Says Rand, calling from N.Y.

"At the N.Y. State Chamber of Commerce meeting yesterday, we had our men there to put through resolutions in support of the President's monetary program and had several high grade men who knew the N.Y. downtown community. The facts are that this meeting was slated as part of the program of the NYC bankers and international bankers in NYC and London who are planning to defeat the President's monetary policy and the meeting was called yesterday morning at a time that the average business man could not attend; it was a packed meeting -- packed by Morgan and Kuhn-Loeb people and employees and a few of the deflationists who hold large quantities of Liberty bonds and other bonds.

"Then our men attempted to present the resolution supporting the President's program it was promptly squelched by an organized attack planned in advance, and then their resolution which called for a return to the twenty dollar price of gold and gold standard and stabilization was jammed through without a chance of any opposition, being introduced by steam roller tactics of the old fashioned type. It was a clear case of a meeting organized for a definite purpose  (repetition) ***

"We maintain an intelligence service of our own and know what is going on and we have men in the camps of the enemy. Our representatives this morning report that the big drive on the market to destroy confidence of the people in the President's monetary program will start on Tuesday or late Monday and that it will continue to decline until November 20th when they hope to reach their objective, and then hold the market on a pretty even keel on that low level until Jan. 1st. The theory is to let the Market take care of itself and absolutely ruin public confidence and the willingness of business men to go ahead with production so that the President will be forced into a position where he will have to capitulate and give up the Govt control of price level and gold. Now that starts on Monday or Tuesday according to the plan and goes on to Nov. 21st."

"For Mac's personal information the order for the 40,000 ounces of gold placed with E A Pierce & Co. announced in the morning papers to be purchased from Canada and turned over to the Fed Res in exchange for RFC debentures in accordance with the plan announced by Jones was placed by Remington Rand in order to help out the psychology here. What we want is the debentures -- short term debentures -- and are taking this method of doing it. Jones knows about it."

MEMORANDUM FOR
HON. FRANK R. MONINCH
HON. BASIL MANLY

Will you, very confidentially, give me your advice on the reappointment of Commissioner Draper whose term, as I understand it, expires on June 22nd?

February 10, 1940.

Dear Sara:-

I have been checking about Bryan and I am confidentially informed that he is really very ill. I am distressed to hear this as he is a grand fellow and I fear that his illness is serious, though they will not know more definitely for sometime. Dan Callaghan, my Senior Naval Aide, is keeping in touch. He knows Bryan and likes him.

I was glad to hear from Prince Bertil that he had lunched with you.

It was grand to get that glimpse of you between Hyde Park and "Algonac". Do be sure to let me know if you come to Washington.

Affectionately,

Mrs. Roland L. Redmond,

Dear Mr. President and C. C.:

It was so very delightful last Saturday and we had such a charming time with you that I could not refrain from sending you a note of appreciation.

Since talking with you I have had some rather sad news about Sam Bryan's state of health which came as quite a shock. I do not know full details yet.
his condition, but understand that he is due to be transferred to the Brooklyn Navy Yard to receive treatments at Memorial Hospital. This may sound worse than it is. I certainly hope so for all concerned.

Robert, I continued our colorful weekend by going "home with the Wind" Saturday. Then had Prime Rib for lunch on Sunday. We met him two years ago when he was here and so he knew social functions is apparently discount me as a matrimonially scheming mother he seemed well enough to meet them over until five in the afternoon.

Please accept my recent thanks for letting Harriet and come up and for giving us such a generous and pleasant lunch. It was seem a little odd for me to revert to the Commander-in-Chief for a few technical questions on Naval promotions!

However, odd or impertinent, on my part, you were grand! Certainly knew all the answers.

Agatha and I are journeying to Washington.
Some day and when we do we hope so much to call at The White House. Uncle Fred has offered to put us up and to get us into places and as Cynthia has never had the pleasure of a Washington tour as my older girls have I rather cling to the idea of his planning our trip.

