should send whatever instructions are necessary to the military authorities in Italy and North Africa to expedite the transportation of these refugees to the United States.

(2) The War Department should arrange to furnish and properly equip an unused Army camp on the Atlantic seaboard to receive these refugees; should arrange for their transportation from the port of arrival to the camp; and should arrange for the necessary security precautions.

(3) The War Refugee Authority should make arrangements to handle the actual administration of the camp, which will be designated as a War Refugee Center.

(4) The Bureau of the Budget should make arrangements for financing the project, using any available funds of the War Department, the War Refugee Authority and the War Refugee Board to the extent possible, and if necessary drawing upon the President's Emergency Fund.

HOLDING COMPANY REGULATIONS

Present: Mr. O'Connell

MR. O'CONNELL: Good morning.

The thing I wanted to speak to you about particularly was that Wright Patman called me this morning and wanted to know how we stood on bank holding company regulations. He had been dealing with the General Counsel of the Federal Reserve Board, and he apparently has agreed with them to introduce the bill that the Federal Reserve Board has been working on for the past six months or more. I think you and Dan talked about it a little while ago.

H.M.JR: Do you know about it?

MR. O'CONNELL: Yes.

H.M.JR: Go ahead.

MR. O'CONNELL: Well, anyway, the bill, as I understand it—I haven't seen the most recent draft. Patman is going to give me a copy of it today. I think the bill, while it is very complicated, only goes so far as to freeze the existing situation, you recall, that we were always in favor of.

H.M.JR: When are you going up on the Hill?

MR. O'CONNELL: He asked me to have lunch with him today.

H.M.JR: I had better see you after the next meeting.

MR. O'CONNELL: Dan Bell isn't here. It isn't necessary that you do anything. I just wanted you to know that Patman is planning to do this and wants me to have lunch with him. He may not discuss it particularly.

H.M. JR: Gee whiz, I can't take a position on that. Can't you say that you haven't had a chance to discuss it with me?

MR. O'CONNELL: Oh, surely.

H.M. JR: I would want to have Dan sit in on that.

MR. O'CONNELL: I think he merely wanted to put us on notice.

H.M. JR: Is he going to freeze it?

MR. O'CONNELL: It is a bill which will freeze the existing situation in the holding company field, and we always were for a death sentence.

H.M. JR: This is bad, because what it does is, it is a beautiful thing for Eccles' banks in Idaho and Utah, because it freezes the situation for them forever.

MR. O'CONNELL: And keeps everybody else out.

H.M. JR: That is no good.

MR. O'CONNELL: I told Patman; I pointed out what the President had said in his message in '38 on holding companies. He said he was familiar with that and this bill didn't go as far as he would like to go, but he would talk to us about it after he had introduced it.

H.M. JR: He promised?

MR. O'CONNELL: He told me he had promised that he would introduce the bill.

H.M. JR: Couldn't he kind of stall on it?

MR. O'CONNELL: I might suggest it to him.
H.M. JR: Why don't you tell him to stall on it until after the recess so we can all have a look at it? Why not tell him this is bad? My God, the people can say, "This is giving a charter in perpetuity to the Eccles family."

MR. O'CONNELL: I would like to be able to talk quite frankly to him.

H.M. JR: That is all right. It is terrible. We can't sit here and—hell, he ought not go off the deep end like that. Eccles has his nerve. I never thought he would have the nerve to do it.

MR. O'CONNELL: All right, I will tell him.

H.M. JR: It is bad business.

MR. O'CONNELL: I know it. I haven't seen the most recent draft.

H.M. JR: Stall on the damn thing until after the recess.

MR. O'CONNELL: All right.

H.M. JR: It has bad political implications.

MR. O'CONNELL: I think it would be better not to have anything other than that.

H.M. JR: He had better not start it. I have told the ABA I didn't want to start anything, but if somebody started something like Eccles, I would have to go out and fight. Tell him another thing, the banks are doing swell. This will get the banks all excited.

MR. O'CONNELL: I have to talk to him about banks, too.

H.M. JR: The banks will get all excited, and they will stop selling bonds and put their minds on this thing. Tell him--

MR. O'CONNELL: O.K.
A couple of months ago he asked us for some information about legislation that has been helpful to the banks and the ways the Government has helped the banks in the last ten years, and Dan wanted me to go down and talk him out of the use to which he presumably is going to put it. I think he wants to use it to go after the banks.

H.M.JR: Tell him the banks are doing fine on the war bonds and to leave them alone. This will just start a whole fight. O.K.?

MR. O'CONNELL: Yes.

There is a memorandum here that I would ordinarily have sent in to you, but it is a memorandum they wrote to send to General Marshall in connection with the South American situation. I wasn't anxious to initial it, because I thought recent developments might--

H.M.JR: O.K., I will take care of it. See if you can't get him to stall on it.

MR. O'CONNELL: O.K.
MONETARY CONFERENCE DELEGATES

Present: Mr. White

MR. WHITE: Good morning.

H.M.JR: Good morning.

MR. WHITE: We had a meeting yesterday, and we made some tentative decisions. We agreed on this draft for the invitation. (Hands the Secretary "Draft of Cable from the President to the Prime Minister," attached)

H.M.JR: All right.

MR. WHITE: That draft has been cleared by the State Department.

Here is a draft that we think is the sort of thing the President ought to send you. (Hands the Secretary "Draft of Letter from the President Appointing Secretary Morgenthau as Head of the American Delegation," attached)

H.M.JR: That is all right.

Wait until it is cleared with the State Department.

MR. WHITE: Here is another one we assume will be sent to the other delegates. (Hands the Secretary "Draft of Letter from the President Appointing other Delegates," attached) We have only cleared the first one.

H.M.JR: What other delegates?

MR. WHITE: Whatever delegates there are. There is a different one that goes to you than the one that goes to them. What we are trying to do is to make your decision on the delegates be final, that is, it isn't a question of voting—they will be in a sense assisting you. It is not a question of the delegates voting on this, that, and the other thing—they need your agreement; in other words, to increase the discipline of the group. And I think—they have those instructions. It is indicated that you would have that authority to be spokesman.

We discussed the delegates. On the Congressional delegates we thought, after a great deal of discussion, that the choices might be, in the Senate, Senator Wagner and Senator Vandenberg. Senator Wagner—we would like a more effective person, but you can’t pass him by. He will do whatever he is asked, though there is a possibility that he might not accept because he is on the committee for drafting the program for the Democratic Convention. If he doesn’t accept, we thought that Senator George, provided you had Senator George’s prior acquiescence to the principles which we were uncertain of. He is a good man if he is with you, and a very dangerous man if he is against you. But if Senator Wagner accepts, it would avoid that difficulty.

Vandenberg, we thought, as among the choices of the top men, would be the best, because in the first place, his relations with you have been nice, and in the second place, he is more of a gentleman and seems to be inclined to favor the Fund, if not the Bank.

What the second choice would be, we don’t know. We did think we could go to the Republicans and pick somebody we know who would be favorable and not way down the line.

The thought occurred to me and some of the others—we don’t know whether we need a Republican. We may need only two.

H.M.JR: No, you need a Republican, definitely.

MR. WHITE: He was the one we thought about.

In the House we have Congressman Spence, Chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee.
H.M.JR: He is a scintillating number!

MR. WHITE: Very. But I don't see how you can pass him by, either.

Then for the Republicans, we sort of agreed on Wadsworth.

H.M.JR: How did you get to Wadsworth rather than this man we had the other day?

MR. WHITE: This fellow Wolcott will be against it strongly. He is voting against UNRRA. He is quite political, very able, and very shrewd. He is on the same committee with Spence.

Wadsworth is on the Foreign Relations Committee, and might be a little more favorable. The assumption is that they would both have to be asked whether they would go along before you take them on, because you can't have a man in there who doesn't agree with the principles. You may have some other thought, but we weren't very happy about that. We thought of Vorys, who is a possibility.

H.M.JR: That isn't Jerry?

MR. WHITE: No, this is Vorys of Ohio, who is an able fellow, but also very political. We thought that Wadsworth might be a little less political because of his prestige and status, which are so high. I didn't know your relations with him.

H.M.JR: I don't know him well, but all my relations have been all right.

MR. WHITE: Well, we thought that we could submit, if you approved of those names, a note to the President saying that this is a suggestion.

H.M.JR: Let me get the thing cleared. I ought to see him in person again.

MR. WHITE: I think so. If you get a delegate who can make so much trouble for you in the conference, we can't afford to have a slip there. I would rather have a nincompoop or somebody the Republicans don’t like, it seems to me, and fight the issue afterwards, after you have agreement of all the nations and you present them with a definite proposal, than have somebody on the committee who is going to be—

H.M.JR: I think you and I and Acheson should see the President.

MR. WHITE: Now with respect to the banker, they were strong for the banker. Dean Acheson is, and the reasons are not too good. I mean, they seem good, but actually I am a little suspicious of the motives. However we felt that to have a wrong banker would be the worst thing. And there are no good ones, with the possible exception of the one which you mentioned, which I don’t know. If you could get that fellow, Brown, and if he would go along, that would be fine. But if we can’t get somebody who goes along, we are much better off without anybody.

H.M.JR: Ned Brown. If he tells you he will, he will. He is a very high-principled person.

MR. WHITE: Would you have to speak to the President before you sounded him out?

H.M.JR: Yes, I have to see him first.

MR. white: Well, he is the only one we could think of.

Now, we have a couple of vice presidents of Federal Reserve Banks whom we will suggest as advisors, because there is a group of advisors in addition to the delegates. Those fellows will be all right, as I know them. But the only banker then you will have—and I think he is quite adequate—is Eccles. But Eccles really should accept, because if we don’t have him on the bank, we have to have somebody to carry on. At what point you would want to talk to Eccles—

H.M.JR: The President will come first.
MR. WHITE: Then you don't want to speak about the delegates to any of these people?

H.M.JR: No.

MR. WHITE: Then there was a question of a woman on the delegation. Mrs. Roosevelt is strong for it, and others are strong for it. Do you know any woman?

H.M.JR: You give me the name of some woman. I have had this out with my wife.

MR. WHITE: You know, we have about, I think, thirty, or forty, or fifty letters. You didn't sign them all, but some of them were for your signature, in which they all designated three women. They came from a variety of sources. There must have been a meeting at which there was a resolution passed. These three women, Sarah Comstock, head of the Department of Economics at Mount Holyoke—I don't know her. She has written something about it, but for some reason or other, Pasvolsky says, "No, she has been very bad. She is a very stubborn person."

The other is Mabel Newcomer.

H.M.JR: No, she is taxes. If there were one on taxes, we would have her. She is a very able person in the tax field, knows nothing about this.

MR. WHITE: She has written a little, but doesn't know much.

The third is Miss Dulles, whom we would recommend having as one of the advisors. She works in the State Department.

H.M.JR: Who is she?

MR. WHITE: Eleanor Dulles. She is either the daughter of John Foster Dulles, this international banker—he would be a most unfortunate choice.
H.M.JR: At UNRRA they had women as advisors and observers, which satisfied the women.

MR. WHITE: It did?

H.M.JR: But if there was any outstanding woman in banking, I would say yes. I told this to my wife, and my wife, who is very pro-feminine on these things and feels the way Mrs. Roosevelt does about it, said, "If you just had what they did in UNRRA, had them as observers and advisors--""

MR. WHITE: We could give them two. Well, that settles that.

H.M.JR: I like Mabel Newcomer, but I don't know whether she knows anything about this.

MR. WHITE: It doesn't matter.

H.M.JR: Aren't there any women who know anything about this thing?

MR. WHITE: Very few women know the field. There are younger women who are not known. We have a couple, but none that have any--

H.M.JR: Nobody on the West Coast?

MR. WHITE: Mabel Newcomer, Eleanor Dulles, and Sarah Comstock are the ones who are well-known in the field. You could put all three of them on as advisors.

H.M.JR: It was unfortunate, this slip in the publicity, wasn't it?

MR. WHITE: Morris Bernstein tells me this may have happened, that when they were working on the drafts of these letters--and I had some other conferences and told them--they were working in Fred Smith's office, and he said there were some reporters outside Fred Smith's office, and he thinks they may have overheard something.
H.M.JR: They said Fred inadvertently told it to these reporters. Has it hurt any?

MR. WHITE: No. The only ones whom it would bother would be people abroad. We are saying that there has been no definite date set.

H.M.JR: Are you all right for the moment?

MR. WHITE: Then the delegates—there is one more point—on the place, Provincetown, I spoke to John Sullivan, and he is moving heaven and earth to take care of it.

H.M.JR: Provincetown?

MR. WHITE: Portsmouth, I beg your pardon—it is within fifteen or twenty miles of his place. He is getting the head of the hotel down there—they have several hundred rooms. And there is another place four or five miles away. That is the place the President mentioned, isn't it?

H.M.JR: Yes, that is where the Russian–Japanese conference was.

MR. WHITE: Now, the only other point is the holding up of the delegates, which you will take care of as the next move.

Then the only other question, which you answered, but which I wanted to make sure of is, you are not going to talk to Eccles or Jones at this stage.

H.M.JR: No, because if you look up that dispatch, we distinctly told the President that we would consult him, and he came back and said, "I want to be consulted in advance." You look.

MR. WHITE: I will look it up. Well, that is all that has gone forward on this.

We have notified the Russians and the British that it will be sometime in July, and we will notify the Chinese. We got Smith and—
DRAFT OF CABLE FROM THE PRESIDENT TO THE PRIME MINISTER

The publication of the Joint Statement of technical experts recommending the establishment of an International Monetary Fund and setting forth the principles for such a Fund has been deeply gratifying to this Government as marking an important step toward post-war international economic cooperation. Undoubtedly your Excellency and the people of your country have been equally pleased by this evidence of the common desire of the United Nations and the nations associated with them to cooperate in meeting the economic problems of the post-war world.

I now cordially invite your Excellency to send one or more delegates to participate in a formal monetary and financial conference of the United and the nations associated with them to be held in the U. S., beginning July 6, 1944. I am pleased to inform your Excellency that the delegation of the United States to the conference will be headed by the Secretary of the Treasury. I would be grateful if your Excellency, in the event of accepting the invitation, would kindly let me know as soon as possible the names of all members of the delegation of your Excellency’s Government.
The purpose of this conference is the formulation of definite proposals for an International Monetary Fund and possibly a Bank for Reconstruction and Development suitable for presentation to their respective governments. It should be understood that the proposals formulated at the conference would not be binding upon the governments represented but would be referred to the respective governments for adoption or rejection.

Because of my belief that the formulation of definite proposals for an International Monetary Fund and a Bank for Reconstruction and Development in the near future is a matter of vital concern to the Governments of all the United and Associated Nations, I am hoping to have your favorable reply at the earliest possible moment.

With the expression of my warm regard, believe me, my dear Mr. Prime Minister, DRAFT OF LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT APPOINTING OTHER DELEGATES

My dear Mr. __________:

I am pleased to inform you that I have appointed you a member of the American Delegation, headed by Secretary Morgenthau, which will participate in the monetary and financial conference of the United and Associated Nations to be held at __________, beginning July 6, 1944. A complete list of this Government's Delegation is enclosed herewith.

It is my hope that this conference will formulate for presentation to the participating governments definite proposals for an International Monetary Fund and possibly a Bank for Reconstruction and Development. In the invitation which I extended to these governments to participate in the conference, I stated that the agreement by the conference upon definite proposals will not be binding either morally or legally on the governments represented but will be referred to the respective governments for adoption or rejection. The American Delegation will, of course, be governed accordingly in its discussions and negotiations.

In formulating a definite proposal for an International Monetary Fund, both you and the other delegates will be expected to adhere to the letter and the spirit of the joint statement.
of principles for an International Monetary Fund announced April 21, 1944. I have, however, authorized Secretary Morgenthau, as head of the delegation, after consultation with the other delegates, to agree to modifications which, in his opinion, are essential to the effectuation of an agreement and provided that such modifications do not fundamentally alter the principles set forth in the joint statement.

The American Delegation will apply the same principles in its discussions and negotiations with respect to the proposed Bank for Reconstruction and Development except that it will be governed by the principles agreed upon by the American Technical Committee on __________, 1944.

I have instructed Secretary Morgenthau, as the head of the American Delegation to the conference, to act as the principal spokesman for this country and to coordinate the activities and views of the other American delegates.

The responsibility which you, as a member of the American Delegation, will undertake is the responsibility for demonstrating to the world that international post-war cooperation is possible. I am confident that you will do your best to accomplish the purposes of the conference.

Sincerely,

Hello.

Mr. Gamble.

Hello, Mr. Secretary.

Ted.

Yes, sir.

Ted.

Yes, sir.

Ted, I got a letter from Bob Hannagan.

Yes.

He's writing me -- he says, "I'm wondering whether you have yet had an opportunity to discuss with Mr. Gamble the matter about which I wrote you on April..."

Yes.

"... twenty-second."

I got the report on it this morning and I'm writing you a memo so that you can send it to Hannagan, because this fellow Roy Vorse has done a good job and we have a Chairman up there named Major Gregory and our Chair -- I sent our Chairman in Pennsylvania out to check on this and he says it's just going to raise cane with them if we try to do anything with this fellow at this stage of the game.

You wouldn't want to try to argue with Hannegan direct?

Yes, sir. I know Hannegan. I'll be delighted to talk to him.

Would you? It would save me a little trouble.

It will save your having to correspond on it and save me writing the memo. I'll call him right now.
HMJr:  I thank you.
G:    Fine. All right, sir.
HMJr:  Bye.
G:    Bye.

Dear Mr. Secretary:

I have your letter of May 18th asking me to participate in the opening broadcast of the Fifth War Loan Drive. As you know, I have participated in former bond drives both by radio broadcasts and published statements. No one more that I realize the vital necessity for the successes of these drives and ordinarily I would be glad to do anything that would contribute materially to their success. However, in view of the military plans for the next few months which call for the most intensive operations on all of our fronts, I wish to avoid public statements as well as appearances.

Confidentially, I expect during the summer that demands will be made upon the staff here in Washington, as well as the field commanders, such as we have never experienced before. In view of this, and the tremendous responsibility involved, I must ask you to excuse me from participating in the drive.

I trust you understand my position and hope you will not interpret it as a lack of interest in the tremendously important work of the Treasury Department.

Faithfully yours,

The Honorable,

The Secretary of the Treasury.

My dear Mr. Secretary:

This is to thank you for your gracious letter and for the great opportunity your confidence offers me. I'm working night and day on the script for the first broadcast and, of course, the organization job is time-consuming as well. But I'll be in Washington with something on paper for your consideration in the shortest order possible.

My dear General Somervell:

I am very much interested in the "Outline For Victory" and the "SOP" which you sent. It looks as though you have the job well organized.

I am sending the books along to the War Finance Committee because there may be an idea in them that we would do well to adopt for our own purposes.

Dear Mr. Morgenthau:

It is believed that it will be of interest to you to learn of the arrangements which are being made for handling the War Bond drives in the Army Service Forces. A great deal of interest is being displayed in these drives, not only in my headquarters here in Washington, but also throughout the Army Service Forces organization which covers the entire United States. We propose to handle the War Bond drives through our decentralized Service Command organization.

For your information, there is inclosed herewith, a small pamphlet entitled "Outline for Victory, Service Command War Bond Council, Army Service Forces", which was prepared for the guidance of the War Bond officers, and a pamphlet entitled "SOP (Standard Operating Procedures), Service Command War Bond Council", which outlines standard operating procedures, which we believe will insure uniformity in organization, training, promotion, reporting, and which will produce increased sales of bonds throughout the Army Service Forces.

We anticipate that the results attained in the next War Bond drive will be very gratifying.

With kindest regards and best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

A synthetic drug was invented by two employees of the Public Health Service while that activity was a part of the Treasury. An application for a patent was filed. Thereafter, the Public Health Service was transferred to the Federal Security Agency. Later, as a result of the application, patent No. 2,234,981 was issued to the Government of the United States as represented by the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Abbott Laboratories has a non-exclusive license under the patent. The license was granted, upon the recommendation of the Department of Justice, in settlement of interference proceedings which developed during the pendency of the application. Abbott Laboratories has requested a modification of the existing license arrangement.

The Department of Justice and the Federal Security Agency concur in my opinion that:

First: The administration of this patent is not among the duties and responsibilities of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Second: The nomination of the Secretary of the Treasury as representative of the Government in the application and in the letters patent is to be construed as amended by Reorganization Plan No. I, which transferred the Public Health Service to the Federal Security Agency.

Third: The records in the Patent Office should be amended to show the Federal Security Administrator rather than the Secretary of the Treasury as representative of the Government.
Fourth: The amendment can be accomplished by completing and filing the attached form captioned "Confirmation of Transfer of Authority".

When the Patent Office records are amended accordingly, the Federal Security Administrator will be in a position to make such an arrangement with Abbott Laboratories as may be deemed feasible and proper. I, therefore, recommend that you sign the attached form.

WHEREAS, by assignment from the applicants to the Government of the United States executed and acknowledged January 19, 1938, and recorded in Transfers of Patents at Liber S-173, page 36, on January 27, 1938, the administration and control of the patent on behalf of the United States was reposed in the Secretary of the Treasury, and

Dear Mr. van den Brook:

This will acknowledge your letter of April 18, 1944, confirming that the exchange rate between the Netherlands guilder and the British pound sterling to apply from the day of the entry of Allied troops into the Netherlands has been fixed at 10.691 guilders to 1 pound sterling.

On the basis of this rate the exchange rate between the Netherlands guilder and the American dollar will be 2.6596 guilders to the dollar or approximately 57.71/8 United States cents to the guilder at a crossrate of 4.055 to 1 pound sterling. I have noted your statement that your Government would have to reconsider this exchange rate for the Netherlands guilder if a long time elapsed before the landing of the Allied troops or in the event of a marked deterioration in the economic situation of the Netherlands before the landing.

18th April, 1940.

Dear Mr. Morgenthau,

I have pleasure in informing you that the Netherlands Government have decided to fix the exchange parity of the Netherlands guilder as from the day of the entry of the Allied troops into the Netherlands at £1. 0. 0 = 10,691 guilders.

As you are aware, some time ago the Belgian and Netherlands Governments concluded a monetary agreement. In conformity with this agreement, the exchange parity between the Belgian franc and the guilder is 1.00 Belgian franc = 0.0635 guilder, which works out at an exchange parity of 176.625 Belgian francs to the £.

It goes without saying that if a very long time elapsed between now and the landing of the Allied troops, or if the volume of quite unforeseen destructions wrought in the Netherlands before the landing were so much beyond expectations that it would have a marked detrimental effect on the economic situation of our country, my Government would have to reconsider such a parity.

SITUATION IN HUNGARY

According to a communication from the American Consulate General in Istanbul, representatives of Jewish refugee organizations there report that reliable evidence is available to indicate that the extermination of Jews in Hungary along Polish patterns will begin in the near future. Certain suggestions advanced by these organizations in an effort to halt such extermination have been forwarded to us by the Consulate and are now under study.

In a cable from the U. S. Embassy in London we have been advised of the substance of a report received by the London office of the Jewish Agency for Palestine from that organization's headquarters in Geneva. This report detailed recent anti-Semitic measures in Hungary and urged a step that we have already undertaken, namely, that an attempt be made to warn the people and officials of Hungary by means of radio broadcasts against receiving confiscated property and against aiding in carrying out comparable decrees.

In pending cables to Madrid, Lisbon, Ankara, Bern, and Stockholm, we are indicating this Government's grave concern over measures looking toward the mass extermination of Jews in Hungary. Our Missions are being asked to request the authorities of the various governments to which they are accredited to obtain as soon as possible detailed information from their missions in Budapest concerning the treatment of Jews in Hungary. We are also asking Tittmann, our representative at the Vatican to approach Vatican authorities with a view to obtaining such information through the Nuncio and clergy in Hungary.
Since the lives of some 800,000 persons in Hungary may well depend on the restraint resulting from the mere presence in that country of the largest possible number of foreign observers, we are also asking our Missions in Madrid, Lisbon, Ankara, Bern and Stockholm to make representations designed to induce the various governments to which they are accredited to take immediate steps to expand their respective diplomatic and consular staffs in Hungary and to distribute such personnel as widely as possible throughout the country. Such diplomatic and consular representatives would, it is hoped, use all means available to them to persuade individuals and officials to desist from further barbarisms.

In another cable to Minister Harrison and Board Representative McClelland in Bern we are asking that the International Red Cross be advised of the persistent reports reaching us with respect to the systematic mass extermination of Jews in Hungary. Harrison and McClelland are being asked to convey to Intercross the urgent hope of this Government that the special delegation previously requested will be sent to Hungary immediately. Failing this, we are asking that Intercross be advised of our conviction that an immediate enlargement of the Intercross delegation in Budapest and throughout Hungary, especially in the localities in which Jews are being concentrated, is an elementary humanitarian obligation of that organization.

SITUATION IN SLOVAKIA

Minister Harrison has advised us from Bern of a report reaching him from Bratislava to the effect that the civil administration of eastern Slovakia has now been placed under the jurisdiction of the Slovak War Minister. This report also indicated that military authorities are deporting Jews from many declared military areas in Slovakia.

RELATIONS WITH OTHER GOVERNMENTS

A. United Nations

1. Belgian Government-in-Exile

According to word received through our Embassy in London, although the Belgian Government-in-Exile has already instructed all Belgian missions to cooperate fully in our refugee rescue and relief operations, the Belgian Foreign Office has indicated that, in response to our recent request, it will communicate again with its Legation at Lisbon in order to insure complete cooperation on the part of the Belgian Convention there in connection with the evacuation to Portugal of refugees from occupied territories.

2. India

In a communication from our Mission in New Delhi it has been suggested that in view of the fact that the Indian Government recently forwarded to us a somewhat guarded statement of its refugee policy, it would be inappropriate at the moment to propose that India now issue a declaration of policy similar to that made by this Government upon the creation of the Board. Instead, it was suggested that inquiry might be made as to whether, in case the liability for 8,000 Poles suggested in the Indian Government’s statement does not materialize, India would be prepared to accommodate a comparable number of other European refugees.

3. China

The Chinese Minister for Foreign Affairs, in response to the approach made by our Embassy in Chungking, has now formally pledged the complete support of the Chinese Government in our efforts to rescue and care for the victims of enemy oppression. Full protection was promised the Jews and other minority peoples of Europe "who have been rendered homeless and wandered to China." Particularly gratifying to the Chinese Government was the mention of rescue and relief for "other victims of enemy persecution," including the victims of Japanese oppression.

E. Neutrals

1. Switzerland

We have received a report from Board Representative McClelland in Bern with respect to his activities there. In addition to urging continued assistance to reliable relief organizations in Switzerland, McClelland suggested that if possible all publicity with respect to the progress made by such organizations be avoided, inasmuch as publicity might compromise the aid which neutral authorities, such as the International Red Cross and Swiss officials might be prepared to lend to rescue and relief operations from Switzerland.
According to McClelland's report, fairly close contacts have now been established with respect to the situation of refugees in France. McClelland indicated that he hopes to forward to us shortly reliable reports on the plight of Jews and other endangered refugees in Hungary and northern Italy, along with suggestions as to possible rescue and relief measures.

2. Portugal

Detailed reports have been received from Board Representative Dexter in Lisbon with respect to the refugee situation in Portugal, including an account of his dealings with the Portuguese representatives of various private rescue and relief agencies. These reports are now being studied by the Board.

3. Sweden

In response to the report from Board Representative Olsen in Stockholm indicating a sympathetic attitude toward the Jewish situation on the part of the new Bulgarian Minister to Stockholm, we are forwarding a detailed account of the manner in which Board Representative Hirschmann in Ankara handled a similar situation with respect to both the Romanian and Bulgarian Ministers to Turkey.

A direct approach by Olsen to the Bulgarian Minister in Stockholm is proposed, along the lines of Hirschmann's interview with the Bulgarian Minister in Ankara. We are suggesting that in such an interview it could be pointed out that Bulgaria's failure to reply to the telegram and memorandum sent by the Bulgarian Minister in Ankara, as a result of the Hirschmann interview, has created an unfavorable impression on this Government. It is being suggested that the Bulgarian Government again be warned that such action will be taken into account in the final reckoning, for it is indicative that Bulgaria has not yet determined to turn its back on the Nazi ideology of race and minority persecution.

We are also asking that the possibility of an orderly evacuation of refugees from Bulgaria to Turkey, by land and by sea, be thoroughly canvassed.
In another communication to Stockholm we are indicating that the matter of financing activities of the two Swedish relief committees reportedly in need of funds has been discussed with several American organizations. Olsen is being advised of the feeling here that relief and rescue activities with respect to refugees in Rumania, Slovakia, Hungary and southern France can most effectively be handled from Switzerland, to which large sums are already being remitted regularly from this country. We are indicating, however, that certain American organizations are interested in the possibilities of accelerating rescue and relief work from Sweden in Poland and the Baltic area, and that funds will be available from these groups for such activities. Olsen is being asked to report on the possibilities and the amount needed in this connection.

Reports have been received from two private organizations in Sweden, through Olsen in Stockholm, with respect to the situation of Jews in Sweden and with respect to the position of stateless refugees in that country.

Even before the war began, Sweden is said to have supplied refuge for some 3,000 Jewish refugees. In 1942 nearly half of Norway's 1500 Jews are reported to have reached Sweden, the balance having been deported to Germany. In 1943 thousands of Danish Jews arrived.

Conditions in Sweden are said to make it possible for many refugees to obtain employment. Although the Jewish population has trebled in the past few years, little anti-Semitism is reported. The Swedish Government is described as having "constantly shown great understanding and given extensive cooperation" to private Jewish relief societies. Many non-Jewish organizations are also said to have been of great assistance.

RESCUE AND RELIEF PROJECTS

A. United Yugoslav Relief

The International Red Cross has proposed that relief be provided for some 1200 Jews interned in three camps in Yugoslavia. Intercross plans to distribute two food parcels per internee per month. Negotiations in Portugal as to price and types of products have already begun and are expected to be concluded by an Intercessor representative on the spot. Distribution is to be made through the Jewish community of Zabreg, which has aided these people to date and which apparently has access to the camps under Intercessor supervision.

United Yugoslav Relief has been asked to finance the sending of these food parcels from Portugal, and we are now endeavoring to work out such arrangements.

B. Evacuation of Abandoned Children from France to Switzerland

We have been advised by Board Representative McClelland that to date, none of the 4,000 U.S. visas recently authorized by this Government have been issued to refugee children in Switzerland. Protracted investigations on the part of the organizations responsible for child refugees in Switser-land, for the purpose of determining eligibility for overseas emigration, are cited as one reason for the delay. In connection with efforts to obtain information as to the whereabouts of each child’s near relatives, one question said to be causing concern is the advisability of certifying for emigration children whose parents have been deported to the east but who cannot at the same time be considered as deceased. It was indicated that in some cases the question therefore arises as to whether it would not be more advisable to plan for a waiting period after the cessation of hostildies, or until it can be determined whether the parents are still alive and in Europe. McClelland indicated that all children unequivocally eligible for emigration to the United States can begin receiving their visas as soon as the investigation of individual cases from this angle is completed.

Approximately 3500 refugee and emigrant children under 16 years of age, who arrived prior to 1944, are reportedly in Switzerland at the present time. McClelland stated that only about 700 to 1,000 of these children, however, can be considered as “abandoned” because of the death, deportation or disappearance of parents, and therefore eligible for part of the 4,000 U.S. visas. About 350 parentless Jewish children under 16 are said to have entered Switzerland clandestinely from France between January 1 and May 4 of this year. Approimately 125 more child refugees are reported to have entered Switzerland with parents or relatives. It is said to be progressively more difficult for rescue organizations to bring children within striking distance of the Swiss border, however, since all movements of persons in France are now strictly controlled. McClelland stated that, for this and other reasons, it is doubtful if the number of children eligible from U. S. visas and able to reach Switzerland by July of this year will reach 600.

Inquiry was made as to whether it would be possible, in view of the small over-all number of refugee and emigrant children now in Switzerland and apparently eligible for U. S. visas, to consider our visas as available to all of them, rather than just to those who have entered the country since January 1.

1. Cuba

In a pending airgram to the U. S. Embassy in Havana, we are advising Ambassador Braden that, in response to his suggestion, we have obtained a commitment from the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee to guarantee the maintenance of 1,000 refugee children who may be admitted to Cuba in accordance with the suggestions we have made to various Latin American countries. Such a program would actually be carried out by the Havana Joint Relief Committee.

2. Dominican Republic

In a cable to the Dominican Republic, we have asked our Mission to convey to the Dominican Foreign Office this Government's sincere appreciation of the Dominican Republic's offer to accept and provide maintenance for from 1,000 to 2,000 refugee children up to 16 years of age. We have also requested that our Mission ascertain whether or not the Dominican Foreign Office has instructed its mission in Bern to notify the Swiss Government of this offer. In the event Switzerland has not formally been notified, we have asked that the Dominican Foreign Office be requested to do so.

