VARIETY OF TOPICS AT WOMEN'S CAMP

Former Assistant Secretary
H. S. Breckinridge Talks of "National Preparedness."

SANITATION AND HYGIENE
THEME OF DR. STIMSON

Franklin D. Roosevelt of Navy Department Hopes for Strong and Efficient National Defense.

ADDRESSES TOMORROW:
THE PUBLIC INVITED

"Pan-American Preparedness," by John Barrett, director general of the Pan-American Union.
"Americanization of Foreign-born," by Dr. H. H. Wheaton.
Address by Mrs. Frank G. Olenheimer, president, general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

"National Preparedness," discussed in a spirited address by Henry K. Breckinridge, who recently resigned as assistant secretary of war, was brought before the 400 camp students and several hundred guests by the assembly held this afternoon. He told how neglecting this country has been in the matter of preparing adequately its shores and its people for a foreign foe and what spirit must animate the American people to rectify this error.

Dr. Arthur Stimson, of the public health service, told about the study and prevention of typhoid and malarial, particularly as applied to camp life and to what would obtain if war should come upon the United States. The speaker's addresses were told in a personal touch that won the sympathy and interest of all present, and that they can be properly appreciated and put to use in the future.

Men's Student Camp, Theme.
That the men's student camp at Chatham was a turning point in the history of the United States, that the women's camp at Chevy Chase was a turning point in the history of the United States, was the theme of the address given by Dr. H. H. Wheaton, president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, at the opening of the men's student camp at Chatham, Va., today.

Mr. Roosevelt paid his respects to the women's camp at Chevy Chase, Md., today.

much more than you have any idea of. It is the first step and a very important step in the new plan. It will have a tremendous influence throughout the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt went on to tell what may be accomplished through the cooperation of the various departments. He said that the lack of cooperation in Federal departments is a serious matter, and that there must be coordination in all their activities.

Tribute to American Surgery.
Mrs. Slavko Gremlich, wife of a Serbian minister, paid a tribute to American surgical skill. "You may not be prepared in this country to kill people," she said, "but you are better prepared than any people in the world to heal the wounds of war." She made this statement based on her own observations of the work of the American surgeons of the American Expeditionary Force in France, where she visited the American surgical hospital in the summer of 1915.

GIVES LAST OF SERIES OF ITS DUTCH SUPPERS

Aloysius Club Entertains at Gonna Hall for Benefit of Notre Dame School.

The last of a series of Dutch suppers given under the auspices of the Aloysius Club for the benefit of the Notre Dame School, which has been given last evening at Gonna Hall, was a most successful one.

The supper service was under the supervision of Mrs. W. J. O'Leary assisted by Mrs. Joseph Crowley, Mrs. John Elbert, Mrs. James Keihner, Mrs. John Elbert, Mrs. Thomas J. O'Leary, Mrs. Edward Noble, Mrs. John Robinson, Mrs. Margaret, Mrs. John Robinson and Mrs. W. A. Richardson. Miss Irene McGowan, president of the Dutch club, presented the Dutch club of a label, awarded by Miss Helen McGowan, president of the Dutch club, to Mrs. W. J. O'Leary, Mrs. Joseph Crowley, Mrs. John Elbert, Mrs. James Keihner, Mrs. John Elbert, Mrs. Thomas J. O'Leary, Mrs. Edward Noble, Mrs. John Robinson, Mrs. Margaret, Mrs. John Robinson and Mrs. W. A. Richardson.

Miss Nellie Becker presided over the refreshment table.

MRS. LANSING JOINS THE WOMEN'S CAMP

State Department Now Has Its Representative at Defense School.

IS A RESIDENT STUDENT;
TAKES WORK SERIOUSLY

Dons $10.50 Khaki Uniform and Is Tenting With Mrs. George Barnett—On Several Committees.

Not to be outdone by the chief executive of the United States and the high officials and officers of the defense arm of the national government, the State Department now has its representative in the women's preparedness camp at Chevy Chase.

Mrs. Robert Lansing, wife of the Secretary of State, and daughter of the former Secretary of State, John W. Foster, has donned a khaki uniform, and is tenting with Mrs. George Barrett, wife of the commander of the Marine Corps.