With many heartfelt Thanks, I am affectionately yours

My deepest sympathy to you and to all who mourn with you in the passing of a dear friend. Happily, Helen Reynolds has left in permanent form her invaluable contributions to the history of our community and in the hearts of all who knew her a memory which will be a permanent heritage to all who passed her way.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT
Miss Marguerite A. LeHand,
The White House,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Marguerite:

February 14th was certainly a red-letter day, as I received two much appreciated valentines, first, your letter, and second, a notice that the Company had given me an increase in salary. Valentines like these come about as often as Leap Year, so you can see it was a memorable day!

Your thoughtfulness in showing my letter to the President is more than appreciated, because I really didn't expect that you would do anything like that. This makes two letters (and myself!) that you have passed in to Mr. Roosevelt, all entirely unexpected and therefore the more appreciated. I hope that at some time and in some manner I can repay these courtesies on your part.

It was mighty gratifying to have you say that the President was enough interested in my letter to put my name on a list of people to be considered when the social insurance work is organized. This is more than could be anticipated.

Because I regarded my letter more as an inquiry about prospects than as a formal application, I did not go into details about ways in which my services might be of value to the proposed organization, other than to say that "the line of activity suited to my experience would be publicity and public relations or organization and training of personnel". With all that will have to undertaken in connection with an activity so large in scope, I can see various ways in which I could fit into the picture usefully.

Just one of these I should like to mention, as it is a phase that is both important and appealing. This is establishing and maintaining an atmosphere of cordial co-operation with the many companies, organizations, and trade journals now functioning in the field of life insurance, interpreting to them what the social insurance activities of the government will mean to the business of life insurance, to its salesmen, and to the millions of policyholders. In this important work there will be need for men who come from the life insurance world, who are familiar with the institution and the men who guide its operations, and who know how to build up the favorable response that is so desirable. I believe that in this particular field I could be of real service. Later on, when the legislation nears enactment and more can be told as to its form of organization, I should be glad if you would let me know with whom this matter can be discussed.

Thank you for your invitation to let you know when I come to Washington, and for the message from Miss Tully. Honestly, though, Marguerite, with all that you have in the way of work and responsibility, I'd feel a little reluctant about taking up your time. However, the Company is going to resume Saturday closing early next month, and if I drive to Washington or Baltimore some Saturday or Sunday, I shall certainly telephone you. Since I know that week-ends are your busy time, it will be perfectly all right if you too occupied to see me.

I saw in a local paper a few days ago that the President and Mrs. Roosevelt are expected to visit Virginia Beach on April 26th in connection with the ceremonies at Cape Henry. If you accompany them and come through Richmond, I shall hope to see you long enough to say "hello" at least.

With best wishes to you and Miss Tully, I remain

Very sincerely yours,

Dearest Helen:

I fully understand about the cottage at Herkimer. That problem of labor is not easy. We will have to find something else away from the coast line for the Norwegians.

I do hope you will come to Washington soon. You and I can pick out some more parasites.

Affectionately,

Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson,

Dear Franklin,

Since talking to you about the possibility of Princess Martha taking my old farm house for the summer, I'm afraid I won't be able to manage it for her. In the first place, Douglas may want to put his children there, & get out of the Washington heat.
And secondly the house is really not very attractive any more. I tore out all the nice furniture I could to Henderson. What's left is very shabby and not very good. Also I have had to let the grounds go, as with the tremendous shortage of labor in the district due to munitions factories it is just about impossible to find men to work on the Henderson Sander, much less the farm property. Even if I had my normal amount of men, I couldn't keep up both places.
So the afraid I can't consider it, and am very sorry you have troubling my head off with the "parasites."

Thee love,

Dear Anna:

Your very nice letter came a few days ago and I want you to know how very deeply I appreciate your thought in writing to me.

All the news we hear from Warm Springs is good. Dr. Harper returned a week or so ago and said everything was going well and Missy was improving daily. We have had word from the nurses since then and they tell us Missy is very happy and contented at Warm Springs.

I hope to get down there next week and I am looking forward to seeing Missy then. I think it is grand that Sister is planning to go down for Christmas.

This note takes to you and all the family my affectionate regards.

