There is no AA equipment at HOFN or in that vicinity. See my short title letter Indhof to Chief of Staff June fifteen and specifically paragraph four.
I have repeatedly reported to Chief of Staff the absence of defensive installations at HOFN. Reference your five seven three third it is not possible for local pursuit to intercept hostile aviation at a distance of two hundred miles from pursuit bases. There was no notice of attack from our detector system. For AWS dispositions see my short title in AWS one to Chief of Staff. There are no installations of AWS system now installed in Iceland that could have picked up indication of this attack from the direction it was made. Radio station attacked was British and only recently installed. US Army RDF station being erected is six miles to the east thereof. Believe the increased activity of German aviation on north and east coasts of Iceland probably caused by five four naught movement and Russian convoy rating. One flight of pursuit will shortly be dispatched to Melwerdi. Present pursuit forces are not adequate for dispersal to all parts of Iceland. Lack of aviation, anti aircraft and other ground forces enumerated in my short title letter INDEEF precludes and chance of complete interference with hostile air reconnaissance and attacks.

However stocks must be large enough to stand home fleet requirements of up to 22,000 tons at short notice. During last 6 weeks admiralty issues totalled 42,000 tons. Therefore for forward planning United States Navy should contemplate sending about 34,000 tons per month to meet British Navy requirements including supplies heretofore furnished by admiralty to merchant vessels. It is contemplated that oil for North Russia will be despatched in a single tanker sailing in convoy about every 6 weeks. This tanker would probably be specially armed and would draw on the stocks at Hvalfjord which withdrawal is additional to the averages previously mentioned. Estimated civil requirements per annum are petrol 12,000 tons gas oil 22,000 tons kerosene 35,000 tons. Admiralty will leave following oilers for storage and fleet attendance.