3. Ecuador

In a communication from Ecuador it has been indicated that our proposal with respect to guarantying visas for refugee children escaping to Switzerland has now been referred by the Foreign Minister to the Ecuadorian President. A decision on the matter is expected shortly.
2. Chile

In a cable from Santiago we have been advised that the Chilean Foreign Office has likewise reported that consideration is being given to our suggestion that Chile guarantee visas for child refugees reaching Switzerland. A definite reply has been promised as soon as the necessary study can be made.

C. Rescue of Christian Refugees from France

In view of the urgent request of Hugo Cedergren, who conferred with Board Representative Olsen in Stockholm, the American Committee for Christian Refugees has, upon our recommendation, been authorized to send an additional $25,000 to Geneva for rescue work in France.

D. Evacuation to and through Turkey

Ambassador Winant has informed us from London of the receipt by the British Ministry of Economic Warfare of a notice from the Swedes to the effect that the "S.S. Bardalanda" is being withdrawn from Greek relief operations and on May 18 intends to leave Piraeus bound for Lisbon on her way back to Sweden. Winant reported that, because of our expressed interest in the use of the "Bardalanda" for purposes of refugee evacuation in the Black Sea area, acceptance of the Swedish notice is being temporarily withheld by the British. Winant asked that he be advised immediately as to the status of our negotiations with Sweden with respect to the possible use of this ship, in order that the British may act accordingly.

In reply we informed Winant that although we have not yet succeeded in arranging for chartering the "Bardalanda," SW should be urged to withhold acceptance of the sailing notice pending our receipt of a final reply from Stockholm.

In a pending cable to Stockholm we are indicating that if the Swedish Government agrees to charter the "Bardalanda," it would be our intention to have the ship proceed to Istanbul to be fitted with the necessary passenger accommodations. From Istanbul the "Bardalanda" would proceed to Constanza, where there are a large but unknown number of refugees.
available for evacuation. We have indicated our desire to have the "Bardalanda," after embarkation of refugees at Constanza, proceed to Istanbul, where we would accept responsibility for arranging for the passengers' care until such time as they could proceed by rail to Palestine. In this connection we have asked Olsen to forward information as to the number of passengers the "Bardalanda" can carry after being fitted with passenger accommodations.

We are also asking Minister Johnson and Olsen whether they consider it more likely that the German Government would consider favorably a safe-conduct request by the Swedish Red Cross or by Intercross, for a ship chartered to either of these organizations rather than to the Board. If this should prove to be the case, we are indicating that we would agree to reimburse the Swedish Red Cross - or failing in that, Intercross - for all expenses incurred as a result of assuming the charter obligation. Olsen has been asked to conduct the necessary negotiations with the Swedish Red Cross or Intercross. To avoid delay, we are asking that the Swedish Government be requested to approach the German Government immediately for permission to divert the "Bardalanda" and for the necessary safe-conduct.

E. Rescue of Norwegians

Minister Johnson has advised us from Stockholm of further discussions with representatives in Sweden with respect to plans for operations under the Treasury license issued to American Relief for Norway. Certain operations were said to be under way at the present time with the limited funds available, including the provision of medicine, shoes, clothing, and food to persons inside Norway. About 1,000 persons awaiting transportation across the border are reportedly being kept in hiding in Norway. It was indicated that when this "bottleneck" group has been removed, many others can be evacuated.

An initial remittance of $50,000 has been sent to Sweden for these operations. Additional financing has urgently been requested, however, and we are now working on the transfer of such additional funds.
F. Evacuation of Refugees from Finland

Minister Gullion has advised us from Helsinki of Finnish newspaper reports with respect to the evacuation from Finland of the 106 Jewish refugees from central Europe to whom Sweden has, at our request, granted visas. A number of these refugees are reported already to have arrived in Stockholm.

In an interview published in another Helsinki newspaper one prominent Finnish Jew is reported to have stated, in connection with the evacuation of these refugees, that the treatment of Jews in Finland in itself gives no cause for worry. Finland, according to this Jewish spokesman, is the only country fighting with Germany against Russia that has introduced no anti-Jewish laws.

G. Latin American Passports

In a cable to Madrid the State Department has indicated that in the list of nationals of the United States and other American republics approved by the Germans for exchange against a group of 60 Germans from the United States being repatriated on the "Gripsholm," there are included, contrary to previous recommendations, alien relatives of American citizens as well as persons bearing Latin American passports whose nationality has not yet been established. Ambassador Hayes has been advised that authorization for embarkation on the "Gripsholm" is to be granted only to those individuals from the list who are bona fide nationals of the American republics and whose status has been clearly established upon their arrival at Barcelona. With respect to such bona fide nationals and to alien relatives of American citizens, Hayes has been informed that non-immigrant visa requirements for all passengers not in possession of appropriate visas are being waived. After their admission on a temporary basis, those persons coming to this country as immigrants will be admitted as non-immigrants and will be able to arrange later for immigration visas. Admittance is to be granted only in transit to those aliens who are on their way to other destinations in the western hemisphere.

Inasmuch as both Nicaragua and the Dominican Republic have already indicated that admittance will be denied to certain bearers of documentation issued in the name of those two countries, and since authorization has not as yet been granted for the admission of certain individuals to other Latin American countries, the State Department has indicated that authorization for embarkation on the "Gripsholm" of such individuals on the list cannot be granted. Until these particular refugees can be included in a transfer to Camp Lyautey in North Africa, Hayes has been instructed to arrange through David Blockenstaff to provide for their care at our expense.

In another communication to Madrid, now pending at State, we are advising Hayes that instructions received by him in connection with the "Gripsholm" exchange in no way modify our policy with respect to persons holding passports or other documents issued in the names of Latin American countries. Hayes is being informed that all such persons are deemed by this Government to be eligible for exchange, although unquestioned citizens of such countries are considered to be entitled to priority.

1. Colombia

In response to the inquiry from our Embassy in Colombia with respect to certain notes which the Polish Minister there proposed to dispatch, we are indicating our entire sympathy with his proposal that the Governments of Colombia, Venezuela, and Ecuador be asked to issue public declarations of their willingness to accept interned citizens of their respective countries in exchange for German nationals now in Colombia, Venezuela and Ecuador.

Copies of the circular airgrams previously despatched in this connection to other Latin American countries are also being repeated to our Embassy in Colombia for its information and action.

2. Costa Rica

In a cable from our Embassy in San Jose we have been notified the Costa Rican Government has now formally agreed to uphold the validity of all Costa Rican passports held by persons whose lives may otherwise be in danger. It was indicated that such persons may also be declared eligible for exchange, on the understanding that Costa Rica will not be expected physically to admit them.
3. Cuba

In a proposed airgram to our Embassy in Havana we are indicating our concern over the report that the Cuban Government would be "unable" to extend its protection in the event the German Government challenges the validity of certain of the passports issued in the name of Cuba. We are asking that Ambassador Braden approach the Cuban Government again on this score, as well as with respect to taking the affirmative actions previously requested. Cuban officials are also to be advised that in any exchange negotiations that may be entered into, it is of course understood that unquestioned citizens of Cuba will be considered by this Government as being in a category entitled to priority over others.

4. Ecuador

We have been advised by the U. S. Embassy in Quito that the Ecuadorian Minister for Foreign Affairs has indicated that his government is in full agreement with our proposals with respect to the recognition of Ecuadorian passports held by internees in Axis territory, and with respect to supporting the proposed exchange negotiations. It was reported that Ecuador is sending a telegram to the German Government, through the Swiss Government, requesting that the rights of such persons claiming Ecuadorian nationality be safeguarded. With respect to the proposed exchange negotiations, inquiry was made as to what country would bear the expense of the exchange. Consul Gantebein has reported that he replied it was his understanding that the United States would bear all of the expense insofar as the American republics are concerned.

5. Guatemala

Ambassador Long has advised us that, following a confidential discussion with the Minister for Foreign Affairs, entire agreement was indicated with our policies. Long indicated that the Government of Switzerland, as the protecting power for Guatemalan citizens, would be requested by the Guatemalan Foreign Office to assert the rights granted to interned civilians in conformity with the Geneva Convention.
It was anticipated that this request would be made through our Embassy in Guatemala. The Foreign Office is also said to have indicated that if it should be suspected that any of the passports were incorrect, the Guatemalan Government would maintain its right to cancel or invalidate them, but that it would take such action only after the bearers had reached places of safety. Agreement to the proposed exchange negotiations was on the basis of the understanding that the bearers of such passports who are not desirable as immigrants to Guatemala would not be admitted there.

6. Nicaragua

According to an airgram from our Embassy in Managua, the Nicaraguan Foreign Office has listed certain of its nationals to whom it proposed that priority be granted in the proposed exchange of holders of Latin American documents against German nationals in the western hemisphere. The Nicaraguan Government is also reported to have consented to support the exchange of other internes in occupied Europe, but presumably on the basis of our assurances that these persons will not actually reach Nicaragua.

7. Paraguay

In a pending cable to Ambassador Frost we are indicating our gratification over the informal agreement with our policies recently expressed by the Paraguayan Foreign Minister. We are also asking that efforts be continued to obtain more affirmative action with respect to supporting the proposed exchange negotiations and with respect to inducing Paraguay to request that Germany honor all documents issued in the name of Paraguay.

8. Uruguay

In a cable from Montevideo we have been informed that the Government of Uruguay has expressed its readiness to cooperate fully in passport recognition and in support of the proposed exchange of internes.
H. Reinstatement of Turkish Citizenship to Refugees in France

Ambassador Steinhardt has reported to us the substance of a recent conversation with the Turkish Minister for Foreign Affairs, in which the Turkish Minister was again urged to do everything within his power to stay the deportation from France of Jews claiming Turkish nationality. Although a considerable number of Jews claiming Turkish nationality have already arrived in Turkey, the Turkish Minister stated that their Ambassador's position in dealing with the authorities in Vichy was "none too advantageous," since over 90 percent of the Jews in France claiming Turkish nationality allegedly "have not the remotest claim thereto," their ancestors in many instances having left Turkey many years ago.

I. Recognition of Portuguese Jews in Greece

Minister Norweb has reported from Lisbon that it is difficult, at the moment, to press the Portuguese Government further on the matter of extending recognition to Sephardic Jews in Greece claiming Portuguese citizenship. Norweb has indicated that if all registered Jews are now in Thereisenstadt, as certain reports would indicate, it would be difficult if not dangerous for the Jews themselves if the Portuguese Government were to intervene in behalf of unknown claimants to Portuguese nationality who are now in hiding. It was indicated, however, that efforts to obtain agreement to repatriation in principle would be continued, and that this might apply to claimants in Thereisenstadt, if obtained.

PARAPHRASE OF TELEGRAM RECEIVED

FROM: American Mission, Algiers
TO: Secretary of State, Washington
DATE: May 20, 1944
NUMBER: 1668

CONFIDENTIAL

Following is from Murphy and Smith.

We received the Department's confidential cable to Barcelona dated May 16, No. 33, in badly garbled condition, and it was not decoded and delivered to me until one hour before the GRIPSHOLM sailed on the 19th from Barcelona. The Embassy informed me at the same time that the necessary assurances had been given by the government of Spain that 23 Germans would be held in Spain.

In view of the cable from Ambassador Hayes in Madrid stating that he was strongly opposed to any refugees remaining in Barcelona, and in view of the Department's instructions for the GRIPSHOLM to sail on the 19th upon receipt of appropriate assurances from Spanish Government, no refugees were disembarked from the GRIPSHOLM. The Zwillenberg (Zwillenberg) family and Otto William Strauss and his wife appear to be genuine refugee cases and an attempt is being made through the War Refugee Board representative to have them disembarked at Algiers. We would like to know if the Department approves their disembarkation here. We request an urgent urgent reply.

We are cabling separately information concerning doubtful cases.

Powers to the Department of the Treasury, the Financial Institution

Introduction

The Financial Institution, an agency of the Department of the Treasury, is responsible for managing the financial resources of the government. It oversees the operations of the government's financial institutions, including the Federal Reserve System, the United States Mint, and the Bureau of the Mint. The Financial Institution is also responsible for the collection and disbursement of taxes, the management of the government's financial assets, and the administration of financial policies.

The Financial Institution was established by the Federal Reserve Act of 1913. The act created the Federal Reserve System, which is responsible for the regulation and supervision of the nation's banking system. The act also established the Federal Reserve Board, which is the governing body of the Federal Reserve System.

The Federal Reserve Board is composed of seven members, who are appointed by the President of the United States and confirmed by the Senate. The president of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System is the chairman of the Board.

The Financial Institution is headed by the Director, who is appointed by the President of the United States and confirmed by the Senate. The Director is responsible for the day-to-day operations of the Financial Institution.

The Financial Institution is divided into several divisions, including the Division of Banking Supervision and Regulation, the Division of Risk Management and Analysis, the Division of Monetary and Financial Studies, and the Division of Government Financial Management.

The Division of Banking Supervision and Regulation is responsible for the supervision and regulation of the nation's banking system. The division ensures that banks comply with federal and state laws and regulations, and that they maintain adequate capital and liquidity.

The Division of Risk Management and Analysis is responsible for the identification and management of risks to the Financial Institution, the government, and the financial system as a whole. The division assesses the risks associated with the Financial Institution's operations, and develops strategies to mitigate those risks.

The Division of Monetary and Financial Studies is responsible for conducting research and analysis on monetary and fiscal policy issues. The division provides information and analysis to the Federal Reserve Board and other policymakers, and helps to inform the development of financial policies.

The Division of Government Financial Management is responsible for the management of the government's financial operations. The division oversees the collection and disbursement of taxes, the management of the government's financial assets, and the administration of financial policies.

Impact

The Financial Institution plays a crucial role in the nation's financial system. The division's activities can have a significant impact on the economy, both positively and negatively.

On the positive side, the Financial Institution's activities can help to maintain the stability of the financial system, by ensuring that banks are well-capitalized and well-regulated. This can help to prevent financial crises, and can contribute to economic growth and job creation.

On the negative side, the Financial Institution's activities can also have negative economic effects. For example, if the Financial Institution increases interest rates, this can increase the cost of borrowing for businesses and consumers, which can slow economic growth.

Conclusion

The Financial Institution is a critical component of the nation's financial system. Its activities can have significant economic effects, both positively and negatively. It is important that policymakers understand the Financial Institution's role, and work to ensure that its operations are conducted in a manner that supports economic stability and growth.

AIRBAG TO AMERICAN EMBASSY, HABANA, CUBA

Department and War Refugee Board appreciate information contained in your A-968, and are pleased to learn that the question of validity of passports at issue will not (repeat not) be raised by Cuban authorities during the period of the war.

It is felt, however, that the critical nature of the situation makes it vital that the documents in question be upheld in case their validity is challenged by Germany. Therefore, please urge the Cuban government to take the affirmative actions outlined in Department's A-759 of May 3, and to uphold its attitude in face of possible German challenge.

Department and Board can perceive no (repeat no) way in which these measures would endanger the position of Bearers of regularly acquired documents. Moreover, please advise Cuban officials that in any exchange negotiations that may be entered into, it is of course understood that unquestioned citizens of Cuba will be considered by this Government as being in a category entitled to priority over others.

Your attention is again drawn to the assurances given in Department's circular airgrams of March 31 and April 11 and to stand taken by this Government regarding refugees claiming American citizenship as outlined in circular airgram of May 11.

In view of the imminent danger in which the persons concerned find themselves, you are requested to urge speedy action. Please advise Department of any developments.

A-185, May 20, 9:15 a.m., 1944.

With reference to my airgram No. 148 of April 29, 10 a.m., and the Department's circular airgram No. 135, May 1, 4:40 p.m., I have the honor to report that a Note was drafted by the Paraguayan Foreign Office on May 9 to the Spanish Charge d'Affaires in Asuncion, after repeated inquiries by me, with regard to the fate of the holders in German concentration camps of Paraguayan passports. Unfortunately the Note dealt again with the legal situation created by the existence of those passports more than with the danger in which their holders were found. Accordingly I arranged, through Third Secretary Henderson, to have the Paraguayan Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs redraft the communication so that the latter should consist solely of a firm admonition to the German Government. The former Undersecretary informed me on the 11th that he had sent the Revised Note; and the new Undersecretary stated yesterday in the presence of the Foreign Minister that he had just despatched such a Note over his own signature. Whichever official signed the Note, it seems reasonably certain that a fairly sharp warning has thus been conveyed to Germany; but efforts will be continued to secure an actual copy of the communication.

The Department will have in mind the anxiety of the Foreign Minister to secure a reply regarding the case of the Macke sisters and regarding the possibility of including Dutch nationals in any exchanges of prisoners.

Sir:

I have the honor to report that I have been asked to ascertain the number of refugees now on the Island of Mauritius, and I would therefore greatly appreciate it if you would tell me how many there are and whence they came and what percentage of them are Jewish.

Anything that you may add in regard to the general conditions prevailing in the refugee camps will be appreciated. Has there been any unusual prevalence of disease or malnutrition? and if there are any special needs which we could relieve I should be very glad to have your report, as there are various organizations in the United States that might be able and willing to assist you in supplying such needs.

Thanking you in advance for whatever information you may see fit to give me, I am,

Very respectfully yours,

CABLE TO MINISTER JOHNSON AND OLSEN, STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN, FROM WAR REFUGEE BOARD

Reference your No. 1764 of May 16 concerning Swedish Foreign Office attitude with respect to diverting the BARDALAND for refugee evacuation in the Black Sea area.

It would be the War Refugee Board's intention if the Swedish Government agreed to charter the BARDALAND for refugee evacuation to have the ship proceed to Istanbul to be fitted with the necessary passenger accommodations. From Istanbul, the BARDALAND would proceed to Constantza where there are a large but unknown number of refugees available for evacuation. We feel satisfied that if the BARDALAND puts in at Constantza refugees will be available for as many trips as the ship can make. Meanwhile it would be helpful to know the number of passengers the BARDALAND can carry after being fitted with passenger accommodations. After embarkation of refugees at Constantza the War Refugee Board would desire to have the BARDALAND proceed to Istanbul where the War Refugee Board would accept responsibility for arranging for the passengers' care until such time as they could proceed by rail to Palestine.

If, in your opinion, the German Government is more likely to consider favorably a safe conduct request by the Swedish Red Cross or by Intercross for a ship chartered to either of these organizations rather than to the War Refugee Board, the Board would agree to reimburse the Swedish Red Cross or Intercross for all expenses incurred as a result of assuming the charter obligation. It would seem to the Board that valuable time could be saved if the BARDALAND were chartered to the Swedish Red Cross rather than Intercross as there would be no (repeat no) need to await authorizations from Geneva. In order that there be no (repeat no) delay until the Swedish Red Cross or Intercross agrees to accept the charter of the BARDALAND for refugee evacuation, please request the Swedish Government to make an immediate (repeat immediate) request to the German Government for permission to divert the BARDALAND and also for the necessary safe conduct.

It is assumed that you will conduct the necessary negotiations with the Swedish Red Cross or Intercross. Please advise us how we can aid on this end. It is assumed further that the BARDALAND charter negotiations will be conducted in Sweden. If so, the Board would expect you to act as its representative in the charter negotiations between the Swedish Government and the Swedish Red Cross or Intercross. It is presumed that no charter contract would be entered into between the Swedish Government and the Swedish Red Cross or Intercross without your prior agreement to all details.

The War Refugee Board would agree to assume responsibility for the reasonable charter costs of the BARDALAND from the time that the BARDALAND puts into Istanbul for refitting with passenger accommodations. However, before such an obligation is assumed, the Board would desire some indication that the German Government would be willing to grant a safe conduct.

Please thank the Swedish Government for its sympathetic and cooperative attitude in this humanitarian undertaking.

Meanwhile it would be helpful to know the number of passengers the BARDALAND can carry after being fitted with passenger accommodations. After embarkation of refugees at Constanza the War Refugee Board would desire to have the BARDALAND proceed to Istanbul where the War Refugee Board would accept responsibility for arranging for the passengers' care until such time as they could proceed by rail to Palestine.

If, in your opinion, the German Government is more likely to consider favorably a safe conduct request by the Swedish Red Cross or by Intercross for a ship chartered to either of these organizations rather than to the War Refugee Board, the Board would agree to reimburse the Swedish Red Cross or Intercross for all expenses incurred as a result of assuming the charter obligation. It would seem to the Board that valuable time could be saved if the BARDALAND were chartered to the Swedish Red Cross rather than Intercross as there would be no need to await authorizations from Geneva. In order that there be no delay until the Swedish Red Cross or Intercross agrees to accept the charter of the BARDALAND for refugee evacuation, please request the Swedish Government to make an immediate request to the German Government for permission to divert the BARDALAND and also for the necessary safe conduct. It is assumed that you will conduct the necessary negotiations with the Swedish Red Cross or Intercross. Please advise us how we can aid on this end. It is assumed further that the BARDALAND charter negotiations will be conducted in Sweden. If so, the Board would expect you to act as its representative in the charter negotiations between the Swedish Government and the Swedish Red Cross or Intercross. It is presumed that no charter contract would be entered into between the Swedish Government and the Swedish Red Cross or Intercross without your prior agreement to all details.
The War Refugee Board would agree to assume responsibility for the reasonable charter costs of the BARDALAND from the time that the BARDALAND puts into Istanbul for refitting with passenger accommodations. However, before such an obligation is assumed, the Board would desire some indication that the German Government would be willing to grant a safe conduct.

Please thank the Swedish Government for its sympathetic and cooperative attitude in this humanitarian undertaking.

Riegner transmits the following for attention of World Jewish Congress:

In regard to the evacuation of Jews from Rumania to Turkey, I received information from Filderman Fischer, Bucharest, who welcomed promise of financial participation of World Jewish Congress in evacuation operations now proceeding by various small vessels. Considering that view blocking counter-value until end of war rate would be 50% to 55% less favorable, financing could be accomplished by applying method A (A) of License Y 2116. By applying method A (three), this could be avoided. It is proposed that you place at our disposal 100 up to 150,000 Swiss francs for this purpose at first contribution. The transfer method which should be applied should be specified. By eventually chartering special larger ship by World Jewish Congress, Bucharest especially insists that additional means of transport be made available. It is requested that you contact Barlas at Istanbul in connection with the last point. The amount we can expect from Rumania should be transmitted to us by cable.

The Turks have not refused admission to any Jewish refugees arriving in Turkey from Greek islands or Greece without visas, insofar as I am informed. On the contrary, thus far the Turk authorities have promptly provided transportation from Izmir to Palestine for those refugees who have reached the soil of Turkey.

In the last paragraph of Department's cable of May 17, no. 440, I am at loss to understand reference to Creteinou, who is Hungarian Minister in Ankara, and to the "release of the 30 detained persons and the granting to them of all possible opportunities to leave Hungary" as it clearly seems from same.

These 30 detained persons were arrested and are being tried in Budapest which is the capital of Hungary and not of Romania. I ask that this be clarified in order that I may take such action in the premises as the Board wishes.

Mrs. Klotz

H.M.JR: Dan?

MR. D.W. BELL: Senator George, I think, is going to try to take up the debt bill today or tomorrow and I understand he has been trying to get Senator Taft to eliminate the amendment, but there is a possibility that McCarran may offer an amendment on the cabaret tax on the floor. He indicated to the Press that George had accepted, but in a serious talk with George he said he would just agree to have it considered. So I don’t know that we will have trouble on that or not. But anyhow, he is going to try to get it through this week. That is all I have.

We lost two Treasury employees over the weekend.

H.M.JR: Are they with the angels?

MR. D.W. BELL: I don’t know about that. I will follow through.

H.M.JR: What happened?

MR. D.W. BELL: One of Joe’s men, Manning, died suddenly.

MR. O’CONNELL: Do you remember Tom Manning who used to be in the General Counsel’s office sometime ago? He died yesterday after a heart attack.
Mrs. KLOTZ: He has had them before.

MR. O'CONNELL: He was forty-three when he died. He had had a coronary attack before.

MR. D.W. BELL: The other man was the head of Bookkeeping and Warrants for a number of years. He hasn't been well for the last five months.

H.M.JR: As a matter of fact, with ninety thousand people, ought not one to die a day?

MR. O'CONNELL: More than that.

MR. HAAS: Depends on the age group.

MR. WHITE: We will figure it up for you.

MR. HAAS: Get the Government Actuary to give you the mortality table.

MR. BLOUGH: He would have to double the mortality table for the strain of Treasury work.

MR. WHITE: The Government Actuary will figure how many should die and we will contact the Republican Party for who should die.

H.M.JR: Anyway, I feel mighty sorry about Tom. He was a red-headed fellow.

MR. O'CONNELL: Yes.

MRS. KLOTZ: Eddie Greenbaum brought him into the Treasury.

H.M.JR: Yes, Tom Manning was a nice fellow. Didn't we send him up to New York?
MR. O'CONNELL: He was there on a very famous customs case back in the old days.

H.M.JR: Looked a bit like Tom Corcoran, didn't he?

MR. D.W. BELL: A little taller.

MR. O'CONNELL: He was Solicitor of Customs, I think. He was Special Assistant down here to the General Counsel until he had his heart attack.

H.M.JR: A very able fellow. Does he have any family?

MR. O'CONNELL: Three children and a wife.

H.M.JR: Will you write a letter, please? (To Mrs. Klotz)

Charlie, any other news?

MR. C.S. BELL: Mr. Hirschmann is to arrive this morning. Mr. Bell has agreed to let him go in his large room up the hall. He will only be here for a week--Ira Hirschmann from Turkey.

H.M.JR: Oh, you mean that Turk.

MR. C.S. BELL: He may be a Turk now!

H.M.JR: You are going to let him do what?

MR. C.S. BELL: Go in Dannie's large room. That is about the only room we have left.

H.M.JR: Did we get the consent of the Turks to let him come back? Is he going back to Turkey?

MR. C.S. BELL: I think he is.

H.M.JR: Then treat him right.
MR. C.S. BELL: Here is a sample draft deferment that you wanted to see.

H.M.JR: Tell me what it is.

MR. C.S. BELL: It is all printed. That is their form. There is nothing for us to do except certify he is in an essential industry and he is over thirty years of age. The other departments are following that same form and simply signing them and sending them out to the draft boards. Then it will be up to the board. In some cases they may defer them, that is, in ninety per cent of them they will. I don't think you will want to see these any more. There will be quite a few of them.

H.M.JR: All right, sir.

MR. C.S. BELL: That is all this morning.

H.M.JR: Harry, I hear New Hampshire has been at work.

MR. WHITE: Successfully?

MR. SULLIVAN: They worked all day yesterday until about half past three. The people came down and they seemed to think it was in pretty good shape.

MR. WHITE: Liable to put New Hampshire on the map yet.

MR. SULLIVAN: Thank you very much.

H.M.JR: A long time between peace conferences.

MR. SULLIVAN: The last one was the Russian-Japanese, I remember.

H.M.JR: Did you know they had an open-air, salt-water pool there?
MR. WHITE: No, I didn't. Is that why the President was interested?

H.M.JR: No, it was Winant that brought it up.

MR. WHITE: I thought it was the President, but I may be mistaken.

H.M.JR: No, wasn't it Winant?

MR. WHITE: I thought it was the President.

H.M.JR: Well, it makes a much better story to say it was the President's suggestion.

MR. WHITE: I am sure it was the President's suggestion.

MR. O'CONNELL: The more you think about it!

H.M.JR: Well, I want to have Charlie Bell get in on this thing, because I don't want to rely on the State Department, see.

MR. WHITE: I quite agree with you on that.

H.M.JR: So, will you declare yourself in on the salt-water pool?

MR. C.S. BELL: All right, sir.

H.M.JR: When are you going to be ready to submit those things to the President. Has the State Department cleared them?

MR. WHITE: Do you want to submit them along with the request?

H.M.JR: Yes.
MR. WHITE: Then, we will get them cleared today. They haven't been cleared yet.

H.M.JR: Let me find out, if I can, what the President is doing.

I thought if we went over and submitted the list to him we could do the whole thing at one time.

MR. WHITE: We will have it ready, then.

I think it would be helpful if you had a meeting with Dean Acheson here, at which time you could indicate that you want Fred Smith to be in charge of the public relations and press, and so forth, and also that you want Charlie Bell to participate in the arrangements with Kelchner who would presumably be in charge. We will also have a list of some other appointments that you would like to have various aspects of. I think that should come from you and it would be helpful if it could come early and more or less officially.

H.M.JR: Do we have to do that? Couldn't we wait until we have an appointment with the President and say, "I want to see you a half hour before that?"

MR. WHITE: Yes, that would be quite satisfactory, because in the meantime, Fred and McDermott will work together, but I think, as you think, Fred should be in charge and you should indicate that.

H.M.JR: I am glad you think that is the way I think.

MR. SMITH: Boys, boys!

MR. WHITE: I don't see how you could think otherwise, Mr. Secretary.
H.M. Jr: I am glad to have adult guidance! I hope.

MR. WHITE: That is all.

H.M. Jr: It is so embarrassing to tell me in front of Smith whom I want in charge.

MR. WHITE: As a matter of fact, I thought that decision had already been made because of the memorandum you sent to me and which Fred and I had discussed and said that was the thing to do. He sent a memorandum to you and you sent it back to me. I presumed you were already familiar with it.

MR. SMITH: Now you're stuck with it. If you had just been a little coy about it.

H.M. Jr: Do you know a game called shuttlecock?

MR. WHITE: There is. It's an old game.

H.M. Jr: How does Smith feel about it?

MR. WHITE: I don't know. I haven't asked him yet.

MR. D.W. BELL: Joint memorandum, wasn't it?

MR. WHITE: There is the question of France with relation to this problem. We want France to be on the preparatory committee, the committee that works on the agenda and the draft. I think that by keeping the thing very informal, we don't raise any issue. It is one of the things—I don't know whether you think it should be taken up with the President. I think it should not be. I don't think he would be particularly concerned and I think we can proceed without any formality, so it would have no status and won't raise any political question. It would be most unfortunate if we raised it with the President and he said no.
H.M.JR: Don't let's raise it.

MR. WHITE: All right.

H.M.JR: Just as long as Acheson knows about it.

MR. WHITE: Well, we'll get Acheson's approval.

H.M.JR: Anything else?

MR. WHITE: That is all.

H.M.JR: Well, now, Roy, do you have to go up on the Hill? Anybody have to go on the Hill? (No reply)

I thought if Paul was in town tomorrow, that you and he and Surry and I might sit down together on various things, post-war stuff, and so on.

MR. BLOUGH: Good.

I don't know if he is in town, but I will find out this morning.

H.M.JR: I'll put down Blough with a question mark and allow a hour. How is that?

MR. BLOUGH: That's good. Do you have a time in mind?

H.M.JR: From three to four.

MR. BLOUGH: The bill has, you know, passed the Senate with seven Senators present, without objection. No vote, no nothing. The bill will probably not be taken up in the House today, because Doughton isn't back yet. There will hardly be a conference because there is nothing to confer about. The House will undoubtedly accept the Senate amendment. Mr. Bell has already mentioned the debt bill. If you can call Senator George without any implications with respect to the debt bill, I think it would be a good idea to thank him for pushing the tax simplification bill through, and so forth.
So far as we know, Senator Taft is going ahead with the pension trust hearing on the 26th. Alvord's shop is trying to get him not to, but as far as we know, he is.

H.M.JR: And that is as a form of a rider?

MR. BLOUGH: No, that will not be hooked onto the debt bill, because they won't really get going. Senator George has indicated that he would try to talk Taft out of trying to put it on the debt bill. I just don't see how they will get it done in time to put it on the debt bill. There are a couple of things coming over. There is probably a cocoanut oil bill coming over, extension of exemption from the import excise.

There is some sugar legislation that will probably have to come over, so there will be something to play with, which may also make it possible to hold off the cabaret tax until that time.

H.M.JR: How about the exemption on apples?

MR. BLOUGH: We have to put a tax on them first.

MR. D. W. BELL: That is an idea.

H.M.JR: Let's drop it!

MR. BLOUGH: Another matter--one of the boys who has been working in our shop the last year and a half won one of the thousand-dollar prizes in this Pabst contest for the best plan to eliminate unemployment in the post-war era. A fellow by the name of Stein over at WPB--is it? who won the first prize of twenty-five thousand dollars.

MR. WHITE: The recommendations were very mediocre--told them what they wanted to hear.

MR. BLOUGH: The fact that anybody won means nothing. MR. WHITE: I would say, probably, it means the plan isn't worth reading.

H.M.JR: One of our boys made it?

MR. BLOUGH: Mordecai Ksekiel came in with a thousand-dollar prize.

MR. D. W. BELL: Out of the seventeen prizes, ten of them were in the Government.
H.M.JR: Only for Government people?

MR. BLOUGH: There were thirty-four thousand entrants from all over the country. The judges were Ruml, Dykstra, Wesley Mitchell, and the screening was done by Columbia University Graduate School. Leon Keyserling, you know, won second prize of ten thousand dollars.

(The Secretary holds a telephone conversation with Senator George)

H.M.JR: There is a different attitude with him and Mr. Bob than there used to be.