Mrs. Lansing is on several of the important committees for the camp, but it was not known until yesterday that she was going to actually be a resident student at the camp. She is taking the work very seriously and setting a good example to the young members of the National Service School.

Didn't Run From Shower.

A brisk shower just during retreat last night didn't "faze" the rookie. (she didn't) shower for shelter as might expected, but stood through it like a veteran. The rain didn't last long and the camp is as bright and cheery as ever today.

Competition is strong between the camp promoters in drilling and street cleanliness, etc.—constituting general work. Mrs. J. W. O'Leary, Mrs. Joseph Crowley, Mrs. John Elbert, Mrs. James Keihner, Mrs. John Elbert, Mrs. Thomas J. O'Leary, Mrs. Edward Noble, Mrs. John Robinson, Mrs. Margaret, Mrs. John Robinson and Mrs. W. A. Richardson.

The wireless tent started work today and was a popular place for the 200 members of the navy—Edith H. Allen, Mrs. J. W. O'Leary, Mrs. Joseph Crowley, Mrs. John Elbert, Mrs. James Keihner, Mrs. John Elbert, Mrs. Thomas J. O'Leary, Mrs. Edward Noble, Mrs. John Robinson, Mrs. Margaret, Mrs. John Robinson and Mrs. W. A. Richardson.

Classes in Signaling.
The signal classes are in charge of the Quartermaster at Ft. Meade and Ft. S. Shipp. These instructors are kept on all day. At first as they stood facing the grid some of them protested, but looking directly at them was "emphatically" told the instructors were not to turn their backs and reverse their ear-me scratch, his stomach and his pain; so if your head hurts, don't sit crying, but spend a minute prophesying that we shall have some rain. I know disaster sticks the tighter to any weak and weeping blighter, who will not turn and scrap, but it will find its job revolting, and soon quit badgering and jolting the brisk, aggressive chap. All fortune is in the bluffer; it does your heels and makes you suffer, while you for this will stand; but when all fearlessly you eye it, and nullify whisksers and def's it, it skips to beat the band.

WALT MASON. COMMANDANT OF CAMP FORCED TO SEEK REST

One of First to Be Treated at the Red Cross Emergency Hospital.

The commandant of the women's preparedness camp at Chevy Chase was one of the first who had to seek treatment at the Red Cross "emergency" hospital, which is in charge of the camp. Mrs. Elizabeth Elliott was one of the four cases treated. She had to have aromatic spirits of ammonia administered to quiet her nerves, and was forced to retire to the hospital tent for a rest of two days before she could take charge of her "troops" when they were released by President Wilson and Secretary Daniels and Baker.

Mrs. Port's indisposition is due to the fact that she has been under a terrible strain for several weeks, taking personal charge of the work of fitting up the camp, enrollment, assignment to tents and in conducting the entire outfit. She has worked day and night on this job. Her many friends, who have witnessed the excellence of all her organizing and administrative work, are glad that she is now able to rest and recuperate. She is now being treated by Dr. H. H. Wheaton, of the Army and Marine Corps officers who is a remarkable feat.

Visitor Sprains Ankle.
Another of the early hospital cases was that of a visitor from the city who sprained her ankle and had to be treated at the "emergency" station and taken home in an automobile. A young Washington woman who is a day student at the camp had a severe falling spell on the first day, and was under treatment for some time.

There was also another student case of "nervous" which was treated at the "emergency" station. A young student had a fainting spell and was taken to the hospital and treated by Dr. H. H. Wheaton.

HOSPITAL IS PROVIDED.

Will Be One Feature of Retail Merchants' Trade Boosting Trip.
"Preparedness" and "safety first" are being emphasized by Henry Lane, borough chairman of the homeier committee of the Retail Merchants' Association, in a trip which will be made in attendance for the trade boosting trip which the association is making to the West Coast from May 10 to May 15 to this city by boat.

Mr. Lane's headquarters does not appear there will be any other than the steamship Transoceanic. It is J. J. Kane-