Dear Mr. President:

Just a note to tell you how wonderful we think you are. We cannot express any feeling for your kindness to Marquette. No matter what you do she never could idolize you any more than she always did, and I think she really knows all you have done for her the civil as appreciation.

It seems like a dream to me, a lovely nightmare, and yet the sun rose this morning with light. I know she is going to get better and to think that she is so delighted with Warm Springs is a great relief.

There was as sweet of you to talk with Mrs. Brown. She came back a different child, after she wouldn't come home, and she had a worried smile, and I was so worried about her, once tried to Washington and was satisfied. It was terrible but we all feel better now that she has seen you and talked to you. She adores you as Marquette does.
Dear Lord of Saints on earth, but you are the 1st one I actually knew of. I stand say I couldn't thank you enough Mr. President for all you have done.

Love from all,

Dear Franklin,

We were extremely sorry to be unable to lunch at the White House today. When Mrs. Helen's telegram reached us late yesterday afternoon, I had just learned that sister June - (nearly a grandmother!) was in town for a very brief visit, and we had arranged to be with her today. As I had not seen her in three years and she is... returning tomorrow to her ranch in Colorado, I am sure you will understand and forgive us for regrett[ing your very kind invitation.

All congratulations on your last night's May Day talk. If only everyone would realize that the emergency is immediate, and not some vague threat that we can face in our own good time — and alone. But I believe that you are steadily winning more and more people to awareness to the dangers ahead.

With many thanks for including us in today's invitation, and with best wishes to Eleanor and yourself.

Yours sincerely,

My dear Lindsay:—

Thank you much for your note. I do hope that you will be able to come down one of these days soon and see me, but give me at least twenty-four hours notice.

Thank you also for that delightful quotation from Disraeli. It does really fit the unfortunate Moley, who should have known better, having had a good deal of experience of one kind or another. But I do not think it really fits Stanley High because the latter never knew any better and was by way of needing money.

In regard to our plans for a war organization, I hope you like the general set-up proposed. Although there are from seventeen to twenty individuals whom I would have to see, it is, I think, sufficiently flexible for me to work very closely with half a dozen of them just as Lloyd George did with his small War Cabinet. The others—some of the ten members of the Cabinet and probably the three administrative agencies would act largely in their present administrative duties.

As you doubtless know, I did not wholly like President Wilson’s war set-up. I have by chance, however, one definite advantage in that I saw the operation of the whole Wilson set-up and also because I do not have to have military and naval operations explained to me at length.
The dovetailing of labor into the new plans has not yet been thought out, and, as you know, we are faced with various possibilities. For instance, there is the demand of the Legion and many others that all labor be conscripted, just like people in uniform, and then distributed for civilian work. In this regard also we have to look very carefully at the political effects of any plan and the whole subject is complicated by the personality of Lewis and the deeper troubles between the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L.

You might be thinking this out for me!

Always sincerely,

Professor Lindsay Rogers,

Dear Mr. President:

I was extremely sorry that you could not see Louis Brownlow and me on Tuesday, and am glad to know from the papers that the reason no longer exists.

You sent me word that I should send you a memorandum and I enclose it herewith. If you wish to talk about the matters it mentions — or any other matters — I am of course always at your service.

Your willingness to see me and what Brownlow said to me with your permission relieved my mind on one point. Certain articles which have been appearing in the Saturday Evening Post are apparently considered as of an exceptional nature and it will not be necessary for every other professor (or, for that matter, ex-preacher) to be bonded against violations of confidence before he is admitted into the presence of the politically great. Incidentally, the account of that regrettable tariff speech incident is incorrect — even untruthful.

I ran into Felix Frankfurter in London and told him that I was reminded of something that Disraeli had written to September 8, 1939.

one of his women friends at the time of the publication of Charles Greville's Memoirs. Some of it is quite apposite and I attach a copy of the passage.

