THE NEW SCHOOL

66 W 12th ST NEW YORK 11
ALGONQUIN 4-2567

April 19, 1944

Dear Mr. Weinstein:

I am glad to enclose the list of our refugee scholars who were, or still are, connected with the New School. Those on the list for whom I have additional biographical material in my files bear a mark (X) before their names. However, it would take quite some time to go over the entire material in order to forward you the essential data.

May I therefore suggest that you first look through the whole list, and tell me exactly which specific questions, in addition to those answered on the list, you would like to have answered. This would make our work here more efficient.

Sincerely yours,

E. Staudinger
Else Staudinger

Mr. I. M. Weinstein
Special Assistant to the Executive Director
Executive Office of the President
War Refugee Board

Enclosure.

Dear Mrs. Stottinger:

We are interested in obtaining information about the achievements of the European scientists, scholars, artists and technologists who have come to this country since Hitler's rise to power. We believe that such information, particularly the contributions made by scientists and technologists to the American war effort, would be helpful to us in our work.

We understand that you have a list containing the names of all such accomplished persons referred to above. We would very much appreciate it if you forwarded their names, addresses and present connections, together with such biographical material as you may have.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. Pehle:

Thank you for your note acknowledging our invitation to sponsor the Twenty-fifth Anniversary Dinner of the New School.

May I point out that it is not necessary to be present at the dinner in order to serve as a sponsor. As I indicated in my letter of invitation, sponsorship implies no obligation beyond your expression of appreciation to the founders and your interest in the work of the New School.

It has been deeply satisfying to see how many friends of the New School have followed its significant career during these formative years. The many hundreds of fine letters which I have received are a great tribute to the founders in whose honor the dinner is being held.

If, with this further explanation you wish us to include your name in our sponsor group, will you please let me know.

Sincerely,

Leon Fraser

Dear Mr. Pehle:

The New School has been very much concerned with the problems created by the displacement of individuals and whole ethnic or religious groups as a result of tyranny in Europe. Therefore, it welcomed the suggestion of the Hias-Ica Emigration Association, Inc. to sponsor a training course for social workers in the field of migration, with particular reference to displaced Jewish populations in Europe.

This course has been conducted most successfully since the end of February. It has attracted the attention of social agencies, universities and institutions interested in the problem.

At its opening session Mr. Earl G. Harrison, Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, and Mr. Pierre Waelbroek, Assistant Director of the International Labor Organization, were among the guest speakers.

The closing session will take place in our auditorium on Wednesday, May 31st, 1944, at 8:30 P.M. The main topic will be "Future Trends in Migration Policies." The first undersigned will be in the chair.

We all are anxious to have you as one of the guest speakers. Nothing can be more important and more interesting for our student body and for the audience gathered at this occasion than an authoritative statement on the task, the present work and the plans of the War Relief Board. It is our sincere hope that you will be able to make such a statement in the form of an address of about twenty minutes during the session.

Other guest speakers will be Mr. Harry Greenstein, head of the Welfare Division, UNRRA, who will speak on "The Place of Private Organizations in the Relief and Rehabilitation Program of the UNRRA," and Mr. Paul Van Zeeland, president of the Coordinating Foundation whose address will deal with "The Regulation of Migration After the War and the Need for a Central Intergovernmental Agency."

We feel that this course has made a significant contribution to the training of social workers in the field of migration as well as to the clarification of some of the problems implied. We, therefore, think you will find it worth your while to favor the course with a statement of the War Refugee Board which under your direction is destined to solve practically some of the questions with which the whole series has been concerned. Though we know the heavy demands made on your time we feel that our call deserves your favorable attention.

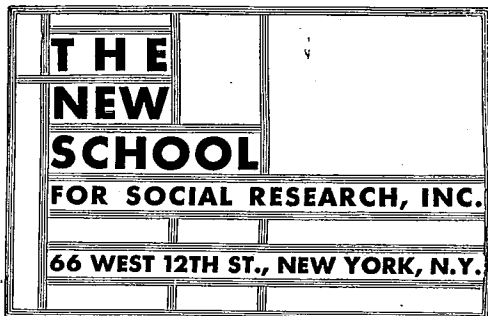

Some material which will show you the character of the course is included.

MAGINOT LINE and CONSTITUTION

By ALVIN JOHNSON

The Constitution is the Maginot Line of American democracy. Just as the French, though aware of the Germans arming furiously, felt at ease, believing that no one could breach the Maginot Line, so we American democrats, though aware of the pullulating groups of democrats in our midst and the anti-democratic national forces seeking to penetrate us, feel secure and our Constitution.

The Maginot Line and Constitution are indeed magnificent landmarks. They represent a heavy handicap upon the attacker, particularly the attacker who has legal and moral scruples. But those who are fighting democracy are not at all weakened by legal or moral scruples. They go around the end of the line without the slightest regard for international law or the laws of God and man. They may recall the famous remark of an American politician: "What is the Constitution between friends?"