MR. SULLIVAN: Very much so. Incidentally, I think Roy was probably going to tell you, but there is a bill introduced over in the Senate to repeal all the taxes on oleo-margarine. That might be the very thing that he would want to throw over to Doughton.

H.M.JR: Right.

Are you all right now?

MR. BLOUGH: I thought while we were on taxes John might want to take up the question of the negotiation of the treaty with South Africa.

MR. SULLIVAN: Yes, I have that right here, Mr. Secretary. The State Department wants our fellows in London to go to South Africa to carry on the same kind of negotiations that they are now carrying on in London. South Africa wants them, too. I have a letter saying that King will be directed to go there from London.

H.M.JR: Roy could meet him in the Azores coming back?

MR. BLOUGH: It looks like that is about what will happen.

H.M.JR: It is a lovely place, the Azores.

MR. BLOUGH: That is all I have.
MR. HAAS: Mr. Secretary, have you noticed the announcement Harrison made, that his company after June 1 would use two and a half percent interest? I think it is a recognition by the insurance companies that two and a half is probably here to stay. They have dropped down from three, I think. There are a couple of other companies that previously had gone to two and three quarters.

H.M.JR: You sent me a memo. If these memos need action, I think you should say so. You thought I ought to talk to New York about the bond market.

MR. HAAS: Yes, Dan and I have talked to Rouse. I think it is important that you talk to them, too, to really impress them. Well, right now I think if the market would rise very slightly and get a little better tone, it would put the Fifth War Loan over better. In addition to that, I think the people in New York, although they may be on their toes, you ought to make sure they are. If something should happen to this invasion, it temporarily should look rather blue, there are potentialities in that that might affect the market. People would start thinking that the debt would be a lot higher than they calculated.

H.M.JR: Are you busy around three-thirty?

MR. D. W. BELL: No.

H.M.JR: Well, Bell and Haas' gang--let's talk about the thing.

If anybody in the room wants anything in the way of action, put "action" on it.

MR. HAAS: I missed that.

H.M.JR: Anyway, three-thirty. There is no press this afternoon, is there?

MR. SMITH: I am to ask you.

H.M.JR: I have nothing this afternoon.
MR. SMITH: Let's make it Thursday. Then Thursday you can talk about the conference.

H.M. JR: We hope! You can't talk about it until you get a clearance from the President on it. I wouldn't promise any. You come in then and bring in Murphy and the boys.

ME. HAAS: Yes, sir.

H.M. JR: Frederik?

MR. SMITH: I have nothing, except that Bruce Barton was in this morning and sends his best regards. He is going to open the Fifth War Loan in Indianapolis. He wanted some stuff.

H.M. JR: Should I worry?

MR. SMITH: No.

H.M. JR: Now this thing from Kafka to Smith. I don't know what is the matter with War Bonds. Why should something come from Kafka to Smith? It should come from Gamble to Smith, but life is so short. I came down this morning with Ted Gamble, and I understood the cables have gone.

MR. SMITH: Those came in Saturday from Kafka to me, with Gamble's initials on the original. I cut out a couple of lines and then retyped them. The original is there, though. (Refers to cables over Mrs. Morgenthau's signature concerning radio broadcasts) They want you to send these to Hull, apparently. You see, I cut out one line and retyped it. Apparently they want you to send it to Hull and have Hull send out these cables to these women.

H.M. JR: He told me this morning they had all gone. I am only repeating.

(The Secretary holds a telephone conversation with Mr. Gamble)
H.M.JR: Have you cleared this with Mrs. Morgenthau?

MR. SMITH: No, it just came over, and they said to give it to you to write a letter.

H.M.JR: Look, will you call Mrs. Morgenthau? He says it has all been cleared with her. She would have told me that.

MR. SMITH: I question a little bit whether you should send a letter to Hull, because this all came out in the paper, you know; and if you have a letter dated a week after it appeared in the paper--

H.M.JR: Ted is in a jam. The normal way is, when the things go out over my signature to Hull and over Hull's signature on them—that is regular formality, isn't it, where he signs all the cables that go out of the State Department? It is just a formality, isn't it?

MR. D. W. BELL: It says, "From the Secretary of the Treasury," but goes out over Hull's signature.

H.M.JR: Call up Mrs. Morgenthau, and just as a matter of curiosity, let me know whether she knows about this, will you?

MR. SMITH: All right.

H.M.JR: I think you are going to find she will get quite excited about it, because she was excited that night we had that show two weeks ago. It had been out all over the United States that they had asked them. Now they get down to asking. But Ted is in a jam. We will have to get him out of it. I am perfectly willing any time this morning to sign the cable.

MR. SMITH: I was wondering if it could be done by phone instead of having a letter?

H.M.JR: No, you have to do it formally, because it will never get to his office. When you get ready and it is all right, give Mrs. Klotz the letter to me to sign. She will call up Mr. Brown or somebody over there.

MRS. KLOTZ: That is what we wondered.

H.M.JR: It has to be a letter. All right otherwise?

MR. SMITH: Yes.

H.M.JR: Some time today will you ask for an appointment? I'd like to see you.

MR. O'CONNELL: Wright Patman has decided not to introduce the Federal Reserve Board bill to regulate holding companies. I didn't tell Dan about it.

H.M.JR: Tell Mr. Bell about my part in it.

MR. O'CONNELL: Patman called Saturday morning and told me he was just about to introduce the bank holding company bill that we had discussed some months back with the Federal Reserve Board. He called me again a little later and asked me to have lunch with him, which gave me a chance to speak to the Secretary about the bill before I went to lunch with him.

Following the Secretary's instructions, I indicated--

H.M.JR: The amazing part about the Secretary was, he had read it and knew all about it. That was the amazing thing.

MR. O'CONNELL: It didn't surprise me a bit! In any event, I got instructions which I rather badly needed. I told Patman that the Secretary would much prefer that the bill not be introduced at all at this time, because he would feel that it would cause difficulties with the banks and also that if it were actively considered he would be forced to take the position that he was not in favor of the bill because it did not go far enough - it didn't have the death sentence, and so forth.

H.M.JR: Wait a minute. And that I had told the ABA that I would be a good boy if nobody started anything; but if they wanted to start something on this thing of the Federal Reserve, I'd have to get in and I wasn't going to sit still and let Mr. Eccles and his family get a charter in perpetuity on the States of Idaho and Utah, and that I'd have to fight; but I wasn't looking for any fights.

Did you tell him that?

MR. O'CONNELL: Not in those words, exactly, but I think I got the idea across.

In any event, he couldn't have been nicer. He said that if the Secretary had any inclination not to want the bill introduced, he certainly wasn't going to introduce it and was going to see if he could stop it from being introduced at this time by anyone else.

He called Dreibelbis, the General Counsel at the Fed, with whom he had been working, and of course Dreibelbis had been working--

H.M.JR: Dreibelbis and "Slobolosky"--I'll never be in Washington long enough to learn to pronounce them!

MR. O'CONNELL: Dreibelbis is a fellow "tax expert"--that is the reason he and Patman get along.

He called me back after lunch and told me he had told Dreibelbis he would not introduce the bill and suggested it would be better not to introduce it at this time, at least until after the recess; it might interfere with the War Bond Drive and get the banks excited, and so forth.

So Patman is continuing to be very friendly with us. I took up the matter that you--

H.M.JR: You might tell the ABA, if it is successful, that I had this thing postponed. It will give me a good mark.

MR. D. W. BELL: Yes.

H.M.JR: That is nice work, Joe.
MR. O'CONNELL: It was surprisingly easy. I didn't have much confidence when I left here, though.

H.M.JR: Of all the gall or stupidity--I think it is more stupidity--for Ecoles to be willing to push a bill which would give his family this permanent franchise in these two States--I just think it is stupidity, not gall. I just can't understand it.

I would. I would talk. I told him that, didn't I? I told the ABA that I would.

MR. D. W. BELL: Sure.

H.M.JR: What else? What did he want?

MR. O'CONNELL: He didn't want a thing, strangely enough. He just wanted to have lunch with me.

H.M.JR: Can I be serious now? I will bet nobody knows about the little note I dictated to you. You got my note?

MR. O'CONNELL: I just got it before I came in.

H.M.JR: Just a little bit of a paragraph that Martin Dies gave out. I wanted Fred to know about this. It was in the Washington News Friday or Saturday, in which he said that at such and such a time in June--and I think we ought to get the full story--that Mr. Dies was going to talk about the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and Members of the Cabinet. He was not going to claim Congressional immunity, and they could sue him for libel if they wanted.

MR. D. W. BELL: I understand he is going to write a book.

H.M.JR: The book was written about him. Did you hear Walter Winchell last night?

MR. D. W. BELL: No.

H.M.JR: The book is about Dies.
Now, the thought that I had was, maybe Patman could find out what that is. Do you see? He would know who was close to Dies on the Hill. And I would also talk with Elmer Irey, because if there is something like that, and he is going to break it in June, I think we ought to try to find out what it is, see?

But I imagine that Walter Winchell must know from the way he talked last night. Ask Elmer if he knows anybody. Wasn't the Chief Counsel for Dies an FBI man? I think it is worth going into, because there are certain things that people who appeared before Dies, who handled himself very badly--he could make it very embarrassing for the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

MR. O'CONNELL: My only hesitancy is, I am not sure enough of any of these Texans to be confident that one of them will tell you even what he knows about another Texan. They are pretty close.

H.M.JR: You have been so successful. No, it is a question of being for or against Roosevelt. I think you could approach Wright Patman.

MR. SULLIVAN: I should think Rayburn would have an interest in that matter, too.

MR. O'CONNELL: We could talk to Patman, where we couldn't talk to Rayburn.

H.M.JR: No, I wouldn't want to do that any more than I would want to call up Jesse Jones and ask him what it is all about. But I am worried about it, not for myself, particularly, because Dies and I--our paths have never crossed. There has never been any conflict between us, but I have a certain something in mind. I wouldn't say it, but anyway, you might keep your ears open, you know. I don't know whether there is any chance of stopping Dies. He is going to get a thousand dollars a night. The only way he can is to raise hell with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

MR. O'CONNELL: That is right.
H.M.JR: But I thought if we could get the copy of the newspaper from where he broke this story—they most likely gave much more to the Washington News; but I don't think it is something you could pass over lightly.

MR. WHITE: Mr. Secretary, I heard something that may be of some help in this. I don't know how much there is in it. I understand that the CIO Political Action group has something on Dies, and that they were going to put it out and as a consequence of what they had, that his withdrawal from the election was the price that he paid for their not coming out with this. I don't know how much there is to this, but I heard it from a pretty good source.

H.M.JR: Could you find out?

MR. WHITE: Yes, I could find out very quickly from some of the boys.

H.M.JR: What I heard was that the CIO had registered more people in his district than there were people who had voted before, who were anti-Dies.

MR. WHITE: That was pretty generally known, but I got this from a source which should be good; it is third or fourth removed.

H.M.JR: It would be tragic if the result of this thing got him to withdraw, and then he vented his spleen on the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and other Members of the Cabinet.

MR. WHITE: I will find out.

H.M.JR: Anyway, will you talk a little bit to Elmer (to O'Connell), and you (White) talk to "Beanie."

MR. O'CONNELL: I have one more matter I would like to take up. It is strange this question never came over here before, but the Bureau sent over a request for a policy decision as to whether a Treasury employee is entitled to be considered as eligible for an informer's fee if he turns in a tax evasion case or the fact involved in it which resulted in a conviction of the tax evasion case. The general practice is that the Commissioner may, and in some cases does pay an informer a fee which may not exceed ten percent of the amount we recover. The regulations and the law preclude a Federal employee connected with the Internal Revenue service from participating in any such transaction. There has never been but one case in which a Treasury employee ever asked that he be considered as eligible for an informer's fee. In that case he was turned down by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, partly because it was far from clear that he supplied the information, but partly because they thought it was bad policy. But we now have a case in which a Procurement Division employee has written to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and wants to know whether, if he develops the fact which he apparently has now in his possession, he will be eligible for an informer's fee. I have a memorandum from the Chief Counsel of the Bureau asking that a policy decision be made as to whether this man, or any other Treasury employee, is eligible for an informer's fee. I feel pretty strongly about it myself.

H.M. Jr: I do, too.

MR. WHITE: He won't inform the Government unless he gets paid. But if he gets paid, he is willing to be an informer.

MR. O'CONNELL: I can read a paragraph of the letter.

H.M. Jr: I know what to do with him. Use a little Russian on him.

MR. O'CONNELL: That case--there isn't any question about this one; in fact, there is none about any of them in my mind. "If an employee of this Division, or any other Division of the Treasury Department, except Revenue, should obtain information during the course of his official duties and secure evidence on his own initiative leading to a tax evasion and fraud case, would such an individual be entitled to consideration in filing for a reward?" This fellow ought to be fired; there is no question. But I was asked to raise the question with respect to a man who would get the information, not in connection with his office duties. It seems to me the results should be exactly the same, but I would like to have a decision.

H.M.JR: I can give you the decision: "Any Treasury employee in or out of his official duties who has any information leading to the assistance of the Treasury proper--the main body of the Treasury--in conducting its duties must turn in that information. If he doesn't he should be fired."

MR. O'CONNELL: It is all right with me; I just wanted to get the rule.

H.M.JR: Signed "Henry Morgenthau, Jr!"

MR. O'CONNELL: That is all I have.

H.M.JR: I would like to know who that bird is.

MR. O'CONNELL: I have his name, that is all. He is Joseph Arrowsmith, Chief of the Administrative and Finance Division of the Procurement Division in Denver, Colorado. I will be glad to look him up a little more for you.

H.M.JR: If he doesn't turn it in, he should be fired.

MR. O'CONNELL: I will see to that, too.

MR. SULLIVAN: They used to have meetings of the collectors to discuss their common problems--Internal Revenue collectors used to have meetings. They haven't had one for eight years. Joe wants to hold one now, and he thought that perhaps in Milwaukee, either before or after the Convention--you see, many of those collectors will be at the convention. I indicated there was a problem there, and I think--

H.M.JR: No, if he wants to have them, let him do as the others, let him have regional meetings, let him have about a dozen regional meetings.
MR. SULLIVAN: You don't need that many. There are only sixty-four collectors.

H.M.JR: Then have four regional meetings.

MR. SULLIVAN: All right, I will suggest that to him.

H.M.JR: I wouldn't have it around Convention time, definitely. Agreed?

MR. SULLIVAN: Yes. I felt if it was to be held anywhere around it would be much better to have it after the convention was all over.

H.M.JR: Anything else?

MR. SULLIVAN: No, that is all I have, sir, except I wanted to make sure you were with us in trying to wipe out all the oleomargarine taxes.

H.M.JR: Why?

MR. SULLIVAN: Why in the world should they impose a tax on the food of the poorest people in the country, people who haven't money enough to buy butter?

H.M.JR: What is the political angle on it, Mr. Sullivan?

MR. SULLIVAN: I am right.

MR. HAAS: The strongest lobby on the Hill is on the other side—the milk people. It is really a tariff.

H.M.JR: I sold my dairy!

MR. SULLIVAN: I think we have a chance, and we ought to take a good lusty swing at it.

H.M.JR: For the thirty-percent tax and against the tax on oleo?

MR. SULLIVAN: That is right.
MR. BLOUGH: I wouldn't go out too far on the tax on oleo. I am opposed to the tax on oleo, but George is right, it is a political steam-roller.

MR. SULLIVAN: It isn't as much of a steam-roller here as it used to be. Miller, Russell, and Ellender are for repeal. If that isn't a packed committee!

H.M.JR: If we have to write a letter, if we have to go on record, then I am "again it."

MR. SULLIVAN: We are going on record.

H.M.JR: Just remember about that tax on apples, now.

MR. SULLIVAN: We should have put that in with the tax on cut flowers and potted plants!
Hello.

Operator: Senator George.
HMJr: Hello.
Senator George: Hello.
HMJr: Henry talking.
G: Yes, Henry, this is Walter George.
HMJr: Walter, I want to congratulate you, the way you got through that tax simplification bill.
G: Well, we got through. Had a little trouble but just unexpected kind of things will happen. We've got a little more trouble on the debt-limit bill but I'll get on to it during the week and hope to iron it out.
HMJr: What is that, Walter?
G: Oh, they want to put on some amendments on the cabaret tax and something on pension trusts.
HMJr: Yeah.
G: Senator Taft, you know, has been worried about that for a long time.
HMJr: Do you think you'll be able to keep off any riders to that bill?
G: Well, I hope so, because I don't think the House people will want to take any riders on that bill.
HMJr: Yeah.
G: But you know how it is. We -- they can't originate the things over here and they just put them on anything.
HMJr: Yeah.
G: And I can't keep them from offering them. I just -- unless I can talk them out of it....
HMJr: Well, you're pretty good at that.
G: Well, I'm going to try it again.

HMJr: Our staff worked all right with your people?

G: Fine, yes, fine, Henry. They're doing fine. Everything's all right.

HMJr: Well, that's -- that's good.

G: Yeah, doing fine, and I am anxious to get this debt-limit bill out.

HMJr: Yeah.

G: Now, I think I'll get over and ask Mr. Bob to bring on some other little old bill of some sort on which they can put these other amendments.

HMJr: I see.

G: Then if we don't like them, why, we can fuss about them for a long time, you know.

HMJr: I see.

G: But we can't -- we can't hold up on the debt limit.

HMJr: That's right.

G: You'll be embarrassed if you don't have that.

HMJr: Yes, sir. I'd like to get it out of the way before the Fifth War Loan.

G: Sure. Sure. I think it might hurt it somewhat if you didn't.

HMJr: I'm sure it would.

G: While, of course, we'll get the debt limit raised, but at the same time I hate to see these riders put into....

HMJr: Yeah.

G: ....into a bill like that.

HMJr: That's right.

G: Yeah.
HMJr: Well, thank you.

G: All right, Henry, I'll keep you advised.

HMJr: If you would.

G: All right.

HMJr: Thank you.

9:57 a.m.

HMJr: I thought you said this morning these cables to these various women ....

Ted Gamble: That is correct.

HMJr: .... had gone.

G: Yes, sir.

HMJr: Well, I've got them on my desk this morning.

G: You've got them on your desk?

HMJr: Sure, from Kafka to Smith ....

G: Well, they must have been held up, Mr. Secretary.

HMJr: .... to me.

G: They should not have been -- you should not have even been bothered with them.

HMJr: Well, Smith brings them in here this morning.

G: Well, I expect we've made it so tough on our people for letting anything escape here that they probably thought with these, maybe, we'd better clear your desk, too.

HMJr: Well, I mean, it just goes to Smith and Smith isn't going to send something to Mr. Hull without taking it up with me.

G: Yes.

HMJr: Now, ....

G: Oh, those are dif -- if this is Mr. Hull -- a wire to Mr. Hull ....

HMJr: What?

G: .... that's another wire.

HMJr: What?

G: If this is a wire to Mr. Hull, that's another wire.
HMJr: No, it's this thing from -- to Madame Molotov, Madame Chiang Kai-shek and Winston Churchill, signed by Mrs. Morgenthau.

G: Yes.

HMJr: Has anybody spoken to her about it?

G: Oh, yes. Mrs. Morgenthau has approved the wire, Mr. Secretary.

HMJr: Well, there is no indication here that she has.

G: Well, she went over it and approved it and even took a copy to Mrs. Roosevelt and asked her about it.

HMJr: Well....

G: I'm sure ....

HMJr: .... anyway, look, in the future, let's get -- try to get this thing straight. Now, there's no sense Kafka sending anything to Smith. It should come from you.

G: Well, those were sent out of my office, Mr. Secretary, with the idea that they were going to be sent from here.

HMJr: Well, the message that I've got on my desk -- Smith's here with me -- it's a memorandum from Kafka to Smith.

G: Yeah.

HMJr: Now, I've got to do it. It always ends up that way.

G: Well, these should not -- you should not have even been bothered with this because after Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Morgenthau cleared them ....

HMJr: How are you going to get the cable sent if I don't ask Hull?

G: Sir?

HMJr: How are you going to get the cable sent?
Well, I presumed that there was enough authority vested in War Finance Division to send it if the people involved had approved it.

Well, evid ....

They may have been ....

Here's Kafka's note:

Yes.

He said, "The three enclosed cables," and suggests -- "I have received from the State Department as follows -- that Secretary Morgenthau address a note to Secretary Hull."

Well, then, maybe they sent them back, Mr. Secretary.

"...in which he would explain the fact that these three ladies have been requested to appear at this broadcast along with Mrs. Morgan -- Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Morgenthau."

Yes, sir. Well, probably what happened, they went there and were sent back and that we didn't carry enough weight to get them through.

Well, this is dated May 18th.

Yes. Well, that's probably what happened.

Frankly, Ted, I don't think they've kept you posted. At least, that's the way it looks.

Yeah, well, that's probably ....

Please check the whole thing once more and find out where it stands in your shop. This is dated May 18th.

Yes.

And then contact Fred on it.

Yes, sir.

Will you do that, please?

Yes, sir. I'll do that.
HMJr: Thank you.
C: All right.
The Story on Mrs. Morgenthau's cables:

(1) Gamble turned them over to Kafka, since it was a radio matter.

(2) Kafka checked with the State Department and found that you should send them directly to Secretary Hull.

(3) He then sent them to me to submit to you.

(4) He had checked them with Mrs. Morgenthau at an earlier date.

(5) I have re-checked them with Mrs. Morgenthau.
Mr. Smith does not think Secy M should write a letter to Secy Hull, in view of fact that there has been publicity on these cables. Thinks Secy might prefer to phone Secy Hull.
These are cables inviting Mrs. Churchill and others to participate in Mrs. Morgenthau's Bond program.

May 22, 1944

In Saturday night's news Dieshae announced that he is going to give out an expose of high officials, the President, Mrs. Roosevelt and Cabinet Officers. I wonder if I write our friend Wright Patman to tell you what it's all about, he might make the effort to find out.
MINNEAPOLIS AND ST. LOUIS RAILWAY HOLDING COMPANY

Present: Mr. D. W. Bell

MR. BELL: This morning, supposedly, five planes left at five o'clock for Russia with the eight tons of material that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing got together. It was supposed to be ready at five o'clock this morning. They said they would be ready with trucks to get them. They are Army planes.

H.M.JR.: Five planes?

MR. D. W. BELL: They are going to Montana--that is the first stop--and across through Alaska, I guess. Yes, it took five planes.

H.M.JR.: They haven't Henry Wallace tucked in with them?

MR. D. W. BELL: I suppose not. Henry probably went the other way.

The Minneapolis and St. Louis Railway Company is a holding company. It has all of the stock of the railroad company, and we own about thirty-four hundred shares, I think, or thirty-five hundred shares of that. That grew out of the last war. They want to merge them, and they are going to have a stockholders meeting on Thursday to vote on the merger. There really is nothing to the merger other than saving about seventy-five thousand dollars of administrative expense. It is virtually one organization as it is. They haven't gotten enough proxies to be sure of the merger, and they asked us for our proxy, and we told them no, it was our policy not to vote our stock. We thought we could get along without entering into the stockholders meeting. But they come back and say that it is quite important that they have this merger. They are not sure, and they would like to have our proxy. We don't think there is any harm in giving our proxy in this merger, and we could even send somebody to the meeting to vote it, if it is necessary. If it is not necessary, just keep it back. We could do either one, but I do recommend we vote.

H.M.JR: I think somebody should go to the meeting.

MR. D. W. BELL: Two people, Heffelfinger and Tietjens, have been handling it. Either could go, probably Tietjens.

H.M.JR: I think somebody from the General Counsel's office should go. How smart is Tietjens?

MR. D. W. BELL: I think he is an able fellow. He has good judgment.

H.M.JR: Has he? All right.

MR. D. W. BELL: Well, I will go ahead with that.

REDUCTION OF CRITICAL MATERIALS TO GERMANY

Present: Mr. O'Connell
Mr. Luxford

H.M.JR: This is in regard to this memorandum for General Marshall, which I have read. In the first place, I think if I said anything like that, my hunch is I ought to send it to Mr. Stimson. (Refers to attached memorandum)

MR. LUXFORD: I got Arnold interested in the other one, Mr. Secretary, in the Swedish matter. Patterson, in particular, would be helpful on this.

H.M.JR: I still think I ought to send it to Mr. Stimson. I have reasons for wanting to do that. And the only thing that bothers me is, it is so vague. Do you know for sure that platinum is going out?

MR. LUXFORD: That came out of the G-2 report, everything that is in there.

H.M.JR: It goes back as far as that?

MR. LUXFORD: That is right, December, 1943.

H.M.JR: Oh, you are just digging it up now?

MR. LUXFORD: That was in the report they sent us. We had to call their attention to it.

H.M.JR: Well, I think I would address it to Mr. Stimson.

MR. LUXFORD: How about a copy to Mr. Crowley, too?

H.M.JR: That would be all right.
MR. LUXFORD: It is kind of a combined operation.

H.M.JR: That would be all right.

MR. O'CONNELL: Of course, I was a little reluctant about initializing it, not because it was addressed to Marshall, but it wasn’t clear to me whether it was entirely proper at this stage of the game to approach this problem again around another corner, attempting to put more pressure on the President and the State Department.

MR. LUXFORD: I think there is a very strong analogy in the case of Sweden. For two years we and FE! have been pushing to get action on those ball bearings, and the President has turned us down. We kept on.

H.M.JR: Another way, let’s address it to the President.

MR. LUXFORD: We have that other note which I just haven’t finished typing now.

H.M.JR: What would be the matter with sending this at the same time with the other one?

MR. O'CONNELL: I think the theory of this is a little different. I think the theory of this one is to attempt to interest Marshall or someone in the War Department with a view to getting the same sort of action that we got out of the War Department in SKF.

H.M.JR: Well, if they go to Stimson, he will say, "What do you want me to do with this thing?" I think it is a mistake to write to Marshall.

MR. LUXFORD: All right.

H.M.JR: I think the letter should be addressed to either the President or Stimson. Stimson did nothing at Cabinet the other day on the Argentine. If you are going to address it to Stimson, you ought to send it to the Secretary of the Navy, too.
MR. O'CONNELL: I just had a little feeling that the result of the Cabinet meeting the other day was—I thought it would not be quite proper to address this to anybody in the War Department. I wouldn't mind having it sent to the President, but I thought that last week—

H.M.JR: Supposing he got this and the other thing together?

MR. LUXFORD: I would be a little troubled, if Joe's point has merit to it; that is, he may say, "What are you doing raising this with me again?" This certainly would be raising it with the President again.

H.M.JR: I tell you, let's see what the President does on sending this the second time. Maybe he will act. After all, I thought you told me you had something new.

MR. LUXFORD: No, sir, you asked the other day at staff meeting—I wasn't here—that we get up a memorandum to Marshall on these two items.

H.M.JR: Let's hold this. I am sending this thing up to the President. Let's see what happens. Can I do that by two o'clock?

MR. LUXFORD: You will have it by one. You said you wanted it by one. I am putting "copy" on that, Mr. Secretary, and dating it the same as it was before.

H.M.JR: That is all right. Do you want to take it back?

MR. LUXFORD: Yes.
MEMORANDUM FOR GENERAL MARSHALL.

I am very interested in the attempts now being made to shorten the war and reduce American casualties by depriving the German war machine of critical materials obtainable only through neutral sources. As you are no doubt aware, the measures taken to stop exports of ball bearings from Sweden to Germany give promise of success. The facts stated below have caused me to wonder whether the German war machine cannot also be deprived of platinum and industrial diamonds. It is my understanding that this hemisphere is a primary source of supply to Germany of both of these materials.

Platinum is produced in Russia, Colombia, Canada, the United States, Union of South Africa and, to a limited extent, in Malaya. Since the Malayan platinum is not enough for Japanese needs, the only platinum obtained by Germany is that smuggled from Colombia. There is no effective substitute for this metal, which is essential to the ignition systems of aircraft, tanks and automotive equipment of all kinds, as well as radio and aviation materials. Available information indicates that the German stock of this material is very low.

As in the case of platinum, South America is one of the few sources of industrial diamonds open to Germany. Because of the importance of industrial diamonds in cutting and grinding operations, their vital role in war production cannot be overemphasized.

The German war machine is able to obtain these two critical materials from this hemisphere by virtue of two important considerations: (1) the physical fact that important quantities of these materials have little bulk, which facilitates smuggling operations; and (2) the fact that Argentina, as a result of its refusal to install adequate controls, offers the facilities necessary to the operation of the German agents charged with the responsibility for obtaining these materials and serves as the point at which the materials can be collected in Latin America and from which they can be shipped to Germany. Available information indicates that Argentina is the channel through which these critical materials pass from this hemisphere to the German war machine.

I am not sure that this Government has applied itself to this problem with the same vigor that has characterized our handling of the Swedish situation, and I should be glad to discuss with you or your representatives ways and means of closing this gap and to use all of the facilities of the Treasury Department that might be helpful in carrying out any program that may be decided upon.

Secretary of the Treasury
In this war the United States has reached its peak industrial production from its own raw material resources. Henceforth, by reason of the simultaneous depletion of a number of the essential strategic raw materials this country will have to depend more and more upon imports of these important raw materials from other countries. Of primary importance, our iron ore, oil reserves, bauxite and zinc deposits are approaching exhaustion and will not suffice for another generation's requirements. This continent has been thoroughly prospected and there is not much difference among the well informed as to the potentialities of future discoveries.

There is a long list of strategic materials of secondary importance which have never been found in sufficient supply in this country. Manganese, chrome ore, tin, mica, industrial diamonds, quartz crystals, etc., are examples.

Not only the actual safety of the country is dependent upon the proper arrangements for an ample future supply of such materials at reasonable cost, but our future prosperity and standard of living will be dependent on such arrangements.

As the tendency toward nationalism throughout the world becomes more pronounced, it will be more difficult to gain access to ample supplies of such materials. It would seem desirable to enlist the services of the most able men in the several raw material industries to study the world situation as it affects this country's future, to discuss such studies and evolve a plan or series of plans to meet future requirements, and to have such dependable advice available for the high authorities as peace discussions progress.

It is suggested that such a group be brought together now as a unit or section, under the proper Government authority, to be charged with the responsibility of formulating a national raw-material policy. So far as is known, little has been done officially on this problem with the exception of the letter from the Assistant Secretary of State, dated May 18, copy of which is attached.
Some Elements to be Considered

Reappraisal of our mineral position, in view of the recent heavy depletion and rapidly expending needs of industry, to see what additional supplies must be assured from abroad, and from where. Now under way by Geological Survey and Bureau of Mines.

The implementation of the promise in the Atlantic Charter of equality of access to raw materials. This will require careful consideration of all phases of international flow of minerals as affected by tariffs, trade treaties, cartels, closed door legislation, anti-trust laws, etc. This remains to be organized in any comprehensive way.

The control of metals and minerals to prevent rearmament of the Axis powers. The problem is an immediate one, starting with military occupation, and is already under consideration by groups working with Brookings Institute, the Army, and other agencies.

A less immediate objective of the disarmament program, but one of over-shadowing importance for the future, is the conservation of the world's minerals through limitation of armaments. World Wars I and II have burned up these resources at a rate never before imagined, and definite limitations are beginning to loom for some of them.

How to cut back or liquidate our vast war commitments in foreign minerals, involving purchase contracts, over-all agreements, "Good Neighbor" measures, without interfering with good international relations. This problem is already before us in several quarters.

International problems involved in post-war stockpile program for defense.

Post-war policy on liquidation of excess stocks not needed for defense. This has international complications.

Specific programs for individual minerals to be worked out in accordance with an over-all mineral policy.

What international machinery to set up for minerals, if any. The place of cartels.
DEPARTMENT OF STATE

My dear Dr. Leith:

Mr. Haley, Chief of the Commodities Division, has told me of his conversations with you with regard to the desirability of utilizing the services of interested minerals specialists in the study of problems of international economic policy respecting minerals. It seems to be an established fact that the interdependence of nations in regard to minerals supplies is rapidly growing with the expanded needs of industry, with depletion of reserves, and with advances in technology. This raises many international questions, such as that of the application of the principle of equality of access to sources and markets, on which our Government needs sound advice with a view to formulating a general minerals policy broadly based on national needs.

I agree with you and with Mr. Haley that it would be helpful to the State Department to have the very best possible expert advice with regard to these and related problems. If you would be willing personally to bring together such a group of experts I can assure you that this Department will give careful attention to any recommendations you and your associates might prepare. Although I believe it would be desirable for such a group to carry on its work quite independently of the Department's auspices, I assure you that interested officials in the Department would be glad to give your group any assistance possible, as we would any other independent group of experts that wished to serve the public interest by studying problems of such great concern to this Department.

Mr. Haley recently discussed this matter also with Dr. Moulton of the Brookings Institution, who not only expressed personal interest in the study, but also suggested that if the Brookings Institution could assist you and your associates in any way, such as by placing facilities at your disposal, it would be glad to do so.

Sincerely yours,

(S) Dean Acheson
Assistant Secretary.
TO Secretary Morgenthau
FROM Fred Smith

You will be interested to know that the AP and the UP already know all there is to know about the Conference, including the date. They say now that they had this information the morning that they wrote the story about the President's calling a Conference. They say they didn't get it at the Treasury, but will not say where it came from.