With high regard and all good wishes, I am

Enclosures.
Disraeli to Lady Bradford, October 26th, 1874, on the Greville Memoirs:

"I have not seen Chas. Greville's book, but have read a good deal of it. It is a social outrage, and committed by one who was always talking of what he called 'perfect gentlemen'. I don't think he can figure now in that category. I know him intimately. He was the vainest being — I don't limit myself to man — that ever existed; and I have read Cicero and was intimate with Lytton Bulwer. But Greville would swallow garbage, and required it. Offended self love is a key to most of his observations . . . when he was not scandalous he was prolix and prosy — a clumsy, wordy writer."
From Lindsay Rogers

Certain aspects of Great Britain's reorganization of her Cabinet system to deal with the crisis before war and to carry on war are of interest to and may cause envy in students of the American governmental system. The present organization differs in details and not in fundamental structure from that which Lloyd-George set up in 1916.

(1) The War Cabinet under the chairmanship of the Prime Minister. Mr. Lloyd-George's War Cabinet consisted of himself, Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer (who was not supposed to attend regularly); and Lord Milner, Lord Curzon, and Arthur Henderson, who were Ministers without Portfolio. This body was in almost constant session; it summoned Ministers and their technical experts. On occasion it dealt directly with service and departmental experts so that it was able to have full knowledge of their opinions and was not limited to the reports of their opinions which might be made by the experts' ministerial superiors (this was a delicate matter but by and large the Cabinet got away with it). Lloyd-George insisted that the members of his War Directory not be bothered by administrative routine. He wanted them to be free to think, to plan, and to advise. Decisions were taken in the name of the War Cabinet, but they were pretty much the ones that Lloyd-George wanted. He was something like a Chief Executive or, on strategic (as distinguished from tactical) questions, a Commander in Chief, who functioned in the presence of and with the assistance of a committee. [Chamberlain's War Cabinet is larger than Lloyd-George's. It contains several Ministers who are charged with departmental tasks, but my guess is that they will shift much routine to subordinates to save their time for thinking about over-all problems. I anticipate also that the War Cabinet will be reduced in size.] Each member of the Lloyd-George War Cabinet chaired certain sub-committees of Ministers. In this way the Prime Minister was kept in touch with all government business — even business that was not considered by the War Cabinet. He also kept in touch through

(2) The War Cabinet Secretariat. This agency under Hankey's direction

(a) prevented business from going before the War Cabinet until it was in shape for speedy consideration and decision — that is, properly documented and with the appropriate persons either presenting it personally or being in attendance if the War Cabinet wished to interrogate them;

(b) kept minutes of the meetings of the War Cabinet (in summary form), recorded the decisions taken, and, after having the minutes vetted by the members of the War Cabinet, circulated parts of them to the Ministers or departments who were particularly concerned; and

(c) furnished secretarial service to all sub-committees of the War Cabinet and to any departmental committees (if important) which functioned at a level below that of the War Cabinet. In this role the Cabinet Secretariat

(i) provided a channel through which the War Cabinet received complete information on everything which was under way and could then decide whether it wished to participate directly; and

(ii) permitted things to be done without ever going to the War Cabinet, with the result that the War Cabinet did not loom in the Ministerial or popular mind as a great devourer of all discretion.

[Note: The head of the Secretariat could never be thought of as a contender for power or as an assistant Prime Minister and Ministers could not be jealous of him because his duties were secretarial: agenda, minutes, etc. He had no administrative tasks. He did not even inquire as to whether the Cabinet’s decisions were carried out. That was the responsibility of the Minister concerned.]

(3) Committee of Imperial Defence. The British have paid much more attention than we have to civilian control of the services. An Army Council, an Admiralty Board and an Air Council on each of which civilian Ministers sit, insure civilian control within the departments. Coördination is attempted through the Committee of Imperial Defence under the chairmanship of the Prime Minister who determines its composition. It usually includes a number of Ministers and the three chiefs of staff. Since 1936, its chairman, when the Prime Minister did not attend, has been the Minister for the Coördination of Defence who reported directly to the Prime Minister as well as to the Cabinet.
and who presided over the chiefs of staff committee. Lloyd-George's War Cabinet took over most of the work of the Committee of Imperial Defence and presumably the Chamberlain War Cabinet will do the same thing. The Cabinet Secretariat is also the Secretariat of the Committee of Imperial Defence.

