Dear Grace:

The attached is important— at least to me—and I will be obliged if you, with your characteristic kindness, will see that the Good President reads it.

Yours faithfully,

Dear Grace:

Wait you please

the attached reaches the President. You have been so kind, I hesitate to impose on you further, but we are tried, I guess and so I take a lot for granted. Best wishes,

Dr. Yen's address in New York is: Chinese National Association of the Mass Education Movement, 1790 Broadway,
New York 19, New York.

Yours faithfully,

M. O. Yang,

Dear Grace:

While you are in the presence of the Court, I ought to issue a writ or put a summons on you of some kind so as to keep you here. It is hard to see you. With best feelings, might have a suggestion as to how it might be arranged.

Yours faithfully,

Since I know you are a friend of Dr. Yen, I might have a suggestion as to how it might be arranged.

My dear Grace:

You will remember me talking the other night at dinner about Dr. James Yen and the interesting and important work which he is about to launch in China on Mass Education.

A week or so ago Dr. Yen had the privilege of meeting Bishop Sheil of Chicago. I have hoped that some time he might have the opportunity to meet the Archbishop of New York, The Most Reverend Francis Joseph Spellman. It takes an hour or two for Dr. Yen to describe his important project. He and the Archbishop have so much in common that I hope they can get to know each other. If I knew the Archbishop I would write him direct. Since I know you are a friend and admirer of his, I thought you might have a suggestion as to how it might be arranged.

Yours faithfully,

My dear Broe-,

It was good to get your note.
And I thank you for your kindness in writing the Archbishop about Dr. Jen. They have

Dear Mr. Douglas,

I am not the first to have lived to see this great day. And I think I believe he would have agreed to accept the Emperor.

I hope you are well. June certainly have a good vacation coming to June. Always,

Dear Grace:

It was grand to see you the other night at the Rowes'. And I was delighted when I picked up the paper the other day to see that magnificent picture of you and the fine account in the Post by Marle Smith. It did my heart good.

Yours faithfully,