Their source is obviously a leak rather than an authoritative person, because they are not confident that their information is wholly accurate. However, it is.
Ted Gamble said that you would like to see some of the responses we are getting to your telegram to the plants.

This is this morning's first batch.

We are all encouraged by the responses.

Thank you very much for your help.

Dear Dick:

I have checked over my schedule for speaking during the Fifth War Loan, and I find that it is already too tight to accommodate another engagement in Poughkeepsie. I am sorry, because I would like to have done it. The last time I was there marked a high spot in the campaign for me.

Thank you very much for inviting me, and I will try to make it in the Sixth War Loan.

Sincerely,

Honorable Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary
United States Treasury Department
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Secretary:

Agreeable with your suggestion I write this letter to confirm the invitations of the Orange County and Dutchess County War Finance Committees requesting that you participate in one or both of the rallies which will be held at Poughkeepsie and at Newburgh in connection with the stops of the Navy Barge which will tour from Buffalo to New York during the Fifth War Loan.

When I discussed this proposition with you last Saturday the tentative dates for the rallies in question were June 29th and June 30th, but I was advised this morning that the Poughkeepsie date has been changed to June 27th and the Newburgh date has been changed to Wednesday, June 28th. Everyone here sincerely hopes that you can arrange your schedule so that it will be convenient for you to favor us with your presence at one or both of these programs.

We know that you come to Dutchess County to rest and so we are reluctant to suggest that your participation in these programs be such as to require extensive preparation and formality on your part. However, if you or your associates decide that it might be well for you to make a formal appearance, I can assure you that the committees would be most happy to build their programs accordingly.

Again I want to thank you and Mrs. Morgenthau for the very nice visit and delicious lunch which I enjoyed with you last Saturday.

My best wishes to you.

Respectfully yours,

Dick Meyer

This will acknowledge your letter of 16 May in which you commend Brigadier General Joseph W. Byron and Pfc George R. Carley for their services rendered in informing the troops about America's War Loan effort.

It gives me great pleasure to receive this comment on personnel of my command, and I am having your letter made a part of their official records.

Thank you for your interest, and with best wishes to you, I am

Subject: The Business Situation, Week ending May 20, 1944.

Summary

Cost of living: The BLS cost-of-living index rose 0.6 percent last month, but the index continues within the narrow range of the past year. Higher excise taxes, an upward revision in furniture price ceilings, and higher prices for fresh fruits and vegetables were largely responsible for the rise in the index.

Commodity prices: Moving irregularly lower last week, commodity futures have shown a noticeable decline for the past seven weeks and are at the lowest level in more than five months. The substantial improvement in the wheat crop prospects and uncertainty over war developments have promoted bearishness in the futures markets, particularly in grains. Spot prices, however, have been relatively stable, and the BLS index of 28 basic commodities last week gained 0.3 percent.

Stock market: Stock prices strengthened slightly last week on increased trading activity, although continuing invasion uncertainties and other factors limited the net gain in the Dow-Jones average of 65 stocks to about 1 percent. Railroad securities were bolstered by Southern Pacific's action in declaring an extra dividend and in calling for redemption unmatured bond issues amounting to nearly $26 millions. During the week the Dow-Jones averages of Higher Grade and Second Grade railroad bonds advanced to new highs for the entire war period.

Steel supplies: An unusually tight pinch in steel supplies is now anticipated in the third quarter of this year. As a result of an expected manpower shortage in the steel industry, and increased steel requirements for heavy guns and shells, the WPH is reported to be reducing steel allocations to civilian goods industries for the quarter.

Retail trade: Stimulated by Mother's Day gift buying, department store sales in the week ended May 13 rose 31 percent above last year's levels. Sales thus far in 1944 have been 6 percent higher than in the corresponding period last year.
Cost of living somewhat higher

The BLS cost-of-living index rose 0.6 percent last month. Despite this rise, however, the index continues within the narrow range of the past year. It now stands 0.3 percent above that of a year ago, but is 0.5 percent below the peak reached in May 1943.

Increased excise taxes which accounted for one-half of the increase, an upward revision in furniture price ceilings, and higher prices for fresh fruits and vegetables were largely responsible for the rise in the index last month. While household furnishings and miscellaneous costs have shown a steady rise during the past three years, the 1.7 percent increase in April was the largest since October 1941. (See Chart 1.) The increase in furniture price ceilings, permitted by the CPA with the return to production of steel spring furniture, bolstered household furnishings prices, and the effect of the 100 percent increase in the tax on admission prices largely accounted for the noticeable rise in miscellaneous charges. The food component, after having declined for five consecutive months, rose 0.4 percent. Retail clothing prices rose very slightly.

Rising clothing prices threat to stable cost of living

Price Administrator Bowles told the House Banking and Currency Committee last week that clothing prices were the greatest single threat to the cost of living. The clothing component of the BLS cost-of-living index has shown a steady rise during the past ten months, and now stands 7 percent above that of a year ago. The substitution of higher-priced items for cheaper types which are no longer available has been an important factor in the advance in clothing costs. Furthermore, the CPA has raised ceiling prices on some items in an effort to increase production. The Price Administrator indicated, however, that the CPA expects to get clothing prices under better control in the next six months, apparently through increasing production of lower-priced items by means of WFB directives, together with some adjustments in price ceilings.

Cost of living trend contrasts sharply with that of World War I

Although some items in the cost of living have risen markedly during the past year, living costs in the aggregate have shown a high degree of stability. This is in sharp contrast to the trend of living costs in World War I. (See Chart 2, upper section.)
Thus, while the BLS cost-of-living index during the past year has held practically unchanged, the index in the comparable period of the first World War rose over 16 percent. (During the first war, however, the period included four post-war months, since the war lasted about 52 months, while the present war has been in progress over 56 months.)

The success in stabilizing living costs during the past year has been due to a reduction in food prices, which has offset increases in other costs. In contrast, food prices in World War I rose sharply, except for temporary declines, throughout the entire war and for more than a year and a half after the Armistice was signed. (See Chart 2, lower section.)

In the 56 months of this war the cost-of-living index has risen only 26 percent, as compared with the 63 percent rise during the comparable period of the first World War.

Commodity Futures Decline

Commodity futures have declined noticeably during the past seven weeks, with the Dow-Jones futures index reaching the lowest level in more than five months. (See Chart 3.) While the index moved irregularly last week, at the end of the week it was 0.6 percent below the level of a week earlier, and was 3.2 percent below the peak reached at the end of March. This decline reflects a weakness in the later futures months, principally for grains but also for cotton. Wheat and oat futures have declined around 7 and 6 cents, respectively, since the end of March, while rye futures are off 17 cents.

The decline in cotton futures has been relatively small.

The substantial improvement in wheat crop prospects and the uncertainty surrounding war developments have been important factors in the decline in commodity futures. On the other hand, spot prices have remained comparatively stable since March, as indicated by Moody's spot index in Chart 3, although a slight rise was registered last week.

Basic Commodity Index Higher

The index of 28 basic commodities last week broke out of the narrow range of the past two months and advanced 0.3 percent to a new high, $1.5 percent above the August 1939 average. (See Chart 4.) Rosin prices rose sharply for the second successive week, reflecting a very tight supply situation and a delay in the movement of the new crop to market. Wool top and steer prices were noticeably higher and cotton showed a moderate gain.
Since all of the commodities in the basic commodity index except cotton and rosin have been brought under some form of price control, the breakdown of the index into controlled and uncontrolled commodities has recently had little significance. Consequently, the Bureau of Labor Statistics has discontinued the compilation of these two components, effective last week.

The BLS all-commodity index declined slightly in the week ended May 13, due largely to seasonal declines in prices of fresh fruits and vegetables, together with lower ceiling prices for heavy hogs. At 103.6 percent of the 1926 average, the index is 0.2 percent below that of the corresponding week last year, although it is 38.1 percent above the pre-war level of August 1939.

Stock market slightly higher

Stimulated by a number of favorable dividend actions, stock prices and trading activity rose slightly last week. Industrial, railroad and utility shares participated in the improvement, but invasion uncertainties served to restrain the upswing and the net gain in the Dow-Jones average of 65 stocks for the week was about 1 percent. (See Chart 5.) Industrial stock prices in London eased slightly, but renewed strength at the end of the week carried prices up to within a fraction of the war-time high reached on May 11.

Stock trading on the New York Exchange rose above 900,000 shares on Thursday for the first time this month, as an extra dividend declaration by Southern Pacific Railroad bolstered speculative sentiment. In addition to the surprise dividend action, Southern Pacific also called for redemption 2 unamortized bond issues amounting to nearly $26 millions, utilizing cash funds for the purpose. This action imparted further strength to railroad bond prices, and the Dow-Jones averages of Higher Grade and Second Grade railroad bonds rose to new peaks for the year in the most active trading since March 25. At the close on Thursday the Second Grade rail average was 70 percent above the 1942 low. Nevertheless, the average would have to show a further rise of more than 17 percent to equal the 1937 high.

Farm machinery output improved

Another favorable dividend action of the past week was a moderate increase in the usual quarterly dividend of the International Harvester Company. The company's president indicated that the increased dividend was not based on current or anticipated earnings gains, but rather on the outlook for greater stability in operations, as war output of the company... is diminishing and civilian output is expanding rapidly. Earlier this month the company reported that in the six months ended April 30 its production of farm tractors, implements and parts was more than double year-earlier levels.

While the output of farm machinery as recently as February was lagging 23 percent behind schedule, the Chairman of the WFB reported last week that the farm machinery production program has improved considerably in the past several months. Production during the current month is rising, and is now reported to be moving at a faster rate than in any peacetime year. Further gains are expected in June, but despite anticipated improvement, output by the end of next month will still be about 10 percent short of schedule.

Steel allocations for third quarter out

Recent optimism over the progress of the farm machinery program, however, may have to be tempered somewhat as a result of downward revisions in third-quarter steel allocations now reported to be under way. According to the latest WFB analysis, steel supplies in the third quarter are expected to fall substantially short of demand, due to an anticipated manpower shortage in the steel industry and to increased steel requirements for heavy artillery purposes. As a result, the WFB is now in the process of reducing third-quarter steel allocations, with merchant shipbuilding, agriculture, and other civilian industries slated to feel the first effects of the cuts.

In connection with the current heavy demand for steel, the Iron Age last week reported that "the steel industry finds itself close to a period of tightness never before reached. Requirements for the third quarter will tax the complete facilities of the industry. There is no chance, however, that war needs which are to support the invasion will be behind schedule." The pinch in steel supplies is especially noteworthy in view of the sustained high level of production thus far in 1918. Steel ingot production in March broke all previous records, and after allowance for the shorter month, was maintained virtually unchanged in April. Steel operations last week were scheduled at 99.2 percent of capacity.

Cold storage freezer space somewhat easier

While cold storage freezer space continues to be very tight in some areas, the seasonal peak in occupancy appears to be past and an easing in the over-all space requirements is evident. Freezer space occupancy in public cold storage warehouses declined to 85 percent on May 1 from 86 percent a month earlier, according to the May 1 cold storage report. of the WPA. Cooler occupancy, however, increased seasonally during April and on May 1 amounted to 82 percent, the highest on record. A month earlier cooler occupancy was 80 percent and a year earlier was only 64 percent. Much cooler space not ordinarily used at this time of year is now occupied with the large seasonal production of eggs, lard, and other products.

Heavier-than-normal withdrawals of frozen fruits and vegetables, butter, and frozen poultry were noted, but stocks of shell and frozen eggs rose sharply and lard stocks increased substantially. The greatest changes during the month were in apples (decreased 59 percent) and in shell eggs (increased 57 percent.) Stocks of all items except apples on May 1 were appreciably higher than last year. (See Table 1.)

Despite the improvement in the over-all cold storage freezer situation, the tightness in space in some areas is causing considerable difficulty. The New York market last week was reported to be swamped with eggs, and Government buyers were unable to find storage space for the eggs they purchased. Moreover, practically no storage space for eggs was reported to be available in Philadelphia, and in Chicago storage space was critically short. Due partly to lack of storage space, slaughters in some areas have been unable to handle the heavy hog marketings recently and large carryovers have resulted. The WPA cold storage report indicated that freezer space in meat packing establishments in numerous states was 100 percent occupied.

Industrial sugar allocations raised

Sugar allocations to twelve classes of non-baker industrial users were restored last week to 80 percent of that used during the corresponding month of 1941, following a reduction to 70 percent on April 1. The restoration becomes retroactive to April 1. (Bakers' allocations had remained at 80 percent.) An improvement in the shipping situation has enabled the increased allocation.

Imports of sugar have increased substantially in recent months, and in April were almost 42 percent above those of a year ago. As a result, the decline in sugar stocks has been stopped, and stocks increased over 50 thousand tons last month, according to confidential estimates of the Department of Agriculture. The estimated stocks on April 30, however, were still about 400 thousand tons below those on the corresponding date last year.

An encouraging factor in the sugar picture this year is the large Cuban crop, which, according to press reports, may total almost 5,600,000 tons. The Cuban crop last year was only 3,225,000 tons. The effect of this large crop on the supply situation in this country will, of course, depend upon shipping conditions.

Department store sales rise

Swelled by Mother's Day gift buying, department store sales in the week ended May 13 attained the largest volume since Easter week, and exceeded last year's level by 31 percent. (See Chart 6.) The gain was accentuated by the fact that Mother's Day occurred one week earlier last year. However, it should be noted that in the week ended May 6 sales also ran above 1943 levels although the gain was only 9 percent. In view of the fact that varying holiday dates and other temporary factors have caused rather wide fluctuations in year-to-year sales comparisons, it is interesting to note that cumulative department store sales thus far in 1944 have been 6 percent higher than in the corresponding period of 1943. All districts have shared in the sales gains, although the Atlanta and Dallas districts have made the strongest showing with increases of 20 percent and 17 percent, respectively.

In the face of increased sales and shortages of merchandise in some lines, the dollar value of department store stocks continues to run above year-earlier levels. Although nation-wide data for April are not yet available, department store stocks in New York City at the end of last month were 14 percent higher than a year earlier, while stocks of department stores for the entire New York Federal Reserve District were 12 percent higher.

PRESIDENT’S LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

I am submitting herewith the Fifteenth Report on Lend-Lease Operations for the period ending March 31, 1944.

United Nations forces are now about to strike new and mightier blows at Nazi-occupied Europe from offensive bases in the West, the South, and the East. The fighting men of many nations have been banded together in combined operations. They are armed with the most powerful weapons that the combined resources and ingenuity of the United Nations can produce. They are ready to bring to bear their strength to continue the crushing process against the Nazis and the German war machine.

Our American forces will go into battle side by side with the men of Britain, France, Norway, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Netherlands and our other allies. At sea, warships flying many United Nations flags will escort the fleets. In the skies, the R. A. F. will join with the United States Army Air Forces in blasting the paths for our troops and in protecting them from air attack.

For this great undertaking, the United Nations fighting partnership has been made far stronger by lend-lease and reverse lend-lease. Through lend-lease we have made certain that every man in the forces of the other United Nations who goes into battle beside an American fighting man has what he needs to hit the common enemy as hard as possible. Through reverse lend-lease, the American Forces have been similarly aided by our allies with everything they had that we needed.
On the eastern European front also, arms and other war supplies provided by the United States and the British Commonwealth, will continue to strengthen the Soviet Armies for the new blows that will be timed with our advances.

In the Far East and the Pacific our offensives in New Guinea, in Burma, and against the Japanese fortress islands in the Central Pacific are proof that the battle for Japan is not waiting upon the successful conclusion of the battle against Nazi Germany. China is being helped to the utmost of our ability.

Decisive battles are ahead. Now, more than ever, it is vital to our own American Army and Navy and Air Forces, as well as to the forces of the other United Nations, that we continue to provide our fighting partners with the additional war supplies they need to supplement their own resources. Congress has again recognized this fact by its overwhelming vote to extend the Lend-Lease Act.

Only by uniting our full strength with the full strength of the other free peoples of the world have we moved from the defensive to the offensive, from defeats to victories. By maintaining our unity now we shall certainly achieve final victory. By continuing our unity after the war we can assure a peace in which mankind can live and work and worship in peace, freedom, and security.

Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Chapter 1

MUTUAL AID

Lend-Lease Totals

With United Nations offensives already underway in the air, on land, and by sea, and greater offensives now impending, the United States provided to its allies in the first three months of 1944, the record-breaking total of more than four billion dollars worth of lend-lease aid. This consisted of planes, tanks, and other war supplies transferred, and shipping, repair, and other services rendered under the Lend-Lease Act to strengthen the fighting power of the allied armed services fighting side by side with American forces against our common enemies. About 97 percent of all lend-lease aid has gone to the British Commonwealth, the Soviet Union and China.

In the first sixty days of 1944 alone over 2,100 lend-lease planes, almost 2,000 tanks, and over 60,000 other military motor vehicles were sent from the United States to the forces of the other United Nations fighting the Germans and the Japanese.

Since the beginning of the lend-lease program on March 11, 1941, we have sent a total of more than 30,000 planes, about 25,000 tanks and over 800,000 other military motor vehicles to the forces of our allies. Of these totals over 23,000 of the planes, over 23,000 of the tanks and almost 550,000 of the other motor vehicles went under lend-lease. The others were paid for in cash by our allies.

Over half of all lend-lease aid has consisted of fighting equipment—planes, tanks, guns, ships, bombs and other finished munitions. The other supplies transferred under lend-lease—the industrial materials and products and the food—have been just as essential in the fighting. A bar of steel from Pittsburgh sent to Britain ends up, for example, in a blockbuster bomb dropped by a Lancaster on Frankfurt; or pork from a hog raised in Indiana ends up in a lend-leased can of "Tushonka" eaten by a Soviet soldier just before the final attack on Odessa. Supplies for the production of munitions and foodstuffs are also weapons of war.

The balance of lend-lease aid consists of services: The cost of shipping the supplies and ferrying the planes to battle fronts around the world; servicing and repairing damaged allied men-of-war and merchant ships; factories built in the United States with lend-lease funds to produce lend-lease equipment; and the cost of such other services as the allied pilot-training program.

The total amount of lend-lease aid shown in Table 1 includes all the aid reported to April 1, 1944 that has been provided to other countries under the terms of the Lend-Lease Act by all Government departments. It includes all supplies transferred and services rendered with funds appropriated for lend-lease purposes to the President, as well as all supplies transferred and services rendered with funds appropriated to the War and Navy Departments and to the Maritime Commission under transfer authorizations specifically written into Appropriation Acts for these agencies by the Congress. The amounts of the various appropriations and authorizations are shown in Table 10 on page 42.
Mutual Benefits

The volume of lend-lease aid has been great, but what we have spent on lend-lease has been only 14 cents of every dollar spent by the United States for war purposes. The other 86 cents of each war dollar have been used for our own fighting men and our war production. By far the greater proportion of everything we have produced to fight this war has gone to the United States armed forces. But what we have provided under lend-lease to our allies is equally helping the men in our own Army and Navy and Air Forces. For our allies use the supplies we send against the same enemy our men are fighting. Our allies as well as we have one primary purpose—to defeat our common enemies as effectively and speedily as possible.

 Millions of Germans and Japanese will never fight against Americans because they have been killed or captured by our allies with the help of lend-lease supplies. Lend-lease is working for America on the Russian front—in Africa and Italy—in the skies over Germany—in Burma and China and New Guinea—just as surely as it is working for the other United Nations.

United States forces and our merchant marine overseas are also receiving great quantities of supplies and services as reverse lend-lease aid, provided by our allies without payment by us. By the first of this year the aid provided to us by the nations of the British Commonwealth since June 1, 1942, totalled over $2,000,000,000 and the rate of aid was approaching $2,000,000,000 a year.

Just as our allies benefit from the other 86 percent of our war expenditures, so we benefit in turn from all of their war expenditures, whether they are for reverse lend-lease and mutual aid or not. In the case of the Soviet Union and China, for example, virtually all of their resources are needed for fighting the invaders of their own soil and it is essential to the success of our own military operations that their resources be so used. This is a United Nations war. The total fighting and productive power that each of the United Nations can put into our combined operations to defeat our common enemies is of benefit to all the others.

The allocation of supplies among the theatres of war and among the forces of the United Nations is governed by combined military strategic decisions. Whether supplies produced in one nation are transferred to another of the United Nations under lend-lease or mutual aid, or whether they are retained, the guiding principle is always the same—how can they be used most effectively to bring about the defeat of the enemy?

All the experience and information that we have available indicate that in proportion to their available resources our principal allies are putting into this war fully as much as we are, including our lend-lease aid. This is true in terms of the percentage of their manpower in uniform, in terms of the percentage of gross national production each is devoting to war purposes, and in terms of their increased taxes and increased national indebtedness in relation to national income.

There is no way, of course, by which a statistical balance sheet of the contributions made by the various United Nations to the winning of the war can be drawn up. The millions who have given their lives in many lands—the homes destroyed—the sacrifices and the courage—all these are vital and human factors which cannot be adequately measured but are essential for our ultimate victory along with planes, tanks, guns, and ships, and dollars, pounds, and rubles.

Lend-lease and reverse lend-lease are not a system of debits and credits. They involve neither gifts, nor loans or transfers of money. They are, instead, a system of mutual war supply that has been evolved by the United Nations to make possible the effective combined operations by which we are fighting and winning the war. The benefits which we and all of the United Nations have already mutually received from this system are beyond price.

Before we had found how to strengthen each other through mutual aid and had become United Nations, the forces of aggression and tyranny were well on the way to the conquest of the world. It was less than three years ago that defeat and disaster or the imminent threat of disaster were the daily portion of each and all of the peace-loving nations of the world. Now it is the United Nations who are winning the battles; it is we who have mobilized the tremendous striking power that can bring ultimate victory.

We are on the eve of new and greater offensives. When our men go into the battles that lie ahead they will be part of a United Nations fighting team that has been made infinitely stronger through lend-lease and mutual aid. They will have fighting shoulder to shoulder with them friends whom we aided in adversity and who now aid us. We shall win final victory far sooner, and the cost in lives will be far less, because we have learned to work together—as free peoples—to our mutual benefit.

Lend-Lease Exports

Lend-lease exports—the supplies actually shipped to our allies—totalled over $17,000,000,000 between March 11, 1941, and March 1, 1944.

The difference between the dollar figures reported for lend-lease aid up to April 1, 1944, and the total of lend-lease exports is made up of the following factors:

1. The value of supplies transferred under the Lend-Lease Act which were exported during March. These export figures have not yet been tabulated.
2. The value of supplies transferred and awaiting export.
3. The value of supplies transferred for use in this country.
4. The value of lend-lease services (these totalled over $3,000,000,000 up to April 1, 1944).
5. The value of ships leased for the duration of the war, which are included in transfers but are not listed as exports (these totalled over $1,900,000,000 up to March 1, 1944).

6. The value of supplies purchased outside the United States and transferred under lend-lease.

Because export figures show the theatres of war to which lend-lease supplies have actually been sent, they are used in the succeeding chapters of this report.

CHAPTER 2

THE UNITED KINGDOM

Three years ago, on March 11, 1941, Great Britain stood alone between the United States and the tide of Axis aggression that had swept across Western Europe. The German air force, infinitely superior in numbers to the RAF at that time, smashed at Britain's cities from the air. At sea, German submarines and surface raiders cut and jabbed at the lifelines which brought from overseas the food and other supplies without which Britain could not live. And always imminent was the threat of invasion from across the English Channel by German armies far stronger and far better equipped than the forces in Britain.

Regraded Unclassified
Three years later, in the spring of 1944, Britain has become the mightiest military base in the history of the world. From hundreds of airfields American, British, and other allied planes roar out by the thousands day and night to pound the industrial centers of Nazi Germany, to smash at the heart of Nazi air power, Nazi communications, and Nazi defenses, and to drive the German fighters from the skies. At sea the U-boat campaign has been virtually defeated. On the crowded British Isles is assembled a gigantic United Nations striking force of men and equipment, ready to strike at the hour appointed for the invasion of Europe.

Lend-lease aid to Britain since March 11, 1941, has had an important part in this transformation. In three years of lend-lease operations we have shipped to the United Kingdom over seven billion dollars worth of lend-lease supplies. Britain, of course, produces herself by far the greater part of the war equipment that she needs, but these supplies have been a vital supplement to her own resources. Sixty percent of them were shipped in the past year—between March 1, 1943, and March 1, 1944.

Over a billion dollars of the total consists of airplanes, plane engines, and spare parts. Britain's Lancasters and Halifaxes and most of her fighters are produced in her own factories but RAF Mitchell and Douglas A-20 bombers, RAF Thunderbolts and Mustangs and other American-made fighters and bombers flown by allied pilots are daily joining with the USAAF in attacking German invasion defenses in the occupied countries. At sea, additional thousands of lend-lease carrier-based fighter planes and dive bombers and long-range patrol bombers have helped to knock out the U-boat offensive and bring 99 out of every hundred ships in convoys safe to port.

Over a billion dollars' worth of ordnance and ammunition and almost a billion dollars worth of tanks and other military motor vehicles have been shipped to the United Kingdom under lend-lease—three-quarters of them in the past year. Many of the demolition and incendiary bombs that the RAF has rained on German cities were included in lend-lease shipments' of ordnance and ammunition.

Much of the fighting equipment that was sent to the United Kingdom in the first two years of lend-lease went on to Egypt and North Africa for the twin drives that began at El Alamein and Algiers and ended with the expulsion of the Axis from Africa. Now lend-lease tanks and trucks and guns by the thousands, the tens of thousands and the hundreds of thousands are strengthening the attacking power of the British and allied forces who will join with our own troops in the coming invasions.

The export figures show not quite $200,000,000 worth of watercraft sent to the United Kingdom. That is the cost of the landing barges, the PT boats and other fighting craft small enough to be shipped aboard cargo vessels. We have also leased to the British over 30 convoy-escort aircraft carriers and many more destroyer escorts and corvettes, in addition to merchant ships. Ships that are leased and sail away under their own power are not included in the export figures. We have leased to the British most of the 1,400 naval craft so far turned over to the forces of our allies. All warships and merchant ships leased under the Lend-Lease Act are leased for the duration of the war. Title remains with the United States.

With the aid of these reinforcements from our shipyards, the British Navy has continued to carry a major share of the burden in the Atlantic and the Mediterranean, with important assistance from our own Navy and from Canadian, as well as from Polish, Norwegian, Dutch, Greek, and French naval units, while the main force of the United States Navy has been directed against the Japanese in the Pacific.

The industrial materials and products shipped to the United Kingdom under lend-lease are also directly connected with the air offensive now under way, with the land offensives to come and with the war at sea.

Britain is a war production arsenal of the United Nations second only to the United States. From the beginning of the war to the first of this year her factories turned out 90,000 planes, 83,000 tanks, armored cars and carriers, and over 1,000,000 trucks, besides vast quantities of other arms. Over three-quarters of all the new planes provided in 1943 to the RAF and the Royal Navy were produced in British factories. Toward this great war production record lend-lease industrial materials and products have made a substantial contribution by supplementing Britain's own resources.

We have shipped 5,750,000 tons of steel and over 500,000 tons of other metals. These metals have come out of British factories fabricated into millions of additional tons of guns, shells, planes, tanks, fighting ships, and other weapons that Britain could otherwise not have produced. We have shipped hundreds of thousands of tons of explosives to be made into the bombs that the RAF drops on Berlin. We have also sent machinery and tools and component parts needed for British war production. We have sent hundreds of millions of gallons of petroleum products, including much of the aviation gasoline that powers the 2,000-plane RAF attacks.

Shipments of food and other agricultural products to the United Kingdom have also been of vital importance to British war production and British fighting power. These shipments, although constituting only about 10 percent of Britain's overall food supply, have provided a much higher proportion of some of the most essential caloric and protective foods needed to maintain the rations of Britain's armed forces and war workers. Coupled with a great increase in Britain's home food production they have made possible for the war workers and fighting forces of the British Isles to have enough to eat to sustain an intensive war effort that is now in its fifth year.

Even with the help of lend-lease foods, however, this result has been attained only by very strict rationing. The British people eat far less well than the people of the United States. Compared to the average American civilian the average Britisher in 1943 was able to obtain only 76% as much milk and milk products, 76% as much meat, 68% as much poultry and fish, 56% as many eggs (and in Britain's case these were almost entirely dried eggs), 23% as much citrus fruit and tomatoes, and 50% as much other fruits and fruit products. The only important foods the British civilian gets more of than the American civilian are potatoes, such vegetables as carrots and cabbage, and bread.

Reverse Lend-Lease Aid

Besides the benefit we receive from the lend-lease aid which we provide to the United Kingdom, because of what British fighting men are able to do toward defeating our common enemies with the supplies we send, United States forces in the United Kingdom have received a very large volume of supplies and services from the British as reverse lend-lease aid, without payment by us.

By the first of this year the dollar value of goods, services, and facilities provided by the United Kingdom to United States Army, Navy and Air Forces and to our Merchant Marine totalled $1,526,170,000. Almost all of this aid was provided in the British Isles themselves. Not counting construction materials, reverse lend-lease supplies provided on the spot in Britain already amounted to about three million ships' tons by January 1, 1944. These figures do not reflect the value of the vital information on military equipment freely turned over to us by the British, who had over 2 years of battle experience before we entered the war. No financial valuation can be, or is, of course, placed on this type of aid, either by the British or ourselves.

One-third of all the supplies and equipment currently required for our very great forces in the United Kingdom are provided by the United Kingdom and are provided as reverse lend-lease, without payment by us. The cost of this aid to the United Kingdom, including shipping, averaged about $90,000,000 a month in the last three months of 1943.

The 8th and 9th United States Air Forces have received reverse lend-lease aid particularly vital to the success of their operations. Following is a list of a few of the many thousands of different types of reverse lend-lease supplies, equipment, and services, as reported by our Air Forces up to the end of 1943, which gives some indication of the extent and variety of this aid:

Bomber and fighter airfields and air bases, advanced airports, combat crew replacement centers, barracks, repair depots, warehouses, and storage facilities, etc., which cost the British $355,000,000 through the end of 1943 to build and equip for us. Ten thousand civilian employees with an annual pay roll of $12,000,000 have been employed on the construction program for United States forces, principally on airfields and air bases.

452,000 tons of equipment and supplies have been furnished. Some of the items of aid:

- 1,100 Spitfires and other planes.
- 1,357,000 sq. ft. of steel and light alloy sheets for repair and adaptation needs in our plane depots.
- 235,000 synthetic rubber shock absorbers.
- 32,000 bombs of various sizes.
- 7,000 sets of armor plate for heavy bombers.
- 5,000 collapsible rubber dinghies with devices for the release of parachutes at the time of hitting water.
- 10,600 aircraft tires.
- 35,000 108-gallon belly tanks for fighter aircraft.

9,600 pieces of protective body armor.
9,300 bullet proof glass panels for aircraft.
43,000 easily jettisoned lightweight gas tanks for long-range fighters. It is planned to produce these at the rate of 22,000 per month with 4,000 persons employed on this task.
43,000 electrically heated muffs for gunners.
2,000 parachutes.
1,175,000 pairs of socks.
1,500,000 pairs of knitted woolen gloves and substantial quantities of other types of clothing.
44,500,000 yards of Sommerfeld track.
60,000 aircraft, warship, and armed vehicle recognition devices.

All requirements for aircraft engine spark plugs.
12 factories working solely on production of transformers for U. S. Air Forces.
50 mobile repair shops for the repair of American bombers forced to make crash landings in the United Kingdom.
625 British-type fighter gun sights.
Special photographic equipment, for one out of each three aircraft in bomber squadrons, to take pictures of the target during the bomb run.

Large quantities of specially heated winter flying clothing.
Various types of specialized radio equipment.
Chapter 3

THE SOVIET UNION

During the past winter the armies of the Soviet Union have driven the Nazis from almost all of the Ukraine and the Crimea, from the Leningrad and Kalinin regions, and from large areas of White Russia. They have advanced into Rumania and Czechoslovakia. Odessa and Sevastopol have fallen. These magnificent winter and spring drives have climaxed over a year of almost continuous offensive action since the fall of Stalingrad—action in which over three-quarters of the invaded soil of the Soviet Union has been liberated and Hitler's armies have suffered millions of casualties and vast losses in vital war equipment. Now the Soviet Union is preparing new blows to be struck from the east while the forces of the United States, Great Britain, and the other allies strike new blows from other directions.

The fighting on the eastern front and the fighting on the west have been and will continue to be closely interrelated. We are all fighting the same enemy—Nazi Germany. What the Soviet Army has done to Hitler's war machine on the eastern front—what the combined American, British, and allied forces have done in the Mediterranean campaigns and in the tremendous air offensive against Germany—these actions have supplemented each other. Together they have greatly reduced the power that Hitler can summon for the Nazis' final defensive stand. Together the coming combined blows of the Soviet, British, American, and other United Nations fighting forces will destroy the Nazis and completely break the war-making power of Germany.