(4) Flexibility of British Organization. The Prime Minister revamps the organization and Parliament always consents. Parliament grants legislative power to the Secretary of State and this can be exercised by anyone of the secretaries of state or can be transferred to another Minister. Thus the Lord Privy Seal (Sir John Anderson) who was charged with air-raid precautions had for the first time in the history of this office large ordinance-making powers. [Incidentally, it is said that the description of this office is characteristically British: its holder is not a lord, not a privy and not a seal.]

(5) There is another phase of crisis organization in Great Britain which at the moment is not relevant to the emergency that this country faces or may face. The problem of civil defence has necessitated new relationships between central and local authorities. Under the Emergency Powers Act the executive now has full power to determine what those relationships shall be. When the story of the summer's negotiations as to who should pay for what and as to who should do this or that is written, it may have suggestions that are pertinent to the American problem of relations between the Federal government and the States, and the Federal government and local governments.

Dear Pa:

The enclosed from Charlie McGehee came today. You remember that I gave you his check made out personally to you the night we were going to Philadelphia for the notification ceremonies, and told you that he had expressed the wish that you use it for whatever personal matters you had in mind.

Would you look it up and, if you get a chance, write Charlie a note yourself?

Much love--

Dear Jimmie:

I was in Atlanta this last weekend, and when I was checking my bank account I noticed that I was $1000 out of balance, and that the check I gave you in Philadelphia had not cleared. You mentioned the fact that you were thinking of getting up a special fund for your father’s use, and that you would hold this check for that if the plans went through, so it occurs to me that you may still be holding it for this reason. However, I did want to call your attention to the fact that it had not cleared.

I know you must have had a wonderful cruise, and I am sure it did your father a lot of good and put him in the proper trim to give his opponents plenty of hell during the next three months.

I am still stuck down here in New Orleans, but expect to get away from here reasonably soon, and I am making my plans along the lines we discussed, to be up there in September.

Very sincerely,

Happy New Year

Dear Uncle Frankie—Chuck arrived home a few weeks ago—indeed an hour before our dear Jennie died, but it was so wonderful he was there for he was such a help to Mamma. He is going to be stationed in Washington for two months so we are moving down about the 10th of January. We were (over) and found a house in Georgetown - Mommy, I think, is going to come down with us as it would be hard for her to be alone in New York this winter.

Looking forward to seeing you when we get to Washington and at long last you will meet my spouse.

This card brings you my very best Christmas wishes and loads of love & kisses.

Dear Mrs. Roosevelt:

We wish you to know how deeply we sympathize with you in the loss of your sister. She was evidently a very remarkable woman and made valuable contributions to the worth while things of life during her long period of more than ninety years. We can ill afford in these times to lose such stabilizing influences.

May her life continue to be lived through others in the interests of better understanding, and more effective solidarity among peoples for the preservation of the principles of civilization.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT:

Subject: Union organizational activities in the Radiation Laboratory at the University of California.

The Army officers in charge of an important and secret project are inquiring as to the status of the Unionization activities at the Radiation Laboratory of the University of California and the possibility of the cessation of such activity. I enclose herewith a copy of my memorandum to you of September 9th and would greatly appreciate it if you could advise me whether results can be accomplished along this line in order that the security of the project may be protected.

(Penrose notation) You will remember that I explained to you personally the seriousness of this danger and the extreme urgency of action.

S/ HENRY L. STimson
Secretary of War

Encl: Copy refo. to the President, 9/9/43.
SECRETARY FOR THE PRESIDENT:

SUBJECT: MANJoseph Organizational Activities in the Radiation Laboratory.

1. There has been a marked increase recently in union organizing activity in the Radiation Laboratory at the University of California in Berkeley which is endorsed upon one of the most important phases of the work on uranium fissile. This organizational activity is being carried on by the Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists, and Technicians (FAC) Local No. 26. In the furtherance of their organizational activity this union is assembling lists of the scientific and technical personnel of the laboratory, and necessarily acquiring considerable information with respect to the work being carried on there.

