Robert Sherwood while working on speeches.

This lovely face
was drawn for no
good reason on the evening of March 13, 1941,
and is Brinette repeated
to my feet, Grace

We should build fewer of women tombs, with more powerful armament.
We should build fewer and smaller tombs, with more powerful armament.
we should build fewer & simpler
tombs, with more launport apparatus
We should build fewer & larger Tambos, with more powerful armament.
We should build fewer & braver turrets, with more powerful armament.
We should build fewer & fewer Tanks, with more powerful ammunition.
We should build fewer of human tombs, with more peaceful armament.
we should build fewer & smaller tanks, with more powerful armament
Grace—

Sam gave me these two drafts to read. I don't like to have the responsibility of safeguarding them, so I'm leaving them
with you.

We should build fewer of Warre's tanks with more accurate ammunition.
can never be arrived while Hitler and his Allies still march in conquest across the face of this earth. Therefore, we are dedicated to the proposition that Hitlerism shall be defeated.
The ostrich is not the only symbol of isolationism.

There is another one — the dog in the manger.

It is the dog in the manger policy which is advocated by those who favor economic isolationism — who oppose reciprocal trade — who desire to can sell to other nations without buying from them.

If America again follows the dog in the manger policy, I promise you that America will again be heading for war.
We should build fewer & weaker tanks, with more powerful armament.

Machine is now at 6.
We should build fences to warn tanks, with more promptannanent.
We should build fewer & larger tanks, with more powerful armament.
Furthermore, our models have been... improved materially in size and in striking power.