The Soviet Union has supplied its armies for their part in these combined operations principally from its own factories. But in the fighting on the eastern front there have also been large quantities of American equipment that in Russian hands has done heavy damage to the German war machine and brought its final defeat much closer. Great Britain and Canada, too, have sent large quantities of supplies for the Soviet war effort.

The United States has sent to the Soviet Union since the beginning of the lend-lease program almost four and three-quarter billion dollars worth of war supplies. Two-thirds of that amount was shipped in the twelve months between March 1, 1943, and March 1, 1944.

Up to March 1, 1944, we sent to Russia 8,800 planes, more than we had sent under lend-lease to any other military theatre. These included light and medium bombers, pursuit planes, and transport planes. In the first sixty days of 1944 alone we sent more than 1,000 combat planes. The Soviet Air Force has shown a preference for Airacobra P-39 fighters, Douglas A-20 attack bombers, and B-25 Mitchell mediums and many Russian fliers have made outstanding combat records flying these planes against the Nazis. The Russians are now also getting Thunderbolt P-47’s.

More than 4,000 of the planes sent to Russia have been flown all the way from factories in the United States to the battle fronts.

Mobile equipment sent to the Soviet Union from the United States includes over 190,000 military trucks, 36,000 jeeps, 5,200 tanks and tank destroyers, and 30,000 other military motor vehicles, including several thousand artillery prime movers of the fast tractor type, ordnance service trucks, huge tank transporters, and motorcycles. General Sherman tanks manned by Soviet crews have been in the thick of the fighting alongside tanks produced in Soviet factories as the Red Army liberated the Ukraine and the Crimea and recaptured Odessa. American trucks have been essential to maintaining the rapidly lengthening supply lines of the Soviet forces in the face of deep spring mud and the destruction of railroads and bridges by the retreating Germans.

To assist in rebuilding and expanding railroads leading to the advancing front, the United States has sent under lend-lease over 350,000 tons of railroad rails, locomotive and car wheels and axles. A program for supplying completed locomotives and freight cars was also undertaken late in the fall of 1943. Over 200 locomotives and 1,000 flat-cars have already been shipped. Many more will be sent. As the Soviet Army advances farther and farther toward the German border, the magnitude of the transportation and supply job to the front lines will increase. American equipment will continue to help maintain that mobility of the Soviet forces that has already been so unpleasant a surprise to the German high command.

Another important United States contribution to the Red Army’s communications has consisted of 275,000 field telephones and 850,000 miles of field telephone wire.

Substantial as shipments of American fighting equipment to the U. S. S. R. have been, by far the greater part of the equipment used by the Red Army has been produced in Soviet factories. Shipments of industrial materials and products from the United States, however, have been of important assistance to the Soviet’s own production. We have sent, for example, 1,450,000 tons of steel, 420,000 tons of aluminum, copper, nickel, zinc, brass and other non-ferrous metals, 200,000 tons of explosives and almost $200,000,000 of machine tools.

In addition to almost 7,000,000 pairs of Red Army boots, we have sent 35,000 tons of leather for production in Soviet factories of additional army boots, together with almost 30,000,000 yards of woolen cloth, and 60,000,000 yards of cotton cloth for Soviet Army uniforms.

Lend-lease shipments of food to maintain Soviet Army rations totalled 2,600,000 tons to March 1, 1944. Food shipments have included wheat, flour, and other cereal products; dried peas and beans; canned, cured and dehydrated meats, principally pork; lard, pork fat and vegetable oils, powdered milk, dried eggs, and dehydrated vegetables.

The liberation of the Ukraine has not yet, of course, relieved the serious food shortages suffered by the people of the Soviet Union for almost three years. Very severe rationing continues and it will be many months—years perhaps—before agricultural production in the devastated and pillaged Ukraine is fully restored. Lend-lease food shipments, which have provided the thin margin necessary to maintain the Soviet Army rations, will be as important as ever in the months of decisive battles that lie ahead. In the meantime, to help increase Russia’s production of her own foods as fast as possible, particularly in the Ukraine, we have also shipped almost 13,000 tons of seeds. Of these, 3,700 tons were shipped in the first two months of 1944 alone.

Because the Soviet Union has not had sufficient refining capacity to meet the tremendous demands of this war for petroleum products, we have sent 840,000 tons of aviation gasoline, high-grade lubricating oils and other similar petroleum products needed by the Red Air Force and the Red Army. We have also shipped almost $50,000,000 worth of petroleum refinery equipment to the Soviet Union. This is now being installed in the U. S. S. R. under the direction of American engineers. In the meantime Soviet engineers, technicians and operators have come to this country to study American refinery methods so that they can operate the plants in Russia after they have been erected. When this project is completed the Soviet will be able to meet a greatly increased share of its war requirements for aviation gasoline and other products from its own sources of crude petroleum.

Aid From Britain

The British, also, have provided the Soviet Union with very substantial aid. They have sent 5,031 tanks, of which 3,803 were produced in British factories and 1,223 were Canadian built. They have sent over 4,100 planes produced in Britain; over 150,000,000 rounds of ammunition for anti-tank and other guns; 2,487 Bren guns and other ordnance and munitions items.

In addition to military equipment, the British have sent large quantities of raw materials and machine tools for Soviet war production. These shipments have included over 300,000 tons of aluminum, copper, rubber, jute, sisal, tin, wool and graphite from British Commonwealth and Colonial Empire sources, together with over $80,000,000 worth of machine tools and other manufacturing equipment.
Chapter 4
THE PACIFIC AND FAR EAST THEATRES

Almost two billion dollars worth of lend-lease war supplies have been shipped to the Pacific and Far East theatres for the war against Japan. Approximately three-fifths of these supplies have consisted of fighting equipment for the Australian, New Zealand, Chinese, Dutch, British, and Indian army, air, and naval forces fighting beside the United States forces. Almost all of the remaining shipments have consisted of industrial materials and products for the production of fighting equipment, food, and strategic raw materials in Australia, New Zealand, and India.

The rising offensive power of United Nations forces in these theatres—as elsewhere—has been accompanied by a rising flow of lend-lease supplies. Shipments in the 12 months ending March 1, 1944, were more than 60 percent greater than in the preceding year. They have included thousands of planes, thousands of tanks, and tens of thousands of trucks and other military motor vehicles.

India and China

While the United States Navy is striking through the central Pacific in the direction of Japan from the west and combined United States-Australian-New Zealand-Dutch forces are moving up from the south in the direction of the Philippines, other combined Chinese-Indian-British-United States forces have been attacking from the east.

India is the base for operations against the Japanese in Burma. These allied operations are aimed at reopening a land route to China. Lend-lease equipment has had an important role in the Burma campaign this year. The Chinese 22nd and 38th Divisions, which include a Chinese tank corps, have made up a major part of the forces under General Stilwell that have advanced down the Hukaung and Mogaung valleys in upper Burma, killed thousands of Japanese, retaken 7,500 square miles, and are now over half-way to the Chinese frontier. These divisions were trained and equipped in India under lend-lease. Fighting in cooperation with American veterans of Guadalcanal, they have been using American tanks, guns, and trucks with notable success. As they advance toward the borders of China, American Army engineers are building the Ledo Road behind them. To the south, air-borne British jungle veterans have been cutting Japanese communications lines, while other British and Indian troops have fought back.

a Japanese counter-thrust in the Kohima-Imphal area. These forces are also making use of lend-lease arms, in addition to equipment produced in India and Britain.

In the air over Burma the RAF and Indian Air Force are using American as well as British planes in combined operations with the USAAF. In the Bay of Bengal powerful task forces built up in recent months have already struck at Sabang in Japanese-occupied Dutch Sumatra. Most of the warships in this fleet are British, but most of the planes that took off from aircraft carriers in that operation were American. They included lend-lease Grumman Hellcats and Corsairs.
From the northeastern Indian Province of Assam runs the air line which has been our only direct connection with China since the Burma Road was cut two years ago. It was established in April 1942. Although this air line crosses wild jungle country with mountains rising to 15,000 feet and has been subject to attack by Japanese fighter planes, it has now, after many months of intensive effort, become probably as busy as any air-supply line in the world. Day in and day out great numbers of transport planes make the trip. How many planes are flying this route cannot be revealed, but it can be said that the monthly tonnage of supplies carried into China each month "over the hump" is now fifteen times what it was a year ago and our shipments are increasing from month to month.

These planes carry into China all the aviation gasoline and bombs, and many of the other supplies needed for General Chennault's 14th U. S. Air Force and the Chinese Air Force squadrons inside China that have been equipped with lend-lease planes and are manned by Chinese flyers trained under lend-lease in the United States and India. The transport planes also carry in lend-lease equipment for the Chinese Army and for the Chinese arsenals. Although new air supply records have been established on the route "over the hump," the total tonnage that can be carried by air transport anywhere is, of course, small compared to the quantities that can be shipped by land or sea. Therefore, the great majority of lend-lease shipments to the India-China theater have, of necessity, so far gone only as far as India and Burma. Eventually direct communications with China will be reestablished, not only on land, but by sea as well. When that time comes—as it certainly will—we shall be able to pour lend-lease supplies into China in the volume needed to enable the Chinese forces, combined with the other Allied forces, to achieve the final and complete defeat of Japan.

The industrial materials and products shipped to India under lend-lease have had four principal purposes—all directly connected with the fighting now under way and with the greater operations to come: first, equipment to increase the capacity of Indian docks, railroads, and highways so that they can be adequate to military transport and supply needs; second, equipment to build airfields and military roads at strategic locations; third, machinery, tools, and materials for the production of military equipment in India's important munitions industry; fourth, supplies needed to increase India's production of such strategic materials as mica, jute, and shellac which are essential to war production in the United States.

Reverse Lend-Lease

The volume of reverse lend-lease aid provided to United States forces in India has gone up by leaps and bounds. In January and February of this year alone American troops received over $35,000,000 worth of supplies. This was as much in two months as we had received in the entire year of 1942 and half as much as we had received in the entire year of 1943.

Reverse lend-lease aid furnished to the United States in India up to March 1, 1944, totalled almost $150,000,000. This came to us without payment on our part and saved many thousands of tons of shipping space. Petroleum products, including aviation gasoline from the British refinery at Abadan for the United States Air Forces in India, make up a large part of the total.

Other supplies received in the two months of January and February 1944 alone, included:

- 6,800,000 pounds of vegetables,
- 170,000 pairs of socks,
- 300,000 yards of cloth,
- 175,000 pairs of trousers,
- 700,000 gallons of Diesel oil,
- 200,000 sets of underwear,
- 4,000,000 pounds of meat and fish,
- 2,000,000 pounds of fruit,
- 1,000,000 pounds of beverages,
- 500,000 pounds of bread,
- 700,000 dozens of eggs.
Australia and New Zealand

Australia, with a total population of 7,172,000, has had almost 860,000 enlistments in her armed services since the beginning of the war. A comparable percentage for the United States would have put 16,000,000 men into our armed services. The Royal Australian Air Force alone numbers more than 75,000 men. New Zealand, in proportion to her population, has made similarly striking contributions to the United Nations fighting forces.

Some of the Australian and New Zealand forces are still engaged in the European theater. Many more have joined with the American forces in the Southwest and South Pacific theatres under over-all United States command against the Japanese. While American ground forces have predominated in the Solomons campaign, New Zealand troops are also participating and Australian divisions have carried on a very large share of the tough jungle fighting in New Guinea. The Australian and New Zealand air forces and their navies, which include numbers of cruisers and destroyers, have effectively reinforced the predominantly American air and naval forces in the operations in this theatre. Netherlands units equipped under lend-lease, are also fighting both in the air and on the ground, in the campaign that is now moving northward toward the Philippines. Some of these Dutch fighting men, who escaped from the Japanese-occupied Indies, are participating in the action at Hollandia, the first piece of Netherlands East Indies territory recovered from the Japanese.

To supplement the equipment for these combined forces furnished from British and Australian war production, the United States has shipped them under lend-lease almost $200,000,000 worth of aircraft and another $200,000,000 worth of tanks and other military motor vehicles. Shipments of ordnance and ammunition have also bulked large.

Raw materials, machine tools and component parts shipped under lend-lease from the United States have had an important role in the greatly increased production of military equipment for use against the Japanese that has been achieved by Australian factories since 1941. Despite manpower shortages, Australia and New Zealand have also been able, with the help of lend-lease shipments of seed, fertilizer, farm equipment, tin plate, and canning equipment, to increase substantially the production and processing of food for American forces in the Pacific.

Reverse Lend-Lease

Australia and New Zealand are providing food at the rate of a billion pounds a year to United States forces. In the Southwest Pacific almost all the food for our troops is provided as reverse lend-lease. Our forces in the South Pacific receive large quantities as well.

The 1944 reverse lend-lease program in Australia and New Zealand calls for between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000 worth of food alone, including several hundred million pounds of meat. Up to the first of this year we had already received such quantities as:

Reverse lend-lease from Australia and New Zealand is by no means limited to food, however. By January 1, 1944, the supplies, facilities, and services our forces had received as reverse lend-lease had cost these countries over $450,000,000 and the rate of reverse lend-lease aid was rising. Besides the bases, barracks, airfields, hospitals, and other facilities built for our forces, the fighting equipment, the spare parts, and repair services that have been furnished, Australian and New Zealand factories are producing many hundreds of thousands of uniforms and we expect to receive a million pairs of Army boots alone in 1944.

Of special importance to our combined offensive operations this year in the direction of the Philippines is the construction in Australian and New Zealand shipyards of large numbers of landing craft, barges, and other small boats for American forces in amphibious island operations. Australia is now engaged in building $40,000,000 worth of these craft, besides turning over fleets of trawlers, launches and small coastal steamers previously built. By the first of this year New Zealand had already spent $6,500,000 on its part of the ship construction program.

Chapter 5
OTHER AREAS

Africa, Middle East, and Mediterranean
Seventy-five percent of all lend-lease shipments for the war in the Mediterranean-African-Middle East theatre has consisted of fighting equipment—planes, guns, tanks, military trucks, landing boats, and other munitions items. This equipment has been used by the British and allied fighting men who have continued to make up the majority of all the United Nations forces engaged in this theatre and are now fighting shoulder to shoulder with American forces in Italy—the British, French, New Zealanders, Australians, Greeks, Jugoslavs, Poles, Indians, and others.
General Sherman tanks paced Montgomery’s men in the break-through at El Alamein and American trucks helped keep the 8th Army rolling 1,500 miles across Libya, Cyrenaica, and Tripolitania to Tunisia. There the 8th Army joined with other British forces, the American forces, and the French in driving the Germans from Africa, in the conquest of Sicily and the invasion of Italy.

With North Africa as a base, powerful French army, navy, and air forces have been re-created and provided with American equipment under lend-lease. The French are fighting and flying beside our men in Italy; they have retaken and garrisoned Corsica, which is close to northern Italy and southern France; their war-ships, reconditioned and equipped in American shipyards, are hitting at the Nazis in the Mediterranean and the Adriatic. Many additional French troops are preparing to join in the greater operations to come for the liberation of their homeland. Over $300,000,000 worth of equipment and supplies have been consigned to the American commanding general in the field for lend-lease transfer to the French forces, in addition to lend-lease shipments made direct from the United States.

Civilian supplies shipped to French Africa under lend-lease are paid for at full landed cost. With the help of these shipments production of food and other materials needed for the United Nations war effort is being increased. We have sent to Tunisia and Morocco, for example, equipment to increase production at the phosphate mines. The fertilizer produced by these mines is needed both for the United Kingdom’s intensive food-production program and for the restoration of food production in the liberated areas of occupied Europe. Seeds, insecticides, farm tools, parts for agricultural machinery, binder twine and other supplies have been sent to increase the production in North Africa of food needed by our forces. Railroad equipment has been sent to West Africa and Equatorial Africa so that greater quantities of peanut and palm oils, cocoa, mahogany, tin, copper, jute and other strategic materials and commodities needed by the United Nations can be brought out from the interior to the coast.

Lend-lease shipments to the Middle East have consisted almost entirely of munitions and of equipment and supplies essential to military transport and communications. Small quantities of supplies needed for local production of food and war materials have also been sent to this area. The great majority of civilian supplies sent to the countries of the Middle East from the United States have gone through cash purchase channels.

Reverse Lend-Lease

Substantial amounts of foodstuffs, especially cereals and fresh vegetables, have been furnished by the French to our armed forces in the Mediterranean area under reverse lend-lease, in addition to other supplies and services. This aid to the United States already totalled about $30,000,000 by the first of this year.

Lend-lease and reverse lend-lease aid in French North and West Africa are furnished under an agreement between the United States and the French Committee of National Liberation. Under this agreement we furnish military aid on a straight lend-lease basis and we receive cash payment for essential civilian supplies. In addition, the French under reverse lend-lease make available to us munitions, food, and other war supplies.

South and Central American Countries

Lend-lease shipments to the other American Republics have consisted entirely of airplanes, tanks, guns, and other munitions, together with some naval patrol craft and a small amount of materials and equipment for use in arsenals and shipyards producing military equipment. These shipments are sent under the direction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff as part of the hemisphere defense program. No civilian supplies of any kind have been supplied to any other American Republic under lend-lease. No lend-lease aid has been provided to Argentina and the defense requirements of Panama are met by our own Panama Canal defenses.

Up to March 1, 1944, actual lend-lease shipments to the other American Republics had a total value of less than $136,000,000, while lend-lease transfers in the same period totaled $169,000,000. This was less than 1 percent of lend-lease exports to all areas. Two-thirds of these military supplies went to Brazil. In 1943 lend-lease exports to Latin America amounted to less than 12 percent of all United States exports to this area. Over 88 percent of our exports to Latin America were paid for in cash and went almost entirely through commercial channels. The dollar volume of United States commercial exports to Latin America in 1943 was, in fact, almost 50 percent higher than the average of our exports in the pre-war years 1936–1938.

Thirteen of the American Republics receiving lend-lease aid have either declared war on the Axis or have announced a state of belligerency and are members of the United Nations. The others have broken diplomatic relations with the Axis. These nations have given us military, economic warfare, and political aid through joint anti-submarine patrols on sea and in the air, permission to establish United States military, naval, and air bases and to fly United States planes over their territory, the severance of trade with the Axis, and active cooperation in the suppression of Axis subversive activities.

The American Republics have also cooperated with us in developing the production of raw materials absolutely essential to the war industry of the United States. We are receiving from Latin America a billion dollars worth a year of such strategic commodities as copper, lead, tungsten, tin, quinine, rubber, quartz crystals, mercury, rope fibers, vegetable fats and oils, and many others. Without the alloys supplied to us by the other American republics we would have been greatly handicapped in our production of alloy steel needed for our munitions production. Without the 99 percent of our quartz crystals that come from South America we could not have produced the radio-location and other communications equipment so vital to all our air and naval operations.

Other Shipments

Lend-lease exports totalling $603,013,000 are listed as going to other countries. These consist principally of supplies and equipment exported to Canada. These exports include military equipment and its components for re-export from Canada to the United Kingdom or other United Nations either directly or after further fabrication in Canadian factories. Such goods are transferred by the United States under lend-lease, not to Canada, but to the countries of ultimate destination. Other lend-lease exports to Canada have included trainer planes and small quantities of other supplies for the use of Norwegian, Polish, and other United Nations units in training on Canadian soil. The balance of lend-lease exports to Canada consists of supplies Canada has purchased for cash in this country for her own war effort, using the lend-lease procurement machinery.

Canada has her own mutual aid program under which she is supplying, without payment, to the United Kingdom, the Soviet Union, Australia, New Zealand, and other United Nations, $2,000,000,000 of additional war supplies produced in her own factories and shipyards.
The amount of lend-lease aid that may be provided under the various acts is summarized as follows:

II. Transfers Authorized From Other Appropriations

Direct appropriations have been made to the War and Navy Departments and to the Maritime Commission for the procurement of items which are in the main common to the use of our own armed forces and those of our allies. These items when produced can be used, in other words, by our armed forces or those of our allies in the manner in which they can be most effective in helping to defeat our common enemies. It is not until they are ready for distribution that they are allocated by the military experts in accordance with the strategic needs. The Appropriation Acts in question authorize transfers to our allies up to stated amounts under the Lend-Lease Act. That does not mean that transfers up to the stated amounts will necessarily be made. All that it means is that there is sufficient flexibility for the military authorities to assign the supplies where they will do the most good in winning the war.

1 No Master Lend-Lease Agreement has been concluded with either Australia or New Zealand; but in the Reciprocal Aid Agreements entered into with these countries, they accepted the principles of the Lend-Lease Agreement with the United Kingdom as applicable to their lend-lease relations with the United States.
2 Colombia declared a state of belligerency.
3 Territory under the jurisdiction of the French National Committee was declared eligible to receive lend-lease aid on November 11, 1941, and a Reciprocal Aid Agreement was entered into with the Committee on September 3, 1942. French North and West Africa were declared eligible to receive lend-lease aid on November 13, 1942. On September 25, 1943, a Lend-Lease Agreement governing lend-lease aid and Reciprocal Aid was entered into with the French Committee of National Liberation, successor to the French National Committee and to the Haute Commandement en Chef Civil et Militaire established in French North and West Africa after the events of November 1942.
4 In an exchange of notes dated November 30, 1942, Canada accepted the underlying principles of Article VII of the Master Agreement.

COMMENTS

Land-leasing farm machinery instead of additional farm tool resulted in a substantial saving in shipping space and in a smaller drain on our food supplies.

Increased food production in allied countries has been used in part for U.S. forces.

Allies' farm machinery plants were converted to ordnance production early in the war.

Land-leasing farm machinery has aided the British in increasing their farm production by 70%.

Leased shipments have been kept to the absolute minimum necessary for our allies' production of the food essential to our joint war effort.

LEND-LEASE ACT

Further to promote the defense of the United States, and for other purposes.

The President, by the Act of Congress approved January 21, 1939, entitled "An Act to Promote the Defense of the United States," authorized the Secretary of War to acquire for such purposes, by gift, purchase, condemnation, lease, or otherwise, any works or property of any foreign government, and to dispose of the same thereby acquired in such manner or manner as may be determined by the President. Such disposition may include the power to sell, transfer title to, exchange, or lease, or otherwise dispose of, to any such government, any defense article, but no defense article not manufactured or procured under paragraph (1) shall in any way be disposed of under this paragraph except after consultation with the Chief of Staff of the Army or the Chief of Naval Operations of the Navy, or both. The value of defense articles disposed of in any way under authority of this paragraph, and procured from funds heretofore appropriated, shall not exceed $1,300,000,000. The value of such defense articles shall be determined by the head of the department or agency concerned or such other department, agency, or officer as shall be designated in the manner provided in the rules and regulations issued hereunder. Defense articles procured from funds hereafter appropriated to any department or agency of the Government, other than from funds authorized to be appropriated under this Act, shall not be disposed of in any way under authority of this paragraph except to the extent hereafter authorized by the Congress in the Acts appropriating such funds or otherwise.

(2) To test, inspect, prove, repair, outfit, recondition, or otherwise to place in good working order, to the extent to which funds are made available therefor, or contracts are authorized from time to time by the Congress or both, any defense article for any such government, or to procure any or all such services by private contract.

(3) To communicate to any such government any defense information, pertaining to any defense article furnished to such government under paragraph (2) of this subsection.

(5) To release for export any defense article disposed of in any way under this subsection to any such government.

(b) The terms and conditions upon which any such foreign government receives any aid authorized under subsection (a) shall be those which the President deems satisfactory, and the benefit to the United States may be payment or repayment in kind or property, or any other direct or indirect benefit which the President deems satisfactory.

(c) After June 30, 1943, or after the passage of a concurrent resolution by the two Houses before June 30, 1943, which declares that the powers conferred by or pursuant to subsection (a) are no longer necessary to promote the defense of the United States, neither the President nor the head of any department or agency shall exercise any of the powers conferred by or pursuant to subsection (a); except that until July 1, 1946, any of such powers may be exercised to the extent necessary to carry out a contract or agreement with such a foreign government made before July 1, 1943, or before the passage of such concurrent resolution, whichever is the earlier.

(d) Nothing in this Act shall be construed to authorize or to permit the authorization of convoying vessels by naval vessels of the United States.

(e) Nothing in this Act shall be construed to authorize or to permit the authorization of the entry of any American vessel into a combat area in violation of section 3 of the Neutrality Act of 1939.
Section 4

All contracts or agreements made for the disposition of any defense article or defense information pursuant to section 3 shall contain a clause by which the foreign government undertakes that it will not, without the consent of the President, transfer title to or possession of such defense articles or defense information by gift, sale, or otherwise, or permit its use by anyone nor an officer, employee, or agent of such foreign government.

Section 5

(a) The Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, or the head of any other department or agency of the Government involved shall, when any such defense article or defense information is exported, immediately inform the department or agency designated by the President to administer section 6 of the Act of July 2, 1940 (54 Stat. 714), of the quantities, character, value, terms of disposition, and destination of the article and information so exported.

(b) The President, from time to time, but not less frequently than once every ninety days, shall transmit to the Congress a report of operations under this Act except such information as he deems incompatible with the public interest to disclose. Reports provided for under this subsection shall be transmitted to the Secretary of the Senate or the Clerk of the House of Representatives, as the case may be, if the Senate or the House of Representatives, as the case may be, is not in session.

Section 6

(a) There is hereby authorized to be appropriated from time to time, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, such amounts as may be necessary to carry out the provisions and accomplish the purposes of this Act.

(b) All money and all property which is converted into money received under section 3 from any government shall, with the approval of the Director of the Budget, revert to the respective appropriation or appropriations out of which funds were expended with respect to the defense article or defense information for which such consideration is received, and shall be available for expenditure for the purpose for which such expended funds were appropriated by law, during the fiscal year in which such funds are received and the ensuing fiscal year; but in no event shall any funds so received be available for expenditure after June 30, 1946.

Section 7

The Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, and the head of the department or agency shall, in all contracts or agreements for the disposition of any defense article or defense information, fully protect the rights of all citizens of the United States who have patent rights in and to any such article or information which is hereby authorized to be disposed of and the payments collected for royalties on such patents shall be paid to the owner and holders of such patents.

Approved, March 11, 1941.

On March 11, 1943, after affirmative votes of 407-6 in the House of Representatives and 82-0 in the Senate the President signed the Act extending the Lend-Lease Act until July 1, 1944.

On April 19, 1944, by vote of 344-21, the House of Representatives voted to extend the Lend-Lease Act until July 1, 1945, with the following amendment to Section 3 (b) of the Act as follows (new matter in italics):

"The terms and conditions upon which any such foreign government receives any aid authorized under subsection (a) shall be those which the President deems satisfactory, and the benefit to the United States may be payment or repayment in kind or property, or any other direct or indirect benefit which the President deems satisfactory: Provided, however, That nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to authorize the President in any final settlement to assume or incur any obligations on the part of the United States with respect to post-war economic policy, post-war military policy, or any post-war policy involving international relations except in accordance with established constitutional procedure."

On May 8, 1944, by vote of 63-1, the Senate also voted to extend the Act, with the same amendment as that adopted by the House except for deletion of the words "in any final settlement." On May 12 the House concurred in this change made by the Senate. On May 17 the President signed the Act.
Appendix II

BRITISH MASTER AGREEMENT

Agreement Between the Governments of the United States of America and of the United Kingdom on the Principles Applying to Mutual Aid in the Prosecution of the War Against Aggression, Authorized and Provided for by the Act of March 11, 1941.

Whereas the Governments of the United States of America and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland declare that they are engaged in a cooperative undertaking, together with every other nation or people of like mind, to the end of laying the bases of a just and enduring world peace securing order under law to themselves and all nations;

And whereas the President of the United States of America has determined, pursuant to the Act of Congress of March 11, 1941, that the defense of the United Kingdom against aggression is vital to the defense of the United States of America;

And whereas the United States of America has extended and is continuing to extend to the United Kingdom aid in resisting aggression;

And whereas it is expedient that the final determination of the terms and conditions upon which the Government of the United Kingdom receives such aid and the benefits to be received by the United States of America in return therefor should be deferred until the extent of the defense aid is known and until the progress of events makes clearer the final terms and conditions and benefits which will be in the mutual interests of the United States of America and the United Kingdom and will promote the establishment and maintenance of world peace;

And whereas the Governments of the United States of America and the United Kingdom are mutually desirous of concluding now a preliminary agreement in regard to the provision of defense aid and in regard to certain considerations which shall be taken into account in determining such terms and conditions and the making of such an agreement has been in all respects duly authorized, and all acts, conditions and formalities which it may have been necessary to perform, fulfill or execute prior to the making of such an agreement in conformity with the laws either of the United States of America or of the United Kingdom have been performed, fulfilled or executed as required;

The undersigned, being duly authorized by their respective Governments for that purpose, have agreed as follows:

Article I

The Government of the United States of America will continue to supply the Government of the United Kingdom with such defense articles, defense services, and defense information as the President shall authorize to be transferred or provided.

Article II

The Government of the United Kingdom will continue to contribute to the defense of the United States of America and the strengthening thereof and will provide such articles, services, facilities of information as it may be in a position to supply.

Article III

The Government of the United Kingdom will not without the consent of the President of the United States of America transfer title to, or possession of, any defense article or defense information transferred to it under the Act or permit the use thereof by anyone not an officer, employee, or agent of the Government of the United Kingdom.

Article IV

If, as a result of the transfer to the Government of the United Kingdom of any defense article or defense information, it becomes necessary for that Government to take any action or make any payment in order fully to protect any of the rights of a citizen of the United States of America who has patent rights in and to any such defense article or information, the Government of the United Kingdom will take such action or make such payment when requested to do so by the President of the United States of America.

Article V

The Government of the United Kingdom will return to the United States of America at the end of the present emergency, as determined by the President, such defense articles transferred under this Agreement as shall not have been destroyed, lost or consumed and as shall be determined by the President to be useful in the defense of the United States of America or of the Western Hemisphere or to be otherwise of use to the United States of America.

Article VI

In the final determination of the benefits to be provided to the United States of America by the Government of the United Kingdom full cognizance shall be taken of all property, services, information, facilities, or other benefits or considerations provided by the Government of the United Kingdom subsequent to March 11, 1941, and accepted or acknowledged by the President on behalf of the United States of America.
Article VII

In the final determination of the benefits to be provided to the United States of America by the Government of the United Kingdom in return for aid furnished under the Act of Congress of March 11, 1941, the terms and conditions thereof shall be such as not to burden commerce between the two countries, but to promote mutually advantageous economic relations between them and the betterment of world-wide economic relations. To that end, they shall include provision for agreed action by the United States of America and the United Kingdom, open to participation by all other countries of like mind, directed to the expansion, by appropriate international and domestic measures, of production, employment, and the exchange and consumption of goods, which are the material foundations of the liberty and welfare of all peoples; to the elimination of all forms of discriminatory treatment in international commerce, and to the reduction of tariffs and other trade barriers; and, in general, to the attainment of all the economic objectives set forth in the Joint Declaration made on August 12, 1941, by the President of the United States of America and the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom.

At an early convenient date, conversations shall be begun between the two Governments with a view to determining, in the light of governing economic conditions, the best means of attaining the above-stated objectives, by their own agreed action and of seeking the agreed action of other like-minded Governments.

Article VIII

This Agreement shall take effect as from this day’s date. It shall continue in force until a date to be agreed upon by the two Governments.

Signed and sealed at Washington in duplicate this 23d day of February, 1942.

Appendix III

RECI PROCAL AID AGREEMENTS

Reciprocal aid agreements with United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, and Fighting France were concluded September 3, 1942, by the following exchanges of notes. The first three agreements were signed in Washington and the agreement with Fighting France was signed in London.

Agreement With United Kingdom

The Honorable Cordell Hull,
Secretary of State, United States Department of State,
Washington, D. C.

Sir: In the United Nations declaration of January 1, 1942, the contracting governments pledged themselves to employ their full resources, military or economic, against those nations with which they are at war and in the Agreement of February 23, 1942, each contracting government undertook to provide the other with such articles, services, facilities, or information useful in the prosecution of their common war undertaking as each may be in a position to supply. It is further the understanding of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland that the general principle to be followed in providing mutual aid as set forth in the said Agreement of February 23, 1942, is that the war production and the war resources of both Nations should be used by the armed forces of each and of the other United Nations in ways which most effectively utilize the available materials, manpower, production facilities, and shipping space.

With a view, therefore, to supplementing Article 2 and Article 6 of the Agreement of February 23, 1942, between our two Governments for the provision of reciprocal aid, I have the honour to set forth below the understanding of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland of the principles and procedures applicable to the provision of aid by the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland to the armed forces of the United States and the manner in which such aid will be correlated with the maintenance of those forces by the United States Government.

1. While each Government retains the right of final decision, in the light of its own potentialities and responsibilities, decisions as to the most effective use of resources shall, so far as possible, be made in common, pursuant to common plans for winning the war.