2. The said organizers of Local No. 26, Paul Shore, and the local MANJoseph International Vice-President, David E. Adelson, are definitely Communists. They are close associates of and receive the constant counsel of one Steve Nelson, who is a member of the National Committee of the Communist Party, U.S.A., and the head of the Communist Party in Alameda County, California. Nelson induces Joseph Schenker, a member of the staff of the Radiation Laboratory, to furnish him secret information concerning the work with the announced intention of transmitting it to the U.S.S.R. and it is believed he has done so.

3. Lists of the persons employed upon this project are classified as secret because information as to the nature and extent of the work could be deduced therefrom. The security of the work has already been compromised by the activities of the union. Continued union activities will be extremely dangerous not only to security but to the safety and health of the work and it is unquestionable that the union organization will be used to further espionage activities of agents of a foreign power.

4. It is urgently recommended that at the earliest opportunity you have a personal conference with Mr. Philip Murray, the head of the CIO, and request him in the strongest terms to take such steps as are necessary to ensure that the MANJoseph immediately cease, for the duration of the war, all union activity whatsoever with respect to the Radiation Laboratory, University of California, at Berkeley. This should include disbanding the laboratory organization of Local No. 26. There is no objection, however, to employees of the laboratory retaining membership in the union, provided it is in a 'hobby' inactive status during the war.

Respectfully yours,

F. B. M.
Respectfully returned to the President with the thanks of Sec. Hull and Mrs. Hull.
About my mission, we must now try to get on with the job, go to Germany as soon as possible. I am to see Lord Winterton about this tomorrow. The problem seems to me about as hopelessly insoluble as it did. I have a number of financial schemes, but none in which I have confidence. Nor do I know whether the Government will give me the effective support which I need. Kennedy tells me that the British will do nothing unless the American Government will contribute something positive, and they have contributed nothing yet but words.

In what manner am I going to come out of this adventure? I don't know. I am engaged in a sort of detective thriller conversations with a Commander Godman, a mysterious Englishman from Berlin, who claims to have enormous influence with the Nazis and that he can put through a financial scheme. He wants to be paid for his services. A boastful rough customer of the adventurer type. I should pay no attention to him. But Lord Winterton and the Treasury people tell me that I must take him seriously, but they don't tell me why. Lord Winterton sent word that this fellow was useful to the Prime Minister in his negotiations. All these experiences would be very stimulating and exciting—I suppose they are so—but they are weary and I should be more cheerful if I had one face card or trump in the hand I have to play.

Dear Colonel Ruffner:

I was very much touched by your nice letter about my boy Jimmy. I am delighted that your son was with him at Makin, and I think we both have every reason to be proud of our boys.

With every good wish to you and yours for the New Year,

Very sincerely yours,

Colonel Ernest L. Ruffner, USA (Ret)

My dear Mr President,

Official letters from Maj Gen R.C. Smith, and affidavit from an eye witness Lt Col G.W. Keyly Commanding Officer 165 Inf, Nov 20 1943 tell me that your son Lt Col James R. Roosevelt U.S.M.C. and my son Col. Clark L. Ruffner GS, went ashore in the first wave at Makin Atoll Gilbert Islands Nov 20-24, and were together constantly in the leading assault units.

In the words of Gen Smith "these men had guts and what it takes".

I am very proud of my son, and know you are proud of this son, and all your other sons. As one father to another May God bless them and keep them safe.

With great respect to my COMMANDER in Chief.

Ernest L. Ruffner.

Dear Louis:

I am returning herewith your letter, addressed to Archibald Fullam, which I was much interested to see. It is a very good letter and I am wondering if you had a reply from 'His Excellency.' I also showed it to the President, who read it with the same interest. In fact, he said 'file it,' but I am returning it as you requested.

I have also given the President the "Thriller," which will be "beside reading." I know he will enjoy it.

It was nice to see you when you were here and I am sorry you did not have a chance to see the C-in-C. before returning. However, be sure and let me know the next time you come to Washington and I shall arrange it.

My best to you,

Affectionately,

Lt. Louis Burwell,

GRACE

THE PRESIDENT SAID TO FILE -

BUT SHOULDN'T IT GO TO LOUIS RUPPEL

WHO SENT IT TO YOU.

Your Excellency:

This is a letter written by a man in a quandary. As a Catholic, with two sons, ages 17 and 9, now resident in the Parish of our Lady Queen of Martyrs, there have come to my attention a few occurrences that leave me disturbed and uneasy.

In all likelihood I should not be intruding on your time, but I learned long ago when one is disturbed by questions he cannot answer himself, he should seek advice and guidance from the foremost leaders. It is further possible that I might have a complete understanding of this amendment within the story had I not been living in Washington and Chicago for six years prior to my return here in 1939.

Until last Fall I had some consciousness of the trend among some elements of the Catholic Church to finance, endorse and disseminate the anti-Semitic and anti-democratic attitudes and writings of Father Coughlin. Since a day last Fall, however, I have become progressively more alarmed for my children, my country and my church. I have a feeling that these undemocratic activities have become more intense.

It is possible that I was less observant before that day last Fall when Congressmen Perry and Laurence Ingersoll (since convicted as a paid Nazi agent) were announced as speakers at an America-First rally in our Parish auditorium. I confess I, failed in my duty in not attending the meeting and making protest, especially since cards were handed out like vaudeville and Illusion Portrait cards left each face. Moreover, I had been to such meetings, conducted on a larger scale, at Edison andGaana Garden and found it difficult to restrain myself at the sight of Americans writing on large billboards in the concert Nazi fashion.

In all is in prison: R any will be called to the attention of the voters of Queens.

But that is our future unless within the Church there are those to come forward an challenge Father Coughlin, Father Mowry, Smith, move all, Father Charles N. Connor? Let us not seek to use Father Connor wrote, "Now there must be some reason in the fact that every nation in the world except themselves has punished the Jews. They cannot all be wrong." You will understand how I shudder at the endorsement of the Nazi causes and murders of Jewish men, women and children, not only in Germany but in Poland, Czechoslovakia and in France, where now realize that Father Coughlin is a thorn in their side on 30th Avenue, in the heart of a Jewish district.
It would be simple enough to ask Father Connor if he believes "there must be some reason" why Hitler is persecuting the Catholics in Germany and in Poland and the Lutherners in Norway, that would differ from the reason for persecuting the Jews. It is wise to say to oneself that Father Connor is not really sure of the kindly and equitable temper of his own Church, but I wonder if then it should not be given to the ill will brought down upon the heads of the less ill-tempered Catholic laity by such irrational outbursts.

It is also disturbing to be told by a newsdealer that he did not carry Bibles because he had been so instructed by his priest. I venture to suggest any Catholic who so ordered were he to be told, dealers were not selling. Canonical jurisprudence to incursions of the Jewish clergy.

The seeds of hate being sown by these few clerics among the few followers of Father Squire. In ten to pull apart the fabric of our constitution, which for more than 100 years we have been striving to build, to detect, especially as it affects religious minorities.

Paralyzed in New York, confined in Brooklyn by the "American Catholic" editor, citizens are exploring options that are usually Catholic laymen assert, "the Jews." It is never, in recent years, it is always a first or second. Poland's a constant factor in the articulation that such an outburst is out to do at every time. Sin is out of the order in every sense, consciously and in the unconsciously, but could be a useful small point. However, if one is to be in full on the head of "Hitler's" for every reason, then 2 out of 3 of those who make such statements seem to agree. Locally announced it as for "Hitler's" a general small faster "association in Germans!"

And this interaction between, in the end of 1945, I can't be too vivid in this year 1946, or else roll in reality, roll line. Never have I ever thought of it. I am not even sure that I ever even create; the more our "return" claims, our racial "return" claims are the most serious that I have never heard - it is the realization of the race. They did not reflect a studied, planned, vicious effort to educate one other to envy an inters race "white guilt" for another.

Over the years I have seen in Queens in the middle of the "Red" and "Black" men and women. Our people were so incensed and outraged that the Holy Name Society or in the same line of march, practically to a man, to demonstrate the virility of Catholicism, wrote the name of bigotry.
I have seen governors and mayors, statesmen the like of which many other states could envy, come to leaders in and away from them. This wonder could a state shop so that it elected Al Smith, Irish Catholic; Franklin Roosevelt, Dutch, like Mr. Lehman, etc., over a period of years, the 30 years, to establish a no oneAnti-liberal.
Grace:

Talk to me about this a little later. If he cannot get foreign duty we can try to put him in the courier service.