2. As to financing the provision of such aid, within the fields mentioned below, it is the understanding of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland that the general principle to be applied, to the point at which the common war effort is most effective, is that as large a portion as possible of the articles and services which each Government may authorize to be provided to the other shall be in the form of reciprocal aid so that the need of each Government for the currency of the other may be reduced to a minimum.
It is accordingly the understanding of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland that the United States Government will provide, in accordance with the provisions of, and to the extent authorized under, the Act of March 11, 1941, the share of its war production made available to the United Kingdom. The Government of the United Kingdom will provide on the same terms and as reciprocal aid so much of its war production made available to the United States as it authorizes in accordance with the Agreement of February 23, 1942.

3. The Government of the United Kingdom will provide the United States or its armed forces with the following types of assistance as such reciprocal aid, when it is found that they can most effectively be procured in the United Kingdom or in the British Colonial Empire:

(a) Military equipment, munitions, and military and naval stores.
(b) Other supplies, materials, facilities, and services for the United States forces, except for the pay and allowances of such forces, administrative expenses, and such local purchases as its official establishments may make other than through the official establishments of the Government of the United Kingdom as specified in paragraph 4.
(c) Supplies, materials, and services needed in the construction of military projects, tasks, and similar capital works required for the common war effort in the United Kingdom or in the British Colonial Empire, except for the wages and salaries of United States citizens.
(d) Supplies, materials, and services needed in the construction of such military projects, tasks, and capital works in territory other than the United Kingdom or the British Colonial Empire or territory of the United States to the extent that the United Kingdom or the British Colonial Empire is a more practicable source of supply than the United States or another of the United Nations.

4. The practical application of the principles formulated in this note, including the procedure by which requests for aid by either Government are made and acted upon, shall be worked out as occasion may require by agreement between the two Governments, acting when possible through their appropriate military or civilian administrative authorities. Requests by the United States Government for such aid will be presented by duly authorized authorities of the United States to official agencies of the United Kingdom which will be designated or established in London and in the areas where United States forces are located for the purpose of facilitating the provision of reciprocal aid.

5. It is the understanding of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland that all such aid, as well as other aid, including information, received under Article 6 of the Agreement of February 23, 1942, accepted by the President of the United States or his authorized representatives from the Government of the United Kingdom will be received as a benefit to the United States under the Act of March 11, 1941.
Insofar as circumstances will permit, appropriate record of aid received under this arrangement, except for miscellaneous facilities and services, will be kept by each Government.

If the Government of the United States concurs in the foregoing, I would suggest that the present note and your reply to that effect be regarded as placing on record the understanding of our two Governments in this matter.
I have the honour to be, with the highest consideration, Sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

September 3, 1942

Halifax.

His Excellency the Right Honorable The Viscount Halifax, K. G., British Ambassador.

EXCELLENCY: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of Your Excellency's note of today's date concerning the principles and procedures applicable to the provision of aid by the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland to the armed forces of the United States of America.

In reply I wish to inform you that the Government of the United States agrees with the understanding of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland as expressed in that note. In accordance with the suggestion contained therein, your note and this reply will be regarded as placing on record the understanding between our two Governments in this matter.

This further integration and strengthening of our common war effort gives me great satisfaction.

Accept, Sir, the renewed assurances of my highest consideration.

Cordell Hull,
Secretary of State of the United States of America.

September 3, 1942

Agreement With Australia
The Honorable Cordell Hull,
Secretary of State, Washington, D. C.

Sir: As contracting parties to the United Nations Declaration of January 1, 1942, the Governments of the United States of America and the Commonwealth of Australia pledged themselves to employ their full resources, military and economic, against those nations with which they are at war.

With regard to the arrangements for mutual aid between our two Governments, I refer to the agreement signed at Washington on February 23, 1942, between the Governments of the United States of America and the United Kingdom on principles applying to mutual aid in the present war authorized and provided for by the Act of Congress of March 11, 1941, and have the honour to inform you that the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia accepts the principles therein contained as governing the provision of mutual aid between itself and the Government of the United States of America.

It is the understanding of the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia that the general principle to be followed in providing such aid is that the war production and war resources of both nations should be used by the armed forces of each, in the ways which most effectively utilize available materials, manpower, production facilities, and shipping space.

I now set forth the understanding of the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia of the principles and procedure applicable to the provision of aid by the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia to the armed forces of the United States and the manner in which such aid will be correlated with the maintenance of those forces by the United States Government.

1. While each Government retains the right of final decision, in the light of its own potentials and responsibilities, decisions as to the most effective use of resources shall, so far as possible, be made in common; pursuant to common plans for winning the war.

2. As to financing the provision of such aid, within the limits mentioned below, it is my understanding that the general principles to be applied to the point at which the common war effort is most effective, is that as large a portion as possible of the articles and services which each Government may authorize to be provided to the other shall be in the form of reciprocal aid so that the need of each Government for the currency of the other may be reduced to a minimum.

It is accordingly my understanding that the United States Government will provide, in accordance with the provisions of, and to the extent authorized under, the Act of March 11, 1941, the share of its war production made available to Australia. The Government of Australia will provide on the same terms and as reciprocal aid so much of its war production made available to the United States as it authorizes in accordance with the principles enunciated in this note.

3. The Government of Australia will provide as reciprocal aid the following types of assistance to the armed forces of the United States in Australia or its territories and in such other cases as may be determined by common agreement in the light of the development of the war.

(a) Military equipment, ammunition, and military and naval stores.

(b) Other supplies, materials, facilities, and services for the United States forces except for the pay and allowances of such forces, administrative expenses, and such local purchases as its official establishments may make other than through the official establishments of the Australian Government as specified in paragraph 4.

(c) Supplies, materials, and services needed in the construction of military projects, tasks and similar capital works required for the common war effort in Australia and in such other places as may be determined, except for the wages and salaries of United States citizens.

4. The practical application of the principles formulated in this note, including the procedure by which requests for aid by either Government are made and acted upon, shall be worked out as occasion may require by agreement between the two Governments, acting when possible through their appropriate military or civilian administrative authorities. Requests by the United States Government for such aid will be presented by duly authorized authorities of the United States to official agencies of the Commonwealth of Australia which will be designated or established in Canada and in the areas where United States forces are located for the purpose of facilitating the provision of reciprocal aid.

5. It is my understanding that all such aid accepted by the President of the United States or his authorized representatives from the Government of Australia will be received as a benefit to the United States under the Act of March 11, 1941. Insofar as circumstances will permit appropriate record of aid received under this arrangement, except for miscellaneous facilities and services, will be kept by each Government.

If the Government of the United States concurs in the foregoing, I would suggest that the present note and your reply to that effect be regarded as placing on record the understanding of our two Governments in this matter.

I have the honor to be with the highest consideration, Sir, your obedient servant,

Owen Dixon.

September 3, 1942.

The Honorable Sir Owen Dixon, K. C. M. G., Minister of Australia.

Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your note of today's date concerning the principles and procedures applicable to the provision of aid by the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia to the armed forces of the United States of America.

In reply I have the honor to inform you that the Government of the United States of America likewise accepts the principles contained in the agreement of February 23, 1942, between it and the Government of the United Kingdom as governing the provision of mutual aid between the Governments of the United States and of the Commonwealth of Australia.

My Government agrees with the understanding of the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia as expressed in your note of today's date, and, in accordance with the suggestion contained therein, your note and this reply will be regarded as placing on record the understanding between our two Governments in this matter.

This further integration and strengthening of our common war effort gives me great satisfaction.

Accept, Sir, the renewed assurances of my highest consideration.

Agreement With New Zealand

The Honorable Cordell Hull,
Secretary of State,
United States Department of State,
Washington, D. C.

Sir: As contracting parties to the United Nations Declaration of January 1, 1942, the Governments of the United States of America and New Zealand pledged themselves to employ their full resources, military and economic, against those nations with which they are at war.

In the Agreement of February 23, 1942, between the Governments of the United Kingdom and of the United States of America, the provisions and principles of which the Government of New Zealand considers applicable to its relations with the Government of the United States, each contracting Government undertook to provide the other with such articles, services, facilities, or information useful in the prosecution of their common war undertaking as each may be in a position to supply.

It is the understanding of the Government of New Zealand that the general principle to be followed in providing such aid is that the war production and war resources of both nations should be used by each, in the ways which most effectively utilize available materials, manpower, production facilities, and shipping space.

I now set forth the understanding of the Government of New Zealand of the principles and procedure applicable to the provision of aid by the Government of New Zealand to the armed forces of the United States and the manner in which such aid will be correlated with the maintenance of those forces by the United States Government.

1. While each Government retains the right of final decision, in the light of its own potentialities and responsibilities, decisions as to the most effective use of resources shall, so far as possible, be made in common, pursuant to common plans for winning the war.

2. As to financing the provision of such aid, within the fields mentioned below, it is my understanding that the general principle to be applied, to the point at which the common war effort is most effective, is that as large a portion as possible of the articles and services to be provided by each Government to the other shall be in the form of reciprocal aid so that the need of each Government for the currency of the other may be reduced to a minimum.

It is accordingly my understanding that the United States Government will provide, in accordance with the provisions of, and to the extent authorized under, the Act of March 11, 1941, the share of its production made available to New Zealand. The Government of New Zealand will provide on the same terms and as reciprocal aid so much of its production made available to the United States as it authorizes in accordance with the principles enunciated in this note.

3. The Government of New Zealand will provide the United States or its armed forces with the following types of assistance, as such reciprocal aid, when it is found that they can most effectively be procured in New Zealand.

(a) Military equipment, munitions, and military and naval stores.
(b) Other supplies, materials, facilities, and services for the United States forces, except for the pay and allowances of such forces, administrative expenses, and such local purchases as its official establishments may make other than through the official establishments of the Government of New Zealand as specified in Paragraph 4.

(c) Supplies, materials, and services needed in the construction of military projects, tasks, and similar capital works required for the common war effort in New Zealand, except for the wages and salaries of United States citizens.

(d) Supplies, materials, and services needed in the construction of such military projects, tasks, and capital works in territory other than New Zealand or territory of the United States to the extent that New Zealand is a more practicable source of supply than the United States or another of the United Nations.

4. The practical application of the principles formulated in this note, including the procedure by which requests for aid by either Government are made and acted upon, shall be worked out as occasion may require by agreement between the two Governments, acting when possible through their appropriate military or civilian administrative authorities.

5. It is my understanding that all such aid accepted by the President of the United States or his authorized representatives from the Government of New Zealand will be received as a benefit to the United States under the Act of March 11, 1941. In so far as circumstances will permit, appropriate record of aid received under this agreement, except for miscellaneous facilities and services, will be kept by each Government.

If the Government of the United States concurs in the foregoing, I would suggest that the present note and your reply to that effect be regarded as placing on record the understanding of our two Governments in this matter.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,

WALTER NASH,
Minister of New Zealand.

The Honorable WALTER NASH,
Minister of New Zealand.

Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your note of today's date concerning the principles and procedures applicable to the provision of aid by the Government of New Zealand to the armed forces of the United States of America.

In reply I have the honor to inform you that the Government of the United States of America likewise considers the provisions and principles contained in the agreement of February 23, 1942, between it and the Government of the United Kingdom as applicable to its relations with the Government of New Zealand. My Government agrees with the understanding of the Government of New Zealand as expressed in your note of today's date, and, in accordance with the suggestion contained therein, your note and this reply will be regarded as placing on record the understanding between our two Governments in this matter.

Agreement With French National Committee

TEXT OF NOTE TO GENERAL DAILQUIST FROM FRENCH NATIONAL COMMITTEE

The French National Committee sets forth below its understanding of the principles governing the provision of reciprocal aid by the United States of America to Fighting France and by Fighting France to the United States:

1. The United States of America will continue to supply Fighting France with such defense articles, defense services, and defense information as the President shall authorize to be transferred or provided.

2. Fighting France will continue to contribute to the defense of the United States of America and the strengthening thereof and will provide such articles, services, facilities, or information as it may be in a position to supply.

3. The fundamental principle to be followed in providing such aid is that the war production and war resources of Fighting France and of the United States of America should be used by the armed forces of each in the ways which most effectively utilize available materials, manpower, production facilities, and shipping space. While each retains the right of final decision, in the light of its own potentialities and responsibilities, decisions as to the most effective use of resources shall, so far as possible, be made in common, pursuant to common plans for winning the war.

4. As to financing the provision of such aid, within the fields mentioned below, it is the Committee's understanding that the general principle to be applied, to the point at which the common war effort is most effective, is that as large a portion as possible of the articles and services to be provided by each to the other shall be in the form of reciprocal aid.

5. It is accordingly the Committee's understanding that the United States Government will provide, in accordance with the provisions of, and to the extent authorized under, the Act of March 11, 1941, the share of its war production made available to Fighting France. Fighting France will provide on the same terms and as reciprocal aid so much of its war production made available to the United States as it authorized in accordance with the principles enunciated in this note.

6. The practical application of the principles formulated in this note, including the procedure by which requests for aid are made and acted upon, shall be worked out by agreement as occasion may require through the appropriate military or civilian administrative authorities. Requests by the United States forces for such aid will be presented by their duly authorized authorities to official agencies of Fighting France which will be designated or established in the areas where United States forces are located for the purpose of facilitating the provision of reciprocal aid.

7. It is the Committee's understanding that all such aid accepted by the President of the United States or his authorized representatives from Fighting France will be received as a benefit to the United States under the Act of March 11, 1941. Insofar as circumstances will permit, appropriate record of aid received under this arrangement, except for miscellaneous facilities and services, will be kept by each.

If the Government of the United States concurs in the foregoing, the present note and a reply to that effect will be regarded as placing on record the understanding in this matter.

MODUS VIVENDI ON RECIPROCAL AID IN FRENCH NORTH AND WEST AFRICA

The Government of the United States and the French Committee of National Liberation, desirous of lending each other the reciprocal aid necessary to the prosecution of the joint war effort, are agreed upon the following provisional Modus Vivendi which will, following signature, be applicable in French North and West Africa:

I. With reference to supplies and services urgently needed to maintain the French war effort, which the United States has furnished to the French authorities and will continue to furnish, within limitations of need and supply, it is understood that:

(a) Military aid, including supplies for railroads, docks, public utilities, and other facilities to the extent that such supplies are determined to be military aid is made available on a straight Lend-Lease basis, in the light of the considerations set forth in Paragraph V. Such aid does not include the pay and allowances of French forces. The United States reserves the right to require the return of any articles furnished under this paragraph and not lost, destroyed or consumed,

(i) if at any time it is decided that such restoration would be an advantage in the conduct of the war, or

(ii) if at the end of the present emergency as determined by the President of the United States, the President shall determine that such articles are useful in the defense of the United States or of the Western Hemisphere, or to be otherwise of use to the United States.

(b) For all civilian supplies imported from the United States, the French authorities will pay upon the basis of prices to be agreed. Payment will be made, currently at convenient intervals, in dollars, to an appropriately designated account in the United States.

(c) The distinction between civilian and military aid, supplies and services, where such distinction may be necessary, will be made by agreement.

(d) In order to obtain the supplies and services included within the scope of Paragraph II (a), duly authorized United States officers or other officials will submit their requests to the official services duly designated by the French authorities. These services will be established in Algiers, Casablanca, Oran, Tunis, Dakar, and other places where it may be found practicable and convenient to establish organizations for facilitating the transfer of reciprocal aid.

II. With reference to supplies and services urgently needed to maintain the United States war effort, which the French authorities have furnished to the United States and will continue to furnish, within limitations of need and supply, it is understood that:

(a) The French authorities undertake to make available to or for the use of the armed forces and other governmental agencies of the United States, as reverse Lend-Lease aid to the United States, on a straight Lend-Lease basis, when it is found that such aid can most effectively be procured in territory under their control.

(i) military equipment, munitions, and military and naval stores;

(ii) other supplies, materials, facilities and services for United States forces, including the use of railway and port facilities, but not including the pay and allowances of such forces or the administrative expenses of American missions;

(iii) supplies, materials, facilities and services, except for the wages and salaries of United States citizens, needed in the construction of military projects, tasks and similar capital works required in the common war effort, to the extent that French North or West Africa is the most practicable source of such supplies, materials, facilities or services;

(iv) such other supplies, materials, services or facilities as may be agreed upon as necessary in the prosecution of the war, but not including exports of civilian supplies to the United States from North and West Africa.

While the French authorities retain, of course, the right of final decision subject to the obligations and arrangements they have entered into for the prosecution of the war, decisions as to the most effective use of resources shall, so far as possible, be made in common, pursuant to common plans for winning the war.

(b) All civilian supplies exported from French North and West Africa to the United States will be paid for on the basis of prices to be agreed. Payment will be made currently, at convenient intervals, in dollars, to an appropriate designated account in the United States.

(c) The distinction between civilian and military aid, supplies and services, where such distinction may be necessary, will be made by agreement.

(d) In order to obtain the supplies and services included within the scope of Paragraph II (a), duly authorized United States officers or other officials will submit their requests to the official services duly designated by the French authorities. These services will be established in Algiers, Casablanca, Oran, Tunis, Dakar, and other places where it may be found prac-

By virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the United States, and particularly by the Act of March 11, 1941, entitled "An Act further to promote the defense of the United States and for other purposes" (hereafter referred to as the Act), and by the Defense Aid Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1941, approved March 27, 1941, and acts amendatory or supplemental thereto, in order to define further the functions and duties of the Office for Emergency Management of the Executive Office of the President in respect to the national emergency as declared by the President on May 27, 1941, and in order to provide for the more effective administration of those Acts in the interests of national defense, it is hereby ordered as follows:

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

May 22, 1944

Re: Printing of additional French currency to implement anti-inflationary program in France.

During his current discussions here, M. Mendes-France, Commissioner of Finance of the French Comité, has outlined the measures which the French believe necessary in order to penalize collaborators, to impose effective taxation on war profiteers, and to combat the threat of a runaway inflation in France after liberation. This program is modeled upon the program which we got the French to adopt in Tunisia and which they subsequently repeated in Corsica. Similar programs are already being planned by the Dutch, Belgians and Norwegians.

This program requires the issuance of a new distinctive currency throughout France after liberation and the calling in of all outstanding notes issued during the German occupation as well as those issued during our military operations in France.

In order to be able to put this program into effect, it is necessary to start printing this currency at once and the Treasury has been asked to handle the job.

The Comité understands that the new issue of currency cannot bear inscriptions or symbols which will raise political issues and they are prepared to accept this decision. They also understand that the new notes will remain under the control of this Government until such time as this Government is prepared to release the notes to whatever French authorities are finally determined to be responsible for civil affairs administration in France.

This matter has been taken up with the U.S. side of the Combined Civil Affairs Committee which has agreed to the French request, subject to your approval.

We feel that under the conditions outlined above the French request does not involve any present political considerations. We think that it is a reasonable request and recommend that you give it your approval.

I have informed the Minister of Poland of the substance of the Department's confidential telegram no. 659 of May 17, 8 p.m., regarding measures which might be taken for the protection of certain internees at Vittel, France. The Minister seemed to find the Department's policy in this matter an entirely reasonable one, and indicated he would refrain from sending his proposed notes to the Governments of Colombia, Venezuela and Ecuador; but would refer the matter back to his government which in turn might consider the Department's suggestion that the Polish Government consult the Inter-American Emergency Advisory Committee for Political Defense in regard to the matter.

In the absence of further developments or instructions, I do not contemplate taking any further action in the matter.

The Department and the War Refugee Board appreciate the information contained in your A-968, and are pleased to learn that the Cuban authorities will not, during the duration of the war, raise the question at issue of the validity of passports.

The critical nature of the situation makes it vital however that the documents in reference should not be considered as open to challenge. Please urge the Cuban Government therefore to take the positive actions outlined in the Department's A-738 of May 3, and to uphold its attitude in the face of possible German challenge.

It is understood that, in any exchange negotiations which may be entered into, unquestioned citizens of Cuba will be considered by this Government as being in a category entitled to priority over others. Please so advise Cuban officials.

Your attention is again drawn to the assurances given in the Department's circular airgrams of March 31 and April 11 and to the stand taken by this Government regarding refugees claiming American citizenship as outlined in the circular airgram of May 11. You are requested to urge speedy action, in view of the imminent danger in which the persons concerned find themselves. Please inform the Department of any developments.

From War Refugee Board to Minister Johnson and Olsen

Reference your 1636 of May 8 concerning the sympathetic attitude of new Bulgarian Minister to Stockholm toward the Jewish situation.

For your confidential information, a similar situation was exploited by Hirschman, the War Refugee Board attachée in Ankara, with regard to the Bulgarian Minister to Turkey, who in addition to being sympathetic on the Jewish question was reputedly close to Marshal Antonescu. With Ambassador Steinhardt’s approval two personal interviews were arranged between Hirschman and Minister Cretzianu at the home of the Intercessor representative at Ankara with whom Hirschman is personally friendly. It was felt by Ambassador Steinhardt and Hirschman that a direct approach of this type would make a much greater impression on the Bulgarian Government than an indirect approach.

Following is an account of Hirschman’s interviews with Cretzianu.
At outset of interview Hirschman made it clear that his sole function in Ankara was as representative of the War Refugee Board to deal with refugee problems, that the discussion was to be confined exclusively to this subject, and that any other interpretation placed upon the conversation either by Cretzianu or his Government would be a deliberate distortion. Hirschman then outlined to Cretzianu the outraged feeling of the Government of the United States at the brutal treatment which was being accorded the Jewish minorities and other refugees in Bulgaria and the United States’ determination to do everything in its power to rescue such unfortunate who are in imminent danger of death and to find havens of refuge for them. Hirschman warned that our Government would keep in mind in the future any continuation by the Bulgarian Government of the execution of these policies of Hitlerite persecution, and that the Bulgarian Government would be well advised in its own interest to take advantage of such opportunities as may be available to it in the future to permit refugees to depart across its borders. Cretzianu was invited by Hirschman to repeat the substance of the above interview to his Government.
Cretzianu assured Hirschman that provided the Germans had not taken over from Bulgaria the administration of Transnistria, which was directly in the path of the retreating German army and where many thousands of Jews were held in Bulgarian concentration camps, no deadly harm would come to any of the many Jews in Transnistria. Cretzianu also gave Hirschman a definite assurance that an arrival of evacuation vessels at Constanta to embark up to 2000 Jewish refugee children, the necessary transportation and exit visas would be provided promptly. Lastly Cretzianu promised to send an urgent telegram to Bucharest recommending in the strongest terms that efforts be made at once to transfer the Jewish refugees held in Transnistria to Romania proper.

A few days later Cretzianu requested a second interview with Hirschman in which......
Bulgarian Government's failure to reply to Balabanoff's telegram and memorandum has created an unfavorable impression on this Government and that such action will be taken into account in the final reckoning, for it is indicative that Bulgaria has not yet determined to turn its back on the Nazi ideology of race and minority persecution. Following is quotation from nation wide radio broadcast made by John Fehle on May 14. Referring to satellite nations, Fehle stated:

"We can bring about a more liberal attitude toward the refugees by making it quite clear to these countries that the United States and the United Nations will bear in mind their treatment of minorities when the time for final settlement comes." If the Bulgarian Government is sincere in its claim made through Balabanoff to have relaxed its attitude toward minorities and particularly the Jews, there is no better way of manifesting such a changed attitude than by permitting Jews and other refugees to depart to Turkey and Palestine by both rail and ship. No such organized exodus has yet come to the attention of the War Refugee Board despite Balabanoff's claim to the contrary.

The possibility of an orderly evacuation of refugees from Bulgaria to Turkey by land should be thoroughly canvassed. In addition the Bulgarian Government may find it to its advantage to press Bulgarian ships into evacuating refugees from Bulgarian ports by sea. Such ships would be protected by a safe conduct from the Russian, British and American Governments with the War Refugee Board would undertake to obtain. Furthermore the ship owners would not be expected to operate their ships without fair compensation. In this connection see our No.356 of May 12, indicating that certain ships flying the Bulgarian flag may perhaps already have taken some very limited advantage of this type of arrangement. It is the War Refugee Board's desire to start an exodus of refugees from Bulgaria similar to the one which took place from Constanza during April and which it is hoped will continue. Alternatively the Board would desire to increase evacuations from Constanza by the use of additional Bulgarian shipping. Inasmuch as the Bulgarian ships mentioned in our No.356 have apparently operated without benefit of a German safe conduct, this may be a solution to German delay tactics in granting safe conducts which have immobilized the TAMI to date.

Further developments should be sent to us promptly.

Following is Stockholm's No. 20 for the War Refugee Board.

We have completed discussions with the Lithuanian and Latvian groups mentioned in our VEB No. 14 (Legation's message of May 16, No. 1728) regarding evacuating certain groups from these two countries. Prospects seem fair for removing six or seven intellectual, racial and political refugees from each country although operations are dangerous and complicated. An important factor is the time element of initiating such operations in the immediate future. The plans have been checked as carefully as possible and Olsen has discussed them on a highly secret basis with the appropriate official in the Swedish Foreign Office, who was sympathetic and cooperative and believes that the program will facilitate prospects of success.

The funds to carry out these operations will approximate same as Estonian plan. As it is urgent that the preparations get under way, please advise as soon as possible of the likelihood of financial support being made available for these operations.

CABLE TO MINISTER HARRISON AND MCQUEEN, ZURICH, SWITZERLAND

Reference is made to Department's 1O28 of March 27 and your 2I12 of April 15.

Please represent to Intercess that according to persistent and seemingly authentic reports, systematic mass-execution of Jews in Hungary has begun. The lives of 800,000 human beings may well depend on the restraint that may result from the presence in Hungary of the largest possible number of international observers. It is difficult to believe that measures designed to check such slaughter directly or indirectly can be considered by Intercess as QUOTE intruding into domestic policy UNQUOTE. Within the meaning of your 2I12. If the measure suggested is unprecedented, so is the emergency.

Please convey to Intercess the urgent hope of the Government of the United States that the special delegation requested in our 1O28 will be sent forthwith to Hungary. Failing this, it is felt that a considerable and immediate enlarging of Intercess delegation in Budapest and throughout Hungary, especially in the localities in which Jews are being concentrated, is an elementary humanitarian obligation of Intercess in face of this man-made disaster.

Confident that Intercess will rise to the emergency, this Government would appreciate receiving prompt information as to the number and distribution of Intercess delegates in Hungary and as to the extent to which they are able to observe the treatment of Jews in that country.

I was informed by the Foreign Minister in personal interview that the request of the Government of Germany for the rectification of the boundary between the two countries was in accordance with the views of the President expressed in his message of April 14th. I declared it unnecessary to answer this representatives of the German Government. The following is a copy of my message of April 14th:

"The President of the United States, in the message addressed to the Senate on April 14th, 1884, expressed the opinion that it would be desirable to have the boundary between the United States and Germany as accurately as possible. The request of the German Government for the rectification of this boundary is in accordance with the views of the President expressed in his message of April 14th. I therefore feel bound to answer this request by saying that the United States Government has no objection to the rectification of the boundary between the United States and Germany, provided that the request is made in accordance with the views of the President expressed in his message of April 14th."

We authorize you to transmit at sender’s expense via War Refugee Board messages referring to relief and rescue of refugees and related matters from Yehud Shindal, Galata, Yaziie Victoria, to Israel Mereminski, New York. Shind and Mereminski represent the General Jewish Labor Federation of Palestine.

The following message is from Israel Mereminski, 510 West 112 Street, New York to Yehud Shindal:

"Cable immediately concrete proposals facilitating and speeding transportation ships and overland and other problems arising in your work, also information rescue possibilities and influence on local populations by broadcasts from here. To avoid delay, you may ask American Consulate General to transmit your messages for me through War Refugee Board."

HULL
From War Refugee Board to Ambassador Steinhardt, Ankara, Turkey

Reference our 879 of April 26 concerning use of the RANDALAND for evacuation of refugees.

Word has been received from Ambassador Vinant that the British have no (repeat no) objection to use of RANDALAND for refugee evacuation. On May 13 we cabled Minister Johnson in Stockholm requesting him to ask the Swedish Government whether in view of the British action it would be willing to make the RANDALAND available to the War Refugee Board. We suggested that if the Swedish Government were so willing as a preliminary step the Swedish Government should sound out the German Government's willingness to grant the RANDALAND safe conduct for such an evacuation operation.

On May 13 Minister Johnson replied that the Swedish Foreign Office appeared distinctly cooperative and that if all details were worked out it would be willing to charter the RANDALAND for refugee evacuation. According to Minister Johnson the RANDALAND is being withdrawn from Greek relief primarily because it is badly in need of overhauling. However Minister Johnson feels that the vessel must be sufficiently seaworthy for refugee evacuation operations in view of the fact that after May 18 it was scheduled to depart for Lisbon and across the Atlantic to pick up cargo. The Swedish Foreign Office has wired the master of the RANDALAND inquiring whether he considers the vessel sufficiently seaworthy for such evacuation operations.

After advising that the RANDALAND is a cargo vessel of 4575 deadweight tons with virtually no accommodations for passengers Minister Johnson asked to know the number of trips anticipated, the number of refugees involved, between what ports the ship would operate, and the organization which would assume responsibility for the refugees until they reach their final destination. Minister Johnson suggested that the German Government would be more likely to act favorably on a safe conduct request and a request for diversion if the RANDALAND were chartered to some neutral agency such as Intercross rather than the War Refugee Board. Finally Minister Johnson advised that on May 18 the RANDALAND would be released from its charter to the Swedish Red Cross costing between 2000 and 4000 kroner a day and inquired whether the War Refugee Board would be willing to assume the charter liability as of that date even if the charter negotiations ultimately proved unsuccessful.
Please thank the Swedish Government for its sympathetic and cooperative attitude in this humanitarian undertaking. UNCLASSIFIED

We hope that our suggestion that the BANDALAND put in at Istanbul to be fitted with the necessary passenger accommodations in a satisfactory arrangement insofar as the Turkish Government is concerned. Of course, the information in Minister Johnson's cable concerning the BANDALAND's equipment merely confirms what you had earlier advised us in your No. 237 of March 8. If the above arrangement is not (repeat not) satisfactory to the Turkish Government we would much appreciate an alternative suggestion from you.

You will note we are suggesting that Istanbul rather than Haifa be made the final destination of the proposed voyage of the BANDALAND. This was done on the urgent recommendation of a representative of the War Shipping Administration who suggested that the obtaining of the safe conduct from Constanza to Haifa would be extremely difficult and would be certain to entail much delay. He did not (repeat not) anticipate as great difficulties in obtaining safe conduct for a voyage whose ultimate destination would be Istanbul. This representative stated also that the alterations necessary to prepare the BANDALAND for the short run between Constanza and Istanbul would be relatively simple and quickly installed particularly in comparison to the alterations necessary to prepare the BANDALAND for the run between Constanza and Haifa which would be a major undertaking. For the latter run not only would greater attention have to be given to the minimum comfort of the passengers, but also fairly extensive feeding and sleeping facilities would have to be installed.

In this representative's opinion many more and perhaps even twice as many passengers could be carried on the shorter Istanbul run. He stated that even more could be carried on the Constanza-Istanbul run if weather conditions in the Black Sea area permit passengers to be carried on the open deck.

Reference our 236 April 13 April-45 concerning the time when the TARI charter should be signed in view of German delay in taking action on TARI safe conduct.

Please advise the date as of which the War Refugee Board became liable for penalty payments under the TARI charter agreement.

Reference your 736 of May 8 concerning arrival of SS NILKA. Please advise present status of shipping out of Constanza. Specifically what are the dates of the next recent sailings of the NILKA, MARITZA, and NILACIFERA and what are the plans for their future sailings?

Present: Mr. Haas
Mr. D. W. Bell
Mr. Lindow
Mr. Murphy
Mr. Tickton

H.M.JR: You were asking what George sent me. It has an orange slip.

MR. BELL: I got this. I said I hadn't seen it yesterday morning and didn't know what it was all about for yesterday morning's meeting. I didn't know when you were talking to George yesterday morning what it was all about. I didn't know there was any worry about the market.

H.M.JR: What is the worry about the market?

MR. HAAS: I just wanted to say a few words about it. I think it is a good idea that Dan calls up the people up there and once in a while Rouse calls me, but I think the situation now is important enough that you talk to Sproul. I don't think--I think they have done a magnificent job if you look at Henry's chart of holding the pattern. They are off a little bit. But nevertheless, I think you should call them as a precautionary measure. The question of this invasion; they may be all set up there, but the market has been going along nicely and usually people aren't, so I think as a precautionary measure you should talk to them. Some people in New York are jittery about it and feel if the invasion wasn't initially successful, that people may start thinking of the debt, instead of in the neighborhood of three hundred, after the war, maybe five or six hundred. It may have an effect on the market and I think they should be prepared not to let the market slip at all.
H.M.JR: (Referring to chart) Where is May 30, 1944?

MR. MURPHY: We always compare the present with the base date of September 19, 1942. The reason we use that date is, you originally talked to Mr. Sproul and asked him to hold the market of March 19, 1942 and you asked this chart be set up. The market has declined a little in prices. It has gained a little in prices in here. (Pointing) The Exchange, considering the period of elapse, has held remarkably well.

H.M.JR: You remember your speech, Mr. Haas? We will give you a chance. Go ahead.

MR. HAAS: I think you should be prepared and you should tell them so, that if the market should get in a selling or weak mood, they shouldn't give an iota on it, because the whole confidence in the market is confidence that the thing will be held. If they get in the attitude, "Well, we are going to let it decline", it will be terrible to put this back together again. It's a question of whether it could be. So a break shouldn't occur at all. They should be prepared as far as the invasion goes.

Now, with the question of the Fifth War Loan coming up, I think the tone of the market could be improved. Now, maybe Rouse and Sproul have that in mind. It wouldn't hurt to tell them just how to do that specifically, that it's a trial and error proposition. You can't tell them specifically. What looks to us as though it might help the situation out by doing something on the long end—that is the weakest part of it. That is about all there is to it. I might say that they work hard up there, no doubt, and I think once in a while it is well to hear from the sponsor.

H.M.JR: Well, before I answer your reaction, I'd like to next hear from the Honorable Daniel Illinois Bell.
MR. BELL: Well, I see no harm in your calling up Allan or Bob. I think they have got the situation well in hand. I talked to Bob Housse almost every day about the market and he tells me of his conversations with the dealers and has even gotten over now into the stock exchange people. He says no one has the jitters in New York, everyone feels fine. I talked to him last night just before he went home. He said, "I just had a conversation with Devine, and he said that everybody is feeling fine about this market and about the Fifth War Loan." The only thing we talked about last week that we might have to do, we thought maybe people would be offering the long two and a half's, in other words, to get some money to invest in the Fifth War Loan. I told him if he needed any help from me that I thought I could dig up ten or twenty million dollars of investment funds.

H.M.JR: Who said that?

MR. BELL: I did. He said, "Well all right, I'll watch it." He told me yesterday that very little had come into the market on the long two and a half's. He said, "It may take care of itself, but I am still watching it and if I need the funds, I'll let you know."

He feels very good about the market and I think Allan does too. The people with whom they converse feel very good about it. Of course, there may be people who have the invasion jitters. There are a lot in Washington and a lot in New York, no doubt. I have talked to him a number of times about the possibilities of what the market might do on invasion. He has talked to the dealers. The dealers don't think that they will have any difficulty with invasion, one way or the other. They might have to purchase some securities, though he doesn't think it will be a large volume. They think people are pretty well shock-proof. That is a matter of judgment and they can be wrong.
H.M. JR: Where is the two and a half's in this book?

MR. MURPHY: Right at the end, Mr. Secretary. (Mr. Murphy points them out)

MR. BELL: The closer you get to the Drive, why you're two and a half's are going to be par, because no one is going to buy them at premium.

H.M. JR: Here is the thing, George. If I call up, see, the Federal Reserve today and say, "Now look, when the invasion comes, I want you to do that and this and this," it will spread all over that the invasion was going to be tomorrow. They would take it for granted that I know. Do you see?

MR. HAAS: I see.

H.M. JR: "The Secretary called up— you know. It must be around the corner." And I personally think it would be inadvisable. After all, when the thing comes, now Eisenhower has gotten out his Second Directive. I suppose there will at least be three, I don't know. But certainly the second one is today, and I suppose there will be another one.

MR. BELL: I do have this understanding with Bob, that he won't go away any place.

(Miss McCathran enters office)

H.M. JR: Miss McCathran, you talked to somebody over in the War Department.

MISS McCATHRAN: Major Ruby.

H.M. JR: Ask him if, in the Second Directive, which General Eisenhower gave out yesterday to the Underground in France, whether he said publicly when the Third was to come. When he gave the first one he said at the end the next will come Monday. Did he say at the end of this one when the next one will come?
(Miss McCathran leaves the office)

MR. BELL: Bob won't go any place that he can't get back.

H.M. JR: Don't you think I am right? Oh, sure I'm right. I don't have to ask.

MR. HAAS: I think--

H.M. JR: I mean, supposing Mr. Stimson calls me up and says, "Are you all right on your financial market? Are you all ready for invasion?" I'd take that as a tip the thing was around the corner. Wouldn't you?

MR. BELL: Yes, if Secretary Stimson did that, I certainly would.

H.M. JR: Well, they don't expect Stimson to call, but if I called New York--well I don't know. I know within a given period when it's coming. But I don't know the date.

MR. HAAS: Well you have two places--one is, you have this Fifth War Loan coming up. You can call them on that.

H.M. JR: George, you can't sell me a bill of goods. Thank you for bringing it to my attention. It's part of your job to do that.

MR. HAAS: I thought it is always better to worry before than after.

H.M. JR: But there is this whole question of military secrecy. Look, the thing, let's say it starts tonight or tomorrow or the night after. We will all hear it on the radio. It's going to be at night, I take it. I don't know, I just guess it will be at night.
MR. HAAS: Would you consider this, when it's known publicly when it starts, to call him and tell him to hold that market absolutely, not letting it go at all?

H.M.JR.: Sure.

MR. HAAS: Like Dan says, be sure nobody takes a vacation up there.

MR. BELL: I have already taken care of that. Nobody is going. Even if Bob goes off Saturday, he stays around the house where he can be gotten within five minutes.

MR. MURPHY: I think what Mr. Haas is trying to avoid is the descent in depth of the Government Bond Market. He believes more in the matter of holding the front line.

H.M.JR.: I'll make you fellows a bet, that the first day of the invasion the bond market doesn't drop.

MR. HAAS: I don't know how the other boys feel, I wouldn't want to bet, but I think you have to take every precaution.

H.M.JR.: O.K. I'll hear it. I think too you could do a little dressing up for the Fifth War Loan. Yes, but I don't want to call them down.

MR. BELL: I am constantly in touch with them. There isn't a day I don't talk to New York.

H.M.JR.: Do you think it has to be dressed up?

MR. BELL: No, I think, along here, I may buy a few of the long two and a half's, like we did before we went into the Fourth, about ten million dollars of the two and a half's and the Federal Reserve, I think, bought ten, just before we went into the Fourth. I think we might do the same thing here. But they are not on the market in any volume. The market is just hanging there.
H.M.JR: And the excess reserves are up from six to nine million. O.K. Let's worry about something worth while worrying about. What the hell!

MR. BELL: I am not worried yet.

H.M.JR: George, you keep on worrying, don't get sick on the day of invasion.

MR. HAAS: Tell me which day it is.

H.M.JR: All right, school is over.
EMPLOYEE RELATIONS

Present: Mr. C. S. Bell
        Mrs. Doyle
        Mrs. Klotz

H.M.JR: How do you do?

What I want to ask you people is this: If I were running a munitions factory, I would all the time have somebody working with my employees on morale, to keep them interested, to keep their production up, let them know what the war is about. I spend all the time telling other factories how to do it, working with Colonel Gow. We sit up nights telling other people how to do it, but I wondered what we do with our own employees to keep up their morale, their incentive, their efficiency. Now, what is the answer?

MR. BELL: Locally we do a whole lot more than we do in the field. That is because, I guess, we are living closer with the Washington group than we do with the field. The field employees go through the bureaus and out into the field.

Generally, the pattern out for Washington is the pattern the bureau chiefs are guided by in doing it for the field. There are a number of things that we do here. We look after the employees' welfare. We loan them money. If they have illness at home, we send them home. If they can't pay their bills, we pay them. There is just a variety of little things like that, that the Treasury does. There is no one that can get into a scrap or a jam in the Treasury through no fault of his own who wouldn't be helped.

H.M.JR: We did that in peacetime.

MR. BELL: I think that goes back quite a long ways.
H.M.JR: I say, we used to do that. That is nothing new.

MR. BELL: That is right.

H.M.JR: That is the old procedure which we had, I think, from the time I was here.

MR. BELL: Over two years ago we started filling gasoline tanks for all Treasury employees. That has been a terrific burden. We have carried all the way through to OPA and gotten clearance for their gasoline. We have built up a car-sharing plan for all Treasury employees. There isn't an employee of the Treasury Department but what can get a ride to work if they are willing to contribute their own car to the pool. We have handled that in our own central office until now, but it has gotten so voluminous now that we have to decentralize that.

H.M.JR: Now, what do they do in Chicago or New York along those lines?

MR. BELL: What I said to start out with, Gene Sloan would pick up the pattern from Washington and attempt to put in those same measures in Chicago.

H.M.JR: Has he?

MR. BELL: I doubt whether he has gone as far as we have, but with the car-sharing plan, I would say they have.

H.M.JR: Have they in New York?

MR. BELL: I think you will find all over the country the gasoline rationing and the car-sharing plan. I don't know positively, but it all originated out of OPA, and they get the same circulars we get.

H.M.JR: I have a definite recommendation I am going to make.

Well, that is one thing. That helps them to get to work, but it is the question of incentive. Let's take a tough one; let's take the Bureau of Engraving, where they only turn out so many pieces a day, and when the day is over they loaf the last half hour.

MR. BELL: Nothing.

H.M., JR: Well, it is the biggest printing plant in the country.

MR. BELL: I don't think we are doing anything in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to build up the morale of the employees beyond giving them a good hot lunch.

MRS. DOYLE: It seems to me what you have in mind is this: Are we doing something more to approach particular problems that have resulted from the war than was done in peacetimes? And we are.

H.M., JR: May I interrupt you? That isn't quite what I have in mind. If we were in the money-making business, which we are not—but it is tax-paid money—and if I had a printing plant, I would be trying all the time to get out increased production at lower costs.

MRS. DOYLE: Some of the things you would want to do would be like this, wouldn't it?

H.M., JR: That would be my incentive.

MR. BELL: Have peace-work rates, and a premium on production.

H.M., JR: I have a lot of union people over there, see? We have to get out so many bonds and so much French currency, and so much this, and that. What have we done to get it in these people's minds that this isn't a manufacturing of a non-war thing, that this is directly connected with the war, that they are paid so much by the year, most of them. And this idea that they can't produce but so much a day and when that is finished, they stop—bring the idea that they are closely related to the war effort so we can get a little more production out of them. They are not on a peacetime basis. Appeal to their patriotism, and so forth, and so on, to get increased production out of them.

MR. BELL: I don't think we would get a whole lot of increase through appealing to their patriotism.

H.M.JR: You think you would?

MR. BELL: No, sir.

H.M.JR: Has anybody talked to the union leaders?

MRS. DOYLE: Mr. Hall was up here for lunch, and we talked about this very problem down there. He puts it in a very striking way, I think, of his many, many efforts to keep the production up. There are two problems, one is these plate printers, of which there are five hundred and sixty-five, who earn very high wages. The absenteeism is less on the day they get time and a half than it is on the day they get ordinary rates.

Then we have a great many colored girls who are their assistants, and they are girls who are now getting between eighteen hundred and twenty-two hundred, if I remember correctly. They were domestics who never got over twelve dollars a week at the very most before the war. And it is practically a case of having one day off a week to spend the money.

Now, to meet that, first, in regard to the women, we have an employee relations girl down there who tries to meet these special people. The nursery school--the supervised play program has been put in, which is one of the devices that factories are using. We are doing that full tilt down there. I took the young lady around to the nursery schools. Mr. Long and Mr. Hall have authorized putting up one hundred and twenty-eight bulletin boards on the nursery school programs.

Supervised play--I have this out to catch the ones who might resign when school is out. I have just gotten it out to all the play grounds in the city. I have also arranged to have a representative go to the homes of the people and explain the program, to stop these July 1 resignations.

We are just now, Mr. Secretary, starting the new health program down there, so as to be in a position to say to anyone that we are trying to give them more in the health way.

H.M.JR: I may have an erroneous impression, and no one has been talking to me. This has been kind of turning inside of me for quite a while, that here we are, ninety thousand Government employees--

This is the impression that I form. I keep thinking all the time, what are we trying to do with General Motors and this and that and the other.

How many employees are there in the Bureau of Engraving?

MR. BELL: Are there eleven thousand?

H.M.JR: All right. There ought to be a hundred people on welfare work.

MRS. DOYLE: As a matter of fact, since I have been here I do think it would be a good idea to have spot people all over. I have been talking this particular work around, myself. I took Internal Revenue yesterday. I think it is a good idea to have a monthly get-together of these people in each department and discuss these problems. We are doing a lot in recreation for them.

H.M.JR: You say one person for eleven thousand. There ought to be a hundred.

MRS. DOYLE: The supervisors should be Employee Relations people, and they are very fine people. If you just had someone, as we are trying to do, to get the thought around, then have the regular supervisors act with their own group. And it is sometimes a mistake to bring outsiders in if you can educate the ones you already have.

MR. BELL: The attitude of the Bureau of Engraving employees is very bad, to begin with. They will start in, as Mrs. Doyle points out, on a Monday and you have twenty-five percent absenteeism. And that tapers until the end of the week, Saturday, when they get time and a half and will all be there.

H.M.JR: Mr. Swope made a chart of that over there. It was very shocking. Of course, I have never felt that Mr. Hail is very aggressive in his ideas on employee relations. I may be wrong, but I have always had that impression, that he is kind of old-fashioned.

But I didn’t call this meeting to pick on Mr. Hall. I was thinking of the whole Treasury. The thing I had in mind was, I thought that Mrs. Doyle and maybe somebody from your (Mr. Bell’s) office might take a little swing around the country and visit some of these offices - get away from Washington to New York or Chicago.

MR. BELL: And come up with ideas. That is what Mrs. Doyle did in Chicago, and she came up with good ideas.

H.M.JR: Get a little bit more away. We don’t really know enough. As I say, I’d like more suggestions than just automobile sharing. Get down to the unions, and through the unions what you can do. Absenteeism - let’s concentrate on that.

MRS. DOYLE: Mr. Hall said that the union has put on drives within their own members to get the plate printers to work. He told us that the other day. They have done it themselves within their meetings.

H.M.JR: I would be very pleased if you had to find some plate printers-. If that is the toughest, I’d like to have a meeting with the union’s heads in the Bureau of Engraving, myself--over there, not here. I’d like to go over there and sit down.

MRS. KLOTZ: Wasn’t that the meeting you had the other day?

MRS. DOYLE: Yes, Miss Nelson of the CIO.

H.M.JR: Isn’t that office workers?

MRS. DOYLE: Yes, it is not the Bureau. I talked to her and she is going away for ten days and is going to send somebody to see me tomorrow.

H.M.JR: That is office workers; that is entirely different.

MRS. KLOTZ: Isn't that the Bureau of Printing and Engraving?

MRS. DOYLE: No.

H.M.JR: No, this is the oldest AF of L union in America. Think about it, do you see?

MR. BELL: It is a pleasure to deal with them.

MRS. DOYLE: Now, with this new health program beginning, I think we can say we have done everything we can.

H.M.JR: Supposing you go up to New York. I know we have this enormous operation in Internal Revenue in New York. Have you been in New York?

MRS. DOYLE: No.

H.M.JR: I'd go up there and spend as long as is necessary. How many thousand employees do you suppose we have in New York--ten or fifteen thousand?

MR. BELL: I think we'll possibly go over that. Mrs. Doyle was going to New York at the end of the month. The Civil Service Assembly are having their annual meeting there. She and Mr. Jordan are going. I suggest she might contact the Internal Revenue offices, there are three of them there, and go through them in much the same manner as Chicago.

H.M.JR: Plus this special office where the checks come back for refund. That is the big operation up there--the refunds to people who pay too much on their income tax.

MR. BELL: The Collector's offices.

H.M.JR: I imagine it will take you a week, but I'd like to get more of this thing of—I don't want to use the word "commercial"—the private capital attitude.

MR. BELL: We are going ahead with a number of those plans. One is music brought in for the workers. When I was in New York, I went over to a plant in New Jersey just for that purpose.

H.M.JR: I suggested that.

MR. BELL: I think so. It works out very successfully.

H.M.JR: Mr. Olrich has the right idea. He comes in and says, "I want you to know about this, so if somebody asks you, you know." I know too little about this. You people don't bring it to me. It is like drawing teeth out of you to get it.

MR. BELL: I think we kind of figure you are very busy.

H.M.JR: I am very interested, and I have to draw it out of you like teeth.

MR. BELL: The canned music is on its way to you, but until we get estimates, and so forth, we don't want to bring it up to you.

MRS. DOYLE: This is a report I wrote in Chicago, to show you what they have in mind. In the punch office there the little girls get very small pay. To make them feel they are as much a part of the war effort as the boy behind the gun, they got out this. (Hands illustrated pamphlet to the Secretary) I brought it back. That is to show to them—it explains the whole filing system, that they are winning the war as much as anybody is. Mr. Sloan got that out. He also is trying to get the music in. It is all in this report.

H.M.JR: Let me take it. I tell you what sort of stimulated me. I had Ambassador Winant at the house last night. I had never seen him in better form. He was talking about General Montgomery's success. He explains down to the Second Lieutenant level what his plans of campaign will be. And that was the greatest success in Africa—that everybody, every single officer, knew what the plan of battle was going to be.

Now, I don't know how we can get that same spur here. I am sure that Danny Bell talked about, for instance—it is a secret of how they shipped so many tons of inks and this and that, going out on five planes today to Russia. Now, why shouldn't Hall get on the loud speaker system and say, "You people who are working this thing, I want you to know about it."

Bring the Russian Ambassador down and let him talk on the loud speaker system to these people: "I want to thank you for what you have done. The Secretary of the Treasury and I have a bet. He says the Russian soldiers will cross the German border before we can print this stuff, but with the help you have given us, I think he is going to lose the bet and we'll print this money first."

Give them a little interest. "He said we can't do it. He has more confidence in the Russian soldier than he has in the printer over in Russia. I am going to let you know what happens in this thing."

You know the story about Larry Bell. He got all these planes in Russia. The State Department wouldn't let him. So he sat down and wrote a letter:

"Dear Mr. Stalin: I am sending you an oil painting of the Bell aircraft. Can I send three mechanics so we can see what is going on at the front?"

In ten days he got an answer, "I'll be delighted." It took him three months to get cleared, but he did it—the first men to go to the front to see the planes.

But follow through with that kind of thing. The Russian Ambassador could go down and speak to eleven thousand employees, if we have a loud speaker system: "I want to thank you. This means that when we get to Germany we have the money, and you people helped us to make this money so that when we get to Berlin it will be American ink spent Wouldn't that interest you, if you didn't know anything about it?

Mrs. KLOTZ: I was under the impression there was an awful lot of secrecy attached to this particular thing you are talking about. That was my impression.

H.M.JR: The secrecy is over. It is that kind of thing that I am talking about, so that these people who sit at this particular little thing, make this particular little screw or stamp, that somebody goes over there and tells them what part it plays in the whole picture.

Mrs. DOYLE: I understand perfectly what you mean. That is what he is trying to do. Mr. Riley wrote pleasantly about what the Treasury is doing.

Mr. BELL: Did you see the Riley release?

H.M.JR: No.

Well, I am asking to be told, and I am going to keep after you good people.

Mrs. DOYLE: Oh, my! I'd be running in here every day.

H.M.JR: And I want to meet some of the tough boys and girls who don't show the right spirit, personally. I haven't enough to do!

(Mr. Bell hands the Secretary the Riley release)

H.M.JR: This is good.

Mr. BELL: That is a guinea pig. That will go all over the country.

H.M.JR: Is that the one we sent out?

Mr. BELL: Yes, sir.
We give our own men the opportunity in those blank spaces to give themselves a little publicity! (Hands Secretary memorandum attached)

H.M.JR: Good.

MR. BELL: And all of that came from Mrs. Doyle's report that she just handed you.

H.M.JR: Good, I'll read it. You push me up to the point where I say, "For God's sake, don't push me any more!"

MR. BELL: We'll have an estimate this week on canned music in the Treasurer's office.

H.M.JR: All right.

I don't think I ever saw this report. (Mrs. Doyle's report)

MR. DOYLE: No, it was just when Mr. Thompson died.

H.M.JR: We have a good start, but let's do more.

MR. BELL: I think we have made a pretty good start.

H.M.JR: A good start; now let's do more.

MR. BELL: All right, sir.
City   State   Date

When the Treasury transferred the Savings Bond activities of the Bureau of the Public Debt, which now embraces 7,600 employees and the largest file in the world, from Washington to the heart of the Middle West in Chicago, it accomplished one of the most important decentralization moves of the Government, observed today.

This step is one of many inaugurated by Secretary Morgenthau to decentralize affairs of his Department, Mr. (________) said. Observing the excessive delays in income tax adjustments through servicing in Washington, he set up a group of regional offices to which disgruntled taxpayers could file their claims. This resulted in a savings of much time and expense in the adjustment of these claims.

Gratified at the success of this initial venture, he since has established regional offices for the servicing of Foreign Funds Control problems, as well as problems arising in the Salary Stabilization Unit of the Department, which permits these decentralized offices to settle most problems on the spot without recourse to Washington headquarters.

Savings Bond activities of the Bureau of the Public Debt were moved out of Washington in the summer of 1942 when the pinch of space and personnel shortages forced this rapidly-growing agency to find quarters outside the District, Mr. (________) said. In Chicago it is spread over nine floors of the Merchandise Mart, three floors of the Furniture Mart and the Nash Building, the entire organization occupying 850,000 square feet of space. An idea of the size of the Chicago operations can be gained by a comparison with the Main Treasury Building in Washington, which contains approximately 283,700 square feet of space.

Cubicles that once displayed every variety of furniture and merchandise have been reconstructed to make light, airy workrooms in which the records of all War Bonds purchased are classified, sorted, filed, and microfilmed. Here, too, all War Savings Stamps are checked and disposed of, and redeemed bonds are audited and retired. Three hundred million punch cards, flowing at the rate of one million a day, was the file record of 1943.

The Bureau has taken a leaf from big business in providing working conditions conducive to high individual output, Mr. (________) observed. Its 7,600 employees, of whom 1,000 are negroes, include 6,500 women.
To relieve the tension from monotonous work Eugene W. Sloan, deputy commissioner in charge of the Chicago office, has instituted 15-minute rest periods and is beginning to introduce radio music at lunch time in the building canteens. Working conditions are studied meticulously with a view to their improvement consistent with efficient work requirements.

To expedite recruitment a Civil Service Commission representative has been installed on the premises to process new appointments. New employees are met at the train and taken to living quarters which the Bureau has helped them find. All employees devote their first day and a half to an orientation course and after 60 days they are invited to return to the Recruitment Section for advice and to make suggestions.

In-service training classes in typing and stenography are given qualified employees, and special courses in the art of writing concise and friendly letters are given to those who handle the Bureau’s correspondence.

The Employee Relations Section is working on the problem of care of children of working mothers, and a special committee is concerned with the basic causes of absenteeism. Both problems have been of vital concern to Secretary Morgenthau.

Among the special activities which knit the large Bureau into a closely-working whole was an organized campaign for Christmas V-mail letters to all former employees now in the service. The answers reflect the appreciation of the men and women of the Public Debt who are now overseas, Mr. (_________) said.
Hello, Mr. Secretary.

Is Mr. Hull ill?

Well, he has a slight cold, Mr. Secretary...

Oh...

...that he's finishing off. He thought he'd better stay at home to get it properly....

Oh...

...killed or cured up before he comes back in again.

I see. Well, I will....

But I understand that he's really feeling quite well, but he wants to....

Yes.

.... be sure to put the cold under.

Good. Is this Mr. Brown?

Yes.

I want to see -- uh -- the President in regard to this invitation that's going out on this International Monetary Conference.

Yes.

Also on the delegates because the President said when we got ready, he wanted to be consulted.

Uh huh.

Now, I've asked to see him when he gets back. I don't know when he's going to get back.

Uh huh.

And I didn't know whether Mr. Hull wanted to go over with me or whether he would want Mr. Acheson to represent him.
B: Yes, I see.
HMJr: But I would appreciate it if within the next twenty-four hours you could advise me.
B: I'll be very glad to do that, sir.
HMJr: Please.
B: All right, sir.
HMJr: Now, I'm going to take -- when I go, I'm taking Mr. White with me.
B: I see.
HMJr: But I've got a request in to see the President as soon as he gets back so we can get those invitations out.
B: Yes. Yes. All right, sir, I'll pass that word along.
HMJr: I thank you.
B: All right, sir. Good bye.

My dear Mr. Baezanglia:

Yesterday, May 22nd, Messrs. Rogelio Nunez Valdez and Antonio Llerena, Jr., called to deliver to us your letter of January 10th, in which you requested me to instruct the officials of the Internal Revenue Bureau to accord these two gentlemen every opportunity to become acquainted with our Internal Revenue organization, system and rulings.

Unfortunately, I was unable to see them. However, I am happy to report to you that yesterday, after conference with the officials of the Bureau here in Washington, they left for New York City. In New York City, they will first inspect the offices of Collectors of Internal Revenue. Then they will inspect the Revenue Agents offices and the offices of the Technical Staff. When they have completed their work in New York City, they will return to Washington where they will spend some time in the Internal Revenue Bureau familiarizing themselves with the entire workings of the organization.

I am happy that you have sent these men to us, and I assure you we will do everything to make their visit enjoyable as well as profitable.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) H. Margulies, Jr.

Hon. Henry Morgenthau Jr.,
Secretary of the Treasury,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Sir:

Our Treasury Department has for a long time contemplated sending two of its men to Washington for two or three months to get acquainted with the Internal Revenue organization, system, rulings, etc., for the adoption of those methods which may raise our Internal Revenue and Income Tax Bureaus to a better standard of efficiency, and has made arrangements for Messrs. Rogelio Muñoz Veloso and Antonio Laloma, Jr. to visit Washington.

This Department would appreciate it very much if you would instruct the parties concerned in Washington, to give all facilities and cooperation possible to the above mentioned gentlemen.

Sincerely yours,

Treasurer of Puerto Rico.
Dear Mr. Rodrigues:

This is with reference to conversations recently held with you concerning the Federal tax treatment of Puerto Ricans who have invested in United States War bonds or who have other income bearing investments in the United States.

In general, Puerto Ricans are subject to a 30 percent tax upon their income derived from sources within the United States. This is required under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, as enacted by Congress. Section 252(a) provides, as follows:

"Any individual who is a citizen of any possession of the United States (but not otherwise a citizen of the United States) and who is not a resident of the United States, shall be subject to taxation under this chapter only as to income derived from sources within the United States, and in such case the tax shall be computed and paid in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as in the case of other persons who are taxable only as to income derived from such sources."

This section was first enacted in the Revenue Act of 1918 and has been a part of our income tax laws ever since. The purpose of this section was to do equity and fairness to the citizens of our possessions; it was designed, as is clearly apparent from its language, to free the citizens of our possessions from the burden of our general tax laws. By virtue of this section, Puerto Ricans are not subjected to any tax at all in respect of income earned (or derived from sources) outside the United States; but with respect to income from sources within the United States, Puerto Ricans are treated in the same manner as all others who are not subject to Federal taxation upon all their income from whatever source derived. Were it not for this section, citizens of Puerto Rico would have to pay the full Federal income tax on all their income (whether earned within the United States or not) unless they meet the limited requirements of section 251, because of the fact that they are indeed United States citizens. It has seemed just, however, that Puerto Ricans be not required to pay taxes to the United States Government except upon income derived from sources within the United States. It is true that this puts some of our citizens (those who are United States citizens by reason of their being citizens of the possessions of the United States) in the same category for tax purposes as other persons who are generally not required to pay Federal income taxes, namely non-resident aliens. But such treatment does not constitute any unfair discrimination against these citizens. You realize that if Puerto Ricans were taxed in the same manner as United States citizens residing in the United States they would be subjected to a somewhat heavier tax.

This section 252 does not derogate from the principle that there can be only one kind of United States citizenship. Its object is solely to lay down an equitable rule whereby the citizens of our possessions will not be held liable to the Federal income tax except as to income from sources within the United States, the citizens of two of our possessions (Puerto Rico and the Philippines) have their own income tax provisions to which they are primarily responsible. It is interesting to recall that at the time when section 252 was first enacted, Puerto Rico and the Philippines were given the unfettered authority to provide their own income tax laws and to administer them independently of the United States. Section 252 is a natural concomitant of this taxing power.

Puerto Rico, as you know, has provisions corresponding to those contained in the Federal law; it imposes a flat 25 percent tax on non-residents. This means that United States citizens living in the United States will pay this tax on their income from Puerto Rican investments. Our 30 percent tax is slightly higher. However, through the operation of section 23(a) of the Puerto Rican Income Tax Act of 1924, the 30 percent Federal tax which is withheld in respect of income derived from sources within the United States is allowed as a credit against the Puerto Rican income tax. Thus, this Federal tax may not be said to be an additional tax, for it actually goes to reduce proportionately (within certain limits as set forth in section 23(a)(5)) the tax imposed under the Puerto Rican statute.

I hope that in view of the foregoing discussion of our tax provisions, you are in agreement with me that there is actually no discrimination whatsoever against our citizens who are also citizens of Puerto Rico.

Sincerely yours,

(William) Henry Morgenthau, Jr.

Thank you for your nice note. I appreciate it very much indeed.

For three years I have continued to call myself, on occasion, liaison officer between Mutual Savings Banks and the Treasury. Should that go on? If you think so you might drop me a line to that effect.

I. Work in Process on May 17

FINANCING

General financing problems

1. Work is continuing on the subject of the means of providing an adequate amount of Federal Reserve and member bank credit to maintain the present pattern of interest rates. In this connection, consideration is being given to the course of the Federal Reserve ratio and possible methods to improve it. Discussions on the general subject have been held recently with Under Secretary Bell and members of the staff of the Federal Reserve System and the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

2. Report is being prepared at the request of Under Secretary Bell regarding means for extending the secondary market in United States obligations which are restricted as to ownership by banks by permitting banks to hold such securities for trading purposes.

3. Draft is being prepared, at the request of the General Counsel, of the Treasury Department's report on S. 1892, a bill introduced by Senator Thomas of Oklahoma which would permit banks and other financial institutions to carry United States obligations on their books at par value, and to provide for Federal Reserve Bank loans on, or purchases of, such securities at par. This bill supersedes an earlier bill (S. 1769) introduced by Senator Thomas, providing only for the carrying of the securities at par. Comments on the new bill were prepared for the Under Secretary.

4. Proposal for legislation to permit the tax-free exchange of securities issued in Treasury refunding operations is being looked into at the request of Under Secretary Bell.

5. Past and present opportunities for securing a high return from Government securities by "rolling down the curve" are reviewed periodically.

6. Study of the relative interest cost of short- and long-term borrowing is being continued.

7. The effect of the maturity, call period, coupon, premium, size of issue, and class of holder on the prices and yields of Government securities is reviewed periodically.

8. Cooperation is being given to the Division of Tax Research in preparation of a "White Paper" on the wartime tax and fiscal policy of the Administration.

Fifth War Loan

While the major part of the Division's work in preparation for the Fifth War Loan has been completed, questions are continually coming up with respect to details of reporting procedure, allocation of sales credits, basis of quota assignments, etc. These are straightened out as they arise, frequently by a brief telephone conversation, so that the reporting machinery may function more smoothly than ever when the Drive opens.

Summary tables on the Federal fiscal situation, savings by individuals and corporations, and the sources of Federal borrowing are being prepared for distribution to the State War Finance Chairmen in response to requests for information of this kind.
In anticipation of quotas for the Sixth War Loan, work is being done to improve the method of allocating quotas to "other corporations". The present method, based on estimated business deposits in commercial banks as derived from a Federal Reserve Board survey of the ownership of bank deposits, is not considered entirely satisfactory, particularly in view of the magnitude of the quota to be allocated ($7.1 billions in the Fifth War Loan). Data are therefore being compiled from the 1940 Census on the volume of business done by corporations in each State, and other data, with the view of developing a better quota basis. In all such work on methods of allocating quotas, considerable work must be done of a tentative or experimental nature.

The income estimates by States, used in allocating quotas for E bonds and F and G bonds, are being brought up to date with April figures on bank deposits.

Statistics on sales of United States savings bonds

1. The regular monthly data on sales of Series E, F, and G bonds by States, and on sales and redemptions by denominations, are being prepared for Mr. Coyne, War Finance Division, for distribution to State War Finance Chairman.

2. As part of a detailed historical record, tabulations of savings bond sales by counties for the last quarter of 1943 and cumulated through that quarter, prepared by the Bureau of the Public Debt in Chicago, are being reviewed in relation to other sales data.

3. Analysis of operation of the payroll savings plan likewise is being kept up to date.

4. Revisions are being made in some of the charts included in the graphic analysis of the savings bond program which is maintained in the Chart Room.

5. Tables and charts indicating, with various breakdowns, the number of persons purchasing savings bonds are being prepared for Mr. Gamble, on the basis of further data which have recently become available from the Bureau of the Public Debt in Chicago.
6. Revisions are being made in methods of reporting savings bond sales by Post Offices to Federal Reserve Banks.

Sources of funds

The broader phases of the gross national product and gross income flow, which are under continuous study, provide an over-all picture of the flow of funds in the economy, with the end result of estimating the total amount of liquid savings and accumulations available for Federal borrowing at any given time.

Approached from another point of view, liquid savings are measured by analysis of available data on accumulations in different forms, such as insurance, debt repayment, time deposits, demand deposits, currency, Federal Government securities, and other securities; accumulations by different classes of investors, such as private individuals, insurance companies, other corporations, etc.; savings which are being made by families or individuals at different income levels or in different areas; and savings under different incentives.