F.D.R.
Whipped over to Cape Cod Saturday night and found Missy on the blue side but by Sunday she was in good spirits. Missy has a nice spot and looks well and I'd say is making progress, though not fast enough to suit her. The change will do her good in general health, at least, and I've urged that she make an effort to come see the family in New York and take in a show or two quietly in the Fall. Anyhow, I'm sure I gave her a few laughs.

As you probably saw in my letter to the President I wind up this miserable school Aug 28 and from here to where I know not. One more school and I'll go over the hill! This place is all books and no guns and how can you kill a guy with a book?

Seriously, I have heard 'Scuttlebutt' that a few Marine officers are acting as couriers for the President on the world-wide fronts. If that is so why wouldn't this rifle sharpshooter and pistol marksman, who once brought home the news in fair style, be eligible? Gee, I ain't been nowhere in years and there is so much going on.

Put in a word for a 185-lb Marine who is beginning to fear assignment to the home front or days-without-end-in-school!

And try to be home month's end when I head back to Quantico for the "Word".

Love and kisses

Louis

Dear Ethel:-

I am glad you wrote as you did. It is a curious coincidence that I spoke to Cordell Hull about the matter about two weeks ago and because I have heard nothing since then I will take it up again immediately. When you get a chance give the lady my love. She will, of course, never know.

I was sorry not to see you at Staatsburg but I hope to very soon.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE SECRETARY OF STATE

I think I spoke to Sumner a few weeks ago about a job for Daisy Harriman. I happen to know that she really does need it and I am sure you can find something in the State Department. Will you let me know?

F. D. R.
Dear Miss Tulley:

I was so very disappointed not to have been at home on Monday when the President said he would come to tea. The New Opera Company, which I have been working for very hard for a number of weeks, opened on Tuesday evening and I just had to be here the day before. Shall hope for better luck the next time you are at Hyde Park.

My friend, Ethel Harriman Russell, wanted very much to talk to the President about her Mother.

Several months ago he told me that he would see her if she came to Washington. So, as she missed seeing him this week-end, I suggested that she write him, and I am sending you her letter with this one, as I know that you will give it to him at an opportune moment.

I am always so appreciative of your helpfulness when called upon. You must be harassed by thousands!

Always most sincerely,

Helen H. Hull

November 2nd, 1942.

Dear Mr President,

I was terribly disappointed not to see you today. I had meant to stay with Helen at Staatsburg through Tuesday, in the hope that I might get the chance of a word with you. But suddenly, Helen was called to New York on important New Opera Co. business and our plan fell through.

So now, very hesitantly, I am writing you what has been on my mind for some time.

It is not only an imposition, but highly unpatriotic, for me to take a moment more than necessary of your time. So, if you will forgive me, I will come directly to the point. I don't want to launch a battle ship (although I should rather enjoy it!) I don't want anything for myself. I simply want to speak of my Mother— to bring her for a moment to your mind. So that if, perchance, you felt inclined, you could "make a note of it", in the hope that there may be a job, as yet unfulfilled, that she could handle.

Since her return from Norway, her energies have been consistently scattered and sapped; American Friends of Norway, Russian Relief, Free World - a hundred and one different organisations and with it all, she has had to take on a strenuous country-wide lecture tour, because of the pressure of financial necessity.

Her vitality seems endless and both her body and mind, as "young" as ever; but actually, a woman of less years would have a hard time keeping up under the present pressure, harassed as she is, by insufficient funds to supply the wherewithal to meet the demands of her life.

One job, instead of twenty minor activities. A job for you - and for the Administration she admires so wholeheartedly, would be a godsend.
You gave her complete joy when you sent her to Norway. She can never have that - quite - again. But something, perhaps?

I hope you will forgive me and understand. Mother would not. So she must never know, please.

As always, and more than ever these days, in deepest admiration,