Data on the specific absorption of Federal Government securities are studied in relation to indications of available funds as derived from the above studies.

A more detailed description of the work being carried on in these fields is given below.

1. Broader phases of gross national product and gross income flow.

(a) A source book of information and data relating to gross national product is kept up to date currently.

(b) The June revision of gross national product and gross income flow estimates is under way. Basic historical tables have been set up and certain data have been assembled from the Department of Commerce.
(c) The study of manpower in its relation to gross national product analysis is being continued, with respect to both current and postwar developments.

2. Liquid savings and accumulations.

(a) A survey in Louisville, Kentucky, of why people are saving in the form of currency is being made by Dr. Likert, at the request of the Treasury Department. The Division is keeping in close touch with the progress of this survey, and a member of its staff participated with Dr. Likert in discussions of the survey at the Bureau of the Budget. Field work on the survey has now been completed and tabulation of the results is in process.

(b) A study of savings in peacetime as compared with those in wartime is being made, which it is expected will be applicable to further studies of transition and postwar financing problems.

(c) Detailed studies are being carried on of the asset structure of various classes of investors, with particular reference to Federal securities absorbed, as follows:

(1) State and local governments.
(2) Life insurance companies.
(3) Mutual savings banks.
(4) Fraternal benefit societies.
(5) Savings and loan associations.
(6) Nonfinancial corporations.
(d) Ownership of bank deposits is being analyzed by reference to special studies by the Federal Reserve Board and Securities and Exchange Commission, and to other available data.

(e) A study is being made of the derivation of funds available for Federal borrowing during the first World War, for comparison with the present situation.

(f) Changes in domestic corporate securities outstanding are being analyzed on the basis of new material available from the Securities and Exchange Commission.

(g) Analysis is being made of Federal Reserve Board figures on types of consumer credit, in order to derive estimates of credit by investor classes, 1939-date, for use in the sources of funds analysis.

(a) Absorption of the increase in the public debt is estimated monthly by means of a detailed analysis of gross purchases, redemptions and maturities by type of security and by class of investor. In addition, market transactions in Federal securities among the various investor groups are analyzed. Finally the material is summarized and related to the debt outstanding and to estimates arrived at for the ownership of the total debt.

(b) Improved methods are being worked out for estimating, on the basis of the monthly survey of bank holdings, total figures for all commercial banks, classified by type of security. Regular monthly data on holdings by reporting banks and insurance companies are supplied by the Bureau of the Public Debt.
(c) Review of current material related to ownership and absorption of Federal securities by dealers and brokers. In this connection, arrangements are under way for increasing the coverage of daily reports now being received on United States security portfolios of dealers and brokers. A letter was prepared from Under Secretary Bell to Mr. Sproul, President of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, requesting additional information. These reports provide part of the information on ownership and absorption of Government securities.

Contract termination and other matters relating to demobilization

1. Meetings of the Sub-Committee on Termination Financing of the Joint Contract Termination Board are being attended as they are held, at the request of Under Secretary Bell.

2. Analysis is being made, at the request of Mr. Bell, of a Navy Department plan for interim financing under S. 1718.

3. At the request of the General Counsel, study is being made of suggestions by the Smaller War Plants Corporation that it be authorized, by amendments to S. 1718, to insure loans made to small war plants, secured by contract termination claims, and to purchase claims held against insolvent contractors.

4. A voluntary report is also being considered, at the request of the General Counsel, on H. R. 4695 -- to provide credit for the purpose of reestablishment in civilian employment those persons who served in the armed service of the United States during the present war, and for other purposes.
Postwar problems

1. Outlook for Federal expenditures, and their relation to the economy, in the immediate postwar period, is being developed at your request. Specific data are being prepared under various assumptions with respect to the reconversion period.

As a result of preliminary studies, memoranda and sets of tables have been prepared outlining probable Federal expenditures and their impact on the economy under three sets of assumptions as to the timing of the war's end in Europe and in the Pacific, and the production out-backs in the intermediate period. The first assumption is that the war in Germany will end in September 1944, and will be followed by moderate production out-backs until the end of the war with Japan, sometime after December 1945. The second assumption is that sharp production out-backs will occur after the end of the war in Europe in September 1944, with the war in the Pacific again continuing beyond December 1945. The third assumption is that the end of the war in Europe in September 1944 will be followed by a rapid victory over Japan by the end of this year. Various other assumptions as to the smoothness of the reconversion period are also being considered. Analyses under other basic assumptions are being developed.

In this connection also, a project is under way to estimate prices of certain important commodities on the basis of supplies of those commodities and the aggregate volume of consumer spending. Studies have been made of the probable outlook for each important industry after the war, as a basis for estimating employment and other business factors.

2. Postwar effect of a large volume of demand debt of the Federal Government is being studied. Some aspects of the matter were discussed in the Annual Report for 1943.

3. Effects of the excess-profits tax on banks and on the market for Government securities in the postwar period are being studied at the request of Under Secretary Bell. The study was suggested by Mr. Rouse, of the New York Federal Reserve Bank.
4. Participation with other divisions of the Treasury in the formulation of a recommendation concerning the Treasury's attitude with respect to unemployment insurance in the postwar emergency. This matter is being considered pursuant to a request made to Mr. Blough by the Social Security Board. (Senator George has asked the Social Security Board to submit its recommendations on this matter to his committee within ten days.)

REVENUE ESTIMATES

Revised Budget estimates for the fiscal year 1944

The regular month-to-month revision is being made of the estimates of yield of the various taxes so as to keep the Fiscal Service informed as to the current expectations of the flow of revenue into the Treasury. Since no revision of the estimated receipts for the fiscal year 1945 has been released by the President since the passage of the Revenue Act of 1943, we are getting ready to make revisions of these estimates which in any event are necessary for internal use and which we can provide for a Budget release if we are called upon to do so.

Renegotiation of contracts

Active study is being given to the corporation incomes and tax liabilities in the light of the latest published corporation reports and other business data as they become available, in order to estimate the levels of corporation income, taxes, dividends, and net income to be retained by the corporations after renegotiation of contracts under the Sixth Supplemental National Defense Appropriation Act, Public Law 528, 77th Congress, as amended.

Pension trusts

Study is just beginning of the revenue effects of proposed changes in the pension trust legislation, on which hearings are to be held within a week or so.

Revision of forecasting method

The method of forecasting revenues from the tax on transportation of persons is being revised to make a different allowance for tax-free transportation of service men and women.

Specific revenue estimates

At the request of the Division of Tax Research, specific estimates of revenue are being made, as follows:

Regraded Unclassified
SECRETARY MORGENTHAU - 12

For the transition year 1944 and for a year after transition, (a) the number of married couples in noncommunity property States eligible to file W-2 returns where both spouses have income; and (b) the number of such married couples (1) where either spouse has under $550 of income and (2) where both spouses have over $550 of income; and (c) the number of married couples under (b) (2) that have no dependents.

ACTUARIAL MATTERS

PENSION TRUST REGULATIONS

1. For several months the Government Actuary has been devoting a considerable portion of his time to studying pension plans which have been submitted to the Bureau of Internal Revenue for rulings under Section 165(a) of the Internal Revenue Code. In recent weeks, he has worked with Mr. Surrey and Mr. DeWind, and also with members of the Bureau of Internal Revenue on pension trust problems in general. The group has recommended a number of changes in the existing regulations.

Recently Senator Taft introduced an amendment to H. R. 4464 (a bill to increase the debt limit of the United States) which would require material changes in our present pension trust regulations. It is the understanding that hearings on the bill will be held beginning May 26. Between now and May 26, most of the time will be spent in getting ready for these hearings.

2. At the request of the Division of Tax Research, suggestions are being made on a tentative transcript card for purposes of accumulating and analyzing basic data on pension trusts, derived from Bureau of Internal Revenue data.

CIVIL SERVICE RETIREMENT SYSTEM

1. At the request of Under Secretary Bell, study is being given to means of coordinating Social Security and the Civil Service Retirement System.

1. Consideration is being given to preparation of a voluntary report on H. R. 4770 — to amend the National Service Life Insurance Act, 1940, as amended.
BUSINESS CONDITIONS

1. For use in connection with revenue estimates, it is necessary to keep abreast of the effect of the war and other developments on the industries subject to tax -- distilled spirits, tobacco, gasoline, automobile tires, etc. It is necessary also to keep up with revisions in the business series which are forecast as a basis for our revenue estimates, such as the FRB production index, the BLS indexes of wholesale prices and living costs, the BLS index of factory payrolls, the Commerce series on salaries and wages, and others.

2. A project is under way to measure the effect of supplies of important individual commodities, and of the aggregate volume of consumer spending, on the prices of those commodities. It is believed that this will provide important information on the trend of inflationary (or deflationary) pressure. It may be tied in with estimates of national income, which include estimates of the volume of consumer spending and thus (after allowance for changes in commodity supplies) provide a clue to price trends. Price studies are being worked out on a quarterly basis for hogs, steers, butter, eggs, potatoes, truck crops (as a group), apples, and oranges.

3. A project is also under way to estimate the trends of business activity, employment, prices, and other business factors on two assumptions as to the end of the war, for use in connection with postwar studies already mentioned.

REVENUE ESTIMATES

Tax simplification

During the past month the work on the revenue estimating has been largely directed toward providing revenue estimates in connection with the "Individual Income Tax Bill of 1944". Our basic estimates were used by the Ways and Means Committee in its deliberations and in its report to the House on the Bill, and the estimates were concurred in by the staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation.

While no public hearings were held by the Ways and Means Committee, the Senate Finance Committee did hold what they called "Executive Hearings" (that is no public witnesses allowed) at which they heard testimony from members of the staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation and the staff of the Treasury. Newspaper reporters were present, a transcript of the record was made of the more important of the hearings, and several of our tables of estimates were put into the testimony.

The following are the tables which were included in the Printed Proceedings in Executive Session before the Committee on Finance, United States Senate, on H. R. 4646, May 9, 1944:

(a) Comparison of receipts in respect of calendar year 1943 liabilities with estimated calendar year 1943 liabilities.

(b) Estimated number of civilian income recipients incurring regular net income tax, their net income, surtax net income, and regular net income tax under the Revenue Act of 1943, at levels of income estimated for the calendar year 1944, classified by family and net income classes.

(c) Estimated number of civilian income recipients incurring Victory tax, their Victory tax net income, and Victory tax under the Revenue Act of 1943, at levels of income estimated for the calendar year 1944, classified by family and net income classes.

(d) Estimated number of civilian income recipients incurring surtax or alternative tax, their net income, surtax income and combined surtax and alternative tax under H. R. 4646, as passed by the House of Representatives May 5, 1944, at levels of income estimated for the calendar year 1944, classified by family and net income classes.

(e) Estimated number of civilian income recipients incurring normal tax, their normal tax net income, and normal tax under H. R. 4646, as passed by the House of Representatives May 5, 1944, at levels of income estimated for the calendar year 1944, classified by family and net income classes.

(b) Estimate, in connection with the treatment of partially tax-exempt interest under H. R. 4646, at levels of income estimated for the calendar year 1944, of the amount of partially tax-exempt interest received by taxable individual income recipients.

Other specific revenue estimates

1. At the request of Representative Donald McLean, an estimate was supplied of the number of income recipients in each surtax net income bracket under the Revenue Act of 1943.
2. At the request of the General Counsel, there were supplied for Senator McGarran the estimates of the yield of the cabaret tax which were made during the consideration of the Revenue Act of 1943.

4. At the request of the Division of Tax Research, an estimate was prepared of the revenue effect of the enactment of H. R. 4687, with respect to postal rates, for each of the rates provided in the bill: (1) 5 cent rate, (2) maximum rate of 6 cents, and (3) minimum rate of 3 cents.

5. At the request of the Division of Tax Research, an estimate was prepared of the revenue effect if cabaret tax rates were 10 percent; 15 percent; and 20 percent.

Forecasting methods and background material

Following the excise tax estimates made last December for the fiscal years 1944 and 1945, used in the President's budget message, memorandums were prepared explaining how each estimate was derived, and estimates of the monthly distribution of revenues from each tax were prepared for internal Treasury use. Work has since been done to improve the forecasting methods for several important taxes, and to take into account revisions in certain business series, in preparation for a possible request from the Budget Bureau for a revision of the revenue estimates on the basis of the new tax law.

Specific jobs completed during the past month were as follows:

(a) The last of 53 memorandums were completed justifying and detailing the method used in estimating revenue from each of the excise taxes in the January 1944 budget.

(b) The following revenue estimate studies were brought up to date, revised, or improved: wines, cigarettes, cigars, toilet preparations, jewelry, furs, telephone and telegraph, local telephone service, transportation of persons, and transportation of property.

(c) A thorough study was made of the sections in the Revenue Act of 1943, as finally passed, which affect the excise taxes, and an analysis was made of changes in rates, coverages, etc.

(d) Detailed data covering a revision in the national income estimates and components for the years 1939-1943 were obtained from the Department of Commerce, and the revisions were incorporated in certain revenue estimating studies.

(e) Current information on industry developments affecting various excise taxes was added to the information files for these taxes.

(f) Work was begun on improving our forecasts of the monthly distribution of our tax estimates.

ACTUARIAL MATTERS

Pension Trust Regulations

The nature of the work and the time involved in recent months have been indicated in the first part of this memorandum.

Service benefits

1. Suggestions were made, from the angle of benefits proposed, with respect to any report which might be made by the Department on S. 1823 - a bill to establish an Office of War Mobilization and Adjustment.

2. The question was reviewed of making a voluntary report on S. 1767 - to provide Federal Government Aid for the readjustment in civilian life of returning World War II veterans.
BUSINESS CONDITIONS

1. The regular weekly memoranda on the business situation were prepared, outlining current developments in the field of industrial production, commodity price trends, employment, and related fields. Information and analyses for these and future memoranda were carried forward.

2. A proposed statement to be given out by Representative Patman, regarding the pros and cons of price control, was checked at the request of Mr. Fred Smith.

3. A memorandum on the wheat supply in the United States and Canada was prepared at the request of the General Counsel.

4. A study was made of prices at New York for a selected group of bonds of Axis-occupied countries in Eastern and Western Europe, as an indication of trends in sentiment regarding the liberation of those areas. This information was presented in chart form.

5. Study was completed of a report by the Truman Committee regarding unemployment in industry after the cessation of the war.

BULLETIN

Special features were prepared and included in the April Bulletin, as follows:

(a) Article on "Plans for the Fifth War Loan" (including table showing a comparison of various features of the securities to be offered).

(b) Article on "Treasury Market Financing."

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

Answering your memorandum of May 20, 1944, I think you should sign the Executive Order authorizing the Dies Committee to examine tax returns.

This committee has been given the same authority by Executive Order on three prior occasions, has used it only slightly and has abused it not at all. Furthermore, the grant of authority is the same as that given Congressional committees by Executive Order for many years and almost without exception (the committee investigating the Federal Communications Commission, formerly headed by Congressman Cox, is the only case of which I am aware in which the authority requested has not been granted).

We gave considerable thought to this particular case before submitting it to you. In fact, I spoke to Justice Byrnes about it and he agreed with me that under all the circumstances the preferable course would be to give them the authority requested.

I am sorry my letter of May 17 did not address itself directly enough to your point. It certainly was not any too clear.

MEMORANDUM FOR
THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY

I have your letter about the Executive Order for the Dies Committee but I still don't know whether you want me to sign it or not.

F. D. R.
Dear Henry:

Thank you for your letter of May 18. I would very much appreciate your having the reply which you have drafted sent to Mr. Tope.

Affectionately,

Dear Mr. Tope:

Further reference is made to your letter of May 2, 1944, requesting that you be furnished with the amount of expense money reimbursed Mrs. Roosevelt for trips to South America, Central America, the Caribbean Area, and England, and inquiring further whether Mrs. Roosevelt received a salary from this Government while traveling in England.

As indicated to you in our letter of May 12, signed by the Assistant Commissioner of Accounts, the records of the Treasury Department reveal that no disbursement of funds was made to Mrs. Roosevelt for either travel or salary in connection with these trips. We have now been advised by Mrs. Roosevelt that any expense arising in connection with the above travel was borne by her personally.

I trust that this adequately covers your inquiry.

Very truly yours,

Administrative Assistant to the Secretary.

Mr. Harry L. Tope,
619 South Main Street,
Mt. Pleasant, Michigan.
Dear Eleanor:

I have your note of May 18th, enclosing a proposed reply to Harry H. Tope in answer to his inquiry concerning expenses for your travel abroad.

I do not feel that Mr. Tope is entitled to a personal explanation from you on this subject. Since his inquiry is directed to the Treasury Department and purports to be of a routine nature, I feel that your purpose can best be served by having Mr. Tope furnished with a direct answer through my administrative office. Accordingly, I have had a reply prepared, and if you agree to this method of handling inquiries of this character, the attached letter will be mailed at once.

Affectionately,

[Signed] Henry

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt,

Dear Henry:

I am enclosing a letter from Mr. Harry E. Tope and my reply thereto. I will appreciate their return if you approve of my answer.

I think the Treasury should say I collected nothing from them and receive no government salary.

Affectionately,

[Signature]
Dear Mr. Tope:

The Secretary of the Treasury has sent me your letter of May 25 and I must say I cannot understand such a complete ignorance of facts.

The trips I have taken have not cost the United States Government or anyone anything.

On my trip to England I went over in a commercial plane and paid my own fare. I came back in an Army plane which was making the trip to bring back a bomber crew and there were two seats available. I had paid for my return fare, but as the commercial planes were returning through Portugal and Africa, it was felt that my presence on board might be discovered by the enemy, and the plane and the other passengers and crew might be in jeopardy. I could not cause others to risk their lives.

While I was in Great Britain, I paid my own expenses.

On my trip to the Southwest Pacific I had one seat in a plane which carried mail, special cargo, and military personnel. I was asked by the Red Cross to make a report for them and therefore I saved them the expense of sending someone, to whom they would probably have had to pay a salary and expenses.

I paid my own expenses wherever I could and I paid for my Red Cross uniforms. In addition, the money which came to me from my column and articles was divided equally between the Red Cross and the American Friends Service after deducting the income tax, so instead of the Treasury paying me anything, an additional amount of income tax accrued to them.

People like you do not seem to realize that the authorities responsible for prosecuting the war have to make trips to the various war theatres, that Red Cross nurses and USO personnel have to be transported, so planes go fairly regularly and are not sent especially for me.

Very sincerely yours,

Mr. Henry Morgenthau Jr.,
Secretary of the Treasury,
Washington, D.C.,

Dear Mr. Morgenthau Jr.,

Will you kindly give the amount of expense Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt collected from the Treasury on her trip to South America, Central America, and the Caribbean Area, on March 28th, the Chief Executive said that she made the trip at his suggestion, also her trip to England how much expense money also was she on a salary at the same time, of our Government?

Yours Sincerely,

Harry E. Tope.
My dear Mr. Secretary:

You were most generous to write me as you did on May fifth and I apologize for my tardy acknowledgment.

Ours was a tough fight. It is regrettable to see how bitter and how shortsighted the opposition is, but there is great encouragement in the fact that we won. I hope our victory will help along those great causes you and I have been fighting.

I anticipate with great pleasure continued service with you.

Very sincerely yours,

Claude Pepper has fought in the Senate for Florida. His experience has been of value to Florida in all Departments of Government. His experience and his senility are growing assets for Florida. A Summons Against the “Kiss of Death”

EXTENSION OF REMARKS OF
HON. LISTER HILL
OF ALABAMA

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES
Thursday, December 18 (legislative day of Wednesday, December 15), 1943

Mr. HILL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Appendix of the Record an article entitled “A Summons Against the ‘Kiss of Death’,” written by the Senator from Florida (Mr. Pepper) and published in the New York Times Magazine for December 12, 1943.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

A SUMMONS AGAINST THE “KISS OF DEATH”
(By Claude Pepper, Senator from Florida)

The commanding officer of a big military installation was looking over a long, elaborate report of attempted sabotage in his unit. Diametrically opposed, his eye lit on this item:

Now, it was Private Quick who, while on duty, once observed the would-be saboteur to slip out. The C. O. was therefore a bit startled by the reference to Private Quick in the sabotage report. His curiosity, he found, was justified.

Private Quick testified that he had a great mind to stop the intruder but was too sleepy to realize the situation.

There have been obstructionists of our war effort and there will be obstructionists of our struggle to win the peace. Whether these latter succeed will depend on how many of us turn out to be Private Quicks—those with a “great mind” to join other peoples of the world in seeing that the peace is kept, yet so sleepy to realize the situation when those who would destroy the peace are at work.

These forces which would frustrate peace are preparing their attack now. The recent Moscow agreement dealt them a stinging setback, but while it succeeded to close the Air International, it did not neutralize where we need it most.

We who see the League of Nations annulled and peace dead a death blow in 1939 can observe today, even as our second century was beginning, the threat of another world war. Neither the strength of the League nor the shrewdness of its application was enough. The threat is not gone, it is concentrated in the hands of the same nations, or the very same people, who made war in 1939. The threat is acute, indeed, by the

The blow which had been traditionally and consistently obstructionist gave its approval to the Moscow agreement only because it had suddenly become politically unsound not to do so.

This is important, because if we understand this we shall be on guard against any attempt by these same obstructionists to sidetrack the new world we are building toward the same end we had before the war.

Getting away from the language of Cepheid and what does this mean?

In the business of treaty-making, to “advise” the President and to “consent” to his negotiations with foreign powers are constitutional functions of the Senate. They require a two-thirds vote of the Members present and voting. The obstructionist leader was quick to remind us that despite the 80-5 approval of this resolution, a two-thirds vote had not been asked, and therefore this was not “advice” in the constitutional sense. It was, he said, merely an “expression of opinion.” He wanted that understood. And he refused to give consent to anything more than that.

Now, it would be natural to expect that a Senator who was so careful to prevent this resolution from taking on any legal or constitutional weight would be among those who had voted against it. Why vote for a measure and then insist that it have no real application? If you find the name of this Senator, not among the 8 who voted nay on the resolution, but among the 80, you will find, also, among those 80, a number of other names that look odd place in that column, names of men who before the war had opposed our going into it and after we were in it, did not vote to attack, either the administration or our allies.

To those of us who are determined that the American people shall not be caught asleep at the switch in 1943 as they were in 1939, this vote-for-and-against strategy in the Senate was worth noting and, I suspect, worth watching from this time on.

In the light of past word and deed, one cannot assume that the isolationists Senators who voted approval of the Moscow agreement did so of personal conviction. So enlightening anguish has flustered down out of the sky and thumped them one and all, giving them to see the light.

It is hard to paint this cut and thrust picture of future American boys’ lives in future American boys’ pictures. It is in the balance of what we decide now, why we should not mix up in the Memory War, and how we should approach it.

The two-thirds rule is not easy to alter and at the time it was enacted in the law of our land. The tradition which our forefathers called upon to resist was a very ancient one. We have had enough time to study the effects of this and to alter it if we desire. Today, as in 1935, the treaty which we are considering is neither a threat to our interests and an agreement...

... serving at our masters. We must see to it that they do not dare.

We can’t have that, can we? We cannot have a situation where anything he knows the majority of the people and at the same time serve the political consequences of his actions. There are several techniques, Somatologists, for identifying constitutions: the test of his constitution is the presence in the case of a peace lobby which rationalizes the need for the Senate of that or this bill. And the real test is to find a way to get him, and this word, and not have it. Is this how the isolationists intend to deal with nations and its aim of lasting peace? When the times come to say yes or no to the age-old aspiration of world opinion? Is this the hope, as Senator Bratton, the right to open and approve or oppose, but in saying they approve, Senator Lodge, according to the United States Senate who will take their word, or say. Is this how the isolationists attempt to say this to the majority, or serve the people in their own words, to put the real meaning, technicality, really has the power of enforcing the will. It is not only the power which the sitting in Europe and Japan and do so. The Senate cannot say. "We know better than the people. Our enemies prevail over the other. One is a farce of fascism. Senators are honorable men. They do not resort to the tenets of fascism.

The second reason for forging the peace in Congress instead of coming out in battle formation against the peace policy in its substance as important as this, we must learn, even in the isolationist bloc, are willing to face the realities. This was true yesterday, and it remains true today. In a letter to George Harvey about the Republican platform in 1920, Senator Lodge wrote: "I want to get the convention to give a full approval of all that the Republican Senate did; drawing no distinctions between their differing opinions as to the final result. That is the way we wish to see the platform, so broad that those who disagree, as in the treaty for a year in the Senate can all stand upon it (the platform) without any difficulty."

We will then see. In the next, an isolationist approach to the peace treaty "by way of amendment and reservation" is that by amending the treaty and retaining in the treaty but out of any treaty which originally embodied real peace proposals, it is the aim. That is, it must finally be acceptable to the administration which has initiated it, the proponents of the Senate which held in the library of Harvard University, the League of Nations or to ratification of the Versailles Treaty, which was the work of several Statesman and leaders on this subject.

Senator Borah had made his attack on the League Covenant, on February 21, 1919, regarding to this paper, said to him: "My dear fellow, I agree with you absolutely, absolutely, but we can’t beat the thing. High-flying persons of the Senate are for it. The best we can do is to get changes that will annul the treaty as much as possible."

SUBJECT: Sewer Projects Approved by War Production Board in 1943.

In accordance with your request, we have been checking over the data on sewer projects authorized by the War Production Board in 1943, submitted by Mr. Donald Nelson. Our analysis of these data have brought forth the following facts:

(1) There were 450 applications for sewer projects approved by the War Production Board in 1943.

(2) Of these, 453 applications covered projects that were located in areas listed by the Office of Price Administration as defense-rental areas (that is, areas where defense activities have resulted or threaten to result in increases in housing rents) or by the War Manpower Commission as areas having critical labor shortages. Presumably a case could be made for a sewer project in any such area by maintaining that new sewer facilities, or the expansion of old facilities, were required to take care of factors characteristic of such areas -- such as new housing developments, increased population in old housing units, shifts in population, etc. Accordingly, it would seem that a further investigation of these projects would not be likely to produce the type of information you had in mind.

(3) Of the remaining projects, one was located in Canada, one in the Virgin Islands, seven could not be identified, and eighteen were in areas not listed as critical with respect to either housing or labor. A list of these twenty-five items arranged in the order of the largest project first is attached to this memorandum. All of these items are of relatively small amounts. In view of these circumstances, do you think it advisable to pursue the matter further?

For your information

As a further step in bringing pressure on the Swedes, the State Department yesterday took the unusual step of announcing in advance the names of 38 Swedish individuals and firms which will be included in the next supplement to the Proclaimed List to be issued on June 2, 1944. It was also indicated that active consideration is being given to the Proclaimed Listing of other Swedish firms. It is my understanding that 12 additional names have been tentatively agreed upon but will not be specifically mentioned at this time.

This step is being taken jointly with the British and a similar statement was to be made yesterday in the British Parliament.

In order to prevent possible depletion of the assets in the United States of such persons, we are depriving them of the privileges of pertinent general licenses, thereby making their transactions subject to specific applications which will be dealt with in a manner consistent with our Proclaimed List policy.

Since the uncertainty created by the State Department announcement may cause Swedish firms generally to attempt to transfer their assets out of the United States, we have asked the Office of Censorship to refer to us, prior to release, incoming instructions from Sweden ordering the transfer of significant amounts. This may give us important leads concerning those Swedish firms who feel that their activities may be objectionable to the Allies.

SKF Sweden was not included on the list announced. In fact it is our understanding that the names announced were confined solely to firms and individuals which will be included in the next supplement to the Proclaimed List regardless of the outcome of the current negotiations.

Please inform Haitian Foreign Minister of this Government's disappointment. This Government has often expressed its disapproval of laxity in the authorization of passports and in no (repeat no) way condones irregularity in their issuance. Nevertheless, where human lives hang in the balance, this Government takes the view that it must act in the interest of saving lives. You may also advise him that Honduras, Venezuela, Ecuador, Guatemala, Uruguay, Nicaragua and Costa Rica have already expressed themselves as being in full accord with us on this subject, and the other countries concerned have given indications that they will do likewise momentarily.

Your attention is drawn in this connection to the step taken by this Government with regard to refugees in German-controlled territory and referred to in Department's circular airgram of May 11, 7:30 p.m. In lieu with our own attitude, please impress upon Haitian authorities our confidence that they will speedily reconsider their attitude and act to protect the persons concerned from almost certain death. DECLARATION BY THE POLISH GOVERNMENT
PASSED BY THE COUNCIL OF MINISTERS
ON 28TH APRIL, 1944

The Polish Government welcomes with all appreciation the creation under a decree of the President of the United States of America of a War Refugee Board, the object of which is to give organised assistance to all victims of persecution and to all those threatened by death, irrespective of nationality, race or creed.

Whereas it is in full solidarity with the declaration of March 24, 1944, in which President Roosevelt once again defended the rights of all those who are oppressed and tortured, the Polish Government desires at the same time to point out that in the past it has more than once drawn the attention of the civilised world to the inhuman atrocities committed by the Germans. In no country is the number of persons—both Christians and Jews—who are tortured to death so great, nowhere the persecution so terrible as in Poland. To give help to the persecuted is the constant concern of the Polish authorities whether acting in Poland itself or in other countries.

The Polish Government is prepared to give its full support to every endeavour of the United States in this connection and to give the closest cooperation to the newly-formed War Refugee Board in carrying aid and rescue to Polish citizens, whether in or outside Poland.

While in Spain discussed with Ambassador Hayes special license W-2155 and wish inform you all remittances sent thereunder utilized paying services Spanish guides bringing children and adults over mountains. They always paid in pesetas hence purchase foreign funds in Spain not required nor contemplated for present. Ambassador apparently has no objection our using money sent for this purpose to Sequerre in Barcelona.

This WRB 45 JDC 3 from Schwartz for Leavitt. Had long conference with Ambassador Hayes regarding WRB and program of rescue with which he is in hearty accord. He indicated his desire and we concur therein that for the present it would be best for the Board to designate David Blickestaff as the representative in Spain. Blickestaff we believe could do this and at the same time carry on present work which seems to us most important for rescue and relief. Should work develop so that WRB needed his full time the Ambassador is ready to make or consider other suggestions but I think combination of offices will not hurt either. Blickestaff's offices now being used by all private agencies permitted operate in Spain so that from my point of view see no conflict. I understand Blickestaff would be willing accept appointment under conditions outlined above.

Would appreciate your views on this subject. In the meantime, American organizations very interested possibilities accelerated rescue and relief work from Sweden in Poland and Baltic area and funds will be available for that purpose. Following is Ankara No. 62 from the Ambassador for the War Refugee Board.

For one reason or another, in order not to subject the Board to demurrage of 5,000 Turkish pounds daily pending definite advice from the Inter-Red Cross or Turkish Foreign Office as to whether the German Government would grant a safe-conduct, I have avoided signing the charter party for the SS TARI, although the Director General of State Steamship Lines had been pressing me to sign same since my message of April 19; No. 711, paragraph Four. I was informed this morning by the Director General, exasperated at the delay of over two months during which time the vessel has been idle, that he had referred the matter to the Foreign Minister. I thought it advisable therefore, to advise the Minister today of the various reasons for my failure to sign the charter party to date and to ask him about the prospects for a German safe-conduct. It was stated by Numan that although he had made four requests of Von Papen for a safe-conduct for the TARI, he was convinced now that it would not be forthcoming, especially as political relations between Turkey and Germany are undergoing a severe strain as a result of the decision on chrome.

Then I proposed to Numan that he allow the TARI to sail for a Bulgarian port without a German safe-conduct for the purpose of bringing refugees to Istanbul where they might remain on board the vessel, pending their gradual transportation to Palestine at the rate of about 200 per week, this being the estimated capacity of the railroad over and above the movement of refugees arriving by so-called illegal boats and rail. I pointed out to Numan that the risk of a German attack on the TARI in the Black Sea would be considerably less than on a voyage from Istanbul to Haifa, where at times the TARI would be compelled to pass within five or six miles of German coastal batteries, submarine and airplane bases on flight naval craft. Numan answered that my proposal would be taken under consideration if I could secure a Bulgarian safe-conduct and permission for the TARI to enter a Bulgarian port. In accordance therefore, today I have requested Simon to press the Bulgarian Minister for a safe-conduct and permission to enter a Bulgarian port.

A reply may be delayed by the resignation of the Bulgarian Cabinet, which reply however, should be favorable unless the only two available Bulgarian ports of Burgas and Varna are under such complete German control as to cause the request to be referred to Berlin in which event a Bulgarian safe-conduct probably will not be forthcoming.

Regraded Unclassified
Human clearly implied in the course of my discussion with him today that even though I had not as yet formally signed the contract, he considers the TARI under charter to the board. Therefore, we must anticipate eventual difficulties with the State Steamship Lines in determining the amount to be paid for the TARI. In this connection and solely for my guidance, advice from the board as to the maximum obligation, it is prepared to incur for the TARI whether or not the vessel is ultimately available, will be appreciated by me.