The Maginot Line would have been a great asset, if it had been a live, mobile, well equipped, vigilant defense. The Constitution is the most magnificent asset in the possession of democratic freedom, provided that we the people are prepared for a live, mobile, vigilant and adequately equipped defense.

Enough, and perhaps too much, of metaphor. We are not fools if we dream that even the best Constitution in the world can protect our liberties while we occupy ourselves with golf, the movies and pinocle. Argentina is as good a constitution as ours. Look at Argentina. The vast majority of the population have been reduced to economic peonage and political nullity. A fertile nest of political schemers call themselves the government, and are now seeking a formula by which they may enjoy the benefits of Nazi and Fascist favor. They still have a chance to come in under the benefits of the world. At such a time as this, while the world is on fire and free men are fighting desperately to retain in the world the hard-won gains of three centuries of liberal democratic effort.

We are still a liberal democracy. The Constitution still stands firm, and under it we breathe the breath of freedom. But we take our freedom for granted. We have forgotten that democratic freedom is a late invention of mankind. Three hundred years ago there was no man here in the world who felt securely free. There was no man who could be sure that he might not die under torture like those our soldiers perished under after Bataan.

The Renaissance and the Enlightenment gave us the security and security we enjoy. Do the Renaissance and the Enlightenment bore us? Then our Constitution is destined to be like the Maginot Line, as an impressive relic of a bygone age gone by.

Published weekly from October through May and monthly in September by the NEW SCHOOL FOR SOCIAL RESEARCH at 66 West 12th Street, New York 11, N. Y. Entered as second class matter November 12, 1943, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the Act of August 24, 1912.

Training Course on Migration Problems

Training Course on Theory of Migration and Methods of Emigrant Aid Work Offered by HIAS-ICA Under the Auspices of the New School for Social Research

Practical questions of post-war activities, both at home and overseas, are at present the order of the day in all fields of social, economic and political reconstruction. In the wide field of the "three R's" in Europe—Relief, Rehabilitation and Reconstruction—various recent initiatives have shown the importance and the urgent necessity of training future overseas administrators and social workers—to begin with in Europe—and giving them the information which they will require in the successful carrying out of the manifold tasks awaiting them abroad.

The various educational post-graduate programs in the process of realization have roused a good deal of interest, especially among present and prospective social workers. The program of civilian training for International Administration inaugurated by Columbia University, the special courses offered by the New School for Social Research on Public Administration in Europe and the course of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee in the special field of relief and rehabilitation show how important it is to prepare social workers of all categories for their new post-war tasks overseas. Within the all-embracing scope of post-war relief and reconstruction—especially in Europe, and with particular reference to the desperate situation of Jews in Nazi-occupied countries—migration will doubtless be one of the most important factors in the resettlement and reconstruction of displaced Jewish populations. Yet this aspect of relief and rehabilitation has not so far had the attention it rightly deserves, and has barely been touched upon in the various training programs hitherto elaborated.

The Jewish organizations specializing in all aspects of migration—Hias and the Jewish Colonization Association (ICA) for over a half century, and Hicem (HIAS-ICA Emigration Association) for the last two decades—have now taken steps to fill this gap. Under the auspices of the New School for Social Research they are organizing a special three-month course on the theory of migration and the methods for emigrant aid work.

This course will help to train in the specific field of migrations those social workers who are already equipped, or are in the progress of being equipped for overseas—and particularly European activities. It will begin about the middle of February and will be subdivided into four main sets of subjects.

First, a series of four lectures will give a general review of the origin and character of modern migrations; the international, historical, demographic and economic aspects of migrations will be explained and the theory of migratory movements will be expounded.

This will be followed by a series of fourteen sessions surveying the laws and regulations dealing with migrations in various countries. The lectures will deal with legislation both in countries of immigration (U.S.A., South and Central America, Palestine, etc.) and in those of emigration (Germany, Poland, Rumania), as well as in transit countries and countries of refuge (France, England, Portugal, Spain, etc.).

The third section of the course will deal, during ten further sessions, with the specific problems of Jewish migrations. The causes and effects of Jewish migration and the various phases of Jewish colonization will be discussed. The procedure and technique in countries of emigration and of immigration will be gone into and the modus operandi from the moment a prospective emigrant applies for emigration until his arrival and settlement in the new country will be explained.

A fourth section, lasting nine sessions, will give extended information about the various government agencies and private organizations which in one way or another deal with migration work. These lectures will be given by authoritative representatives of each of these bodies.

Before the actual beginning of the Training Course, the students will be addressed at an opening session by prominent authorities in the field of migrations, while another special session held at the close of the Training Course will give the general lines of the post-war programs of Hias, ICA and Hicem.

Mr. John W. Pehle
Treasury Department
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Pehle:

In 1919, a group of men and women had the courage and foresight to insist that the right to a liberal education was the first premise of a liberal democracy. They conceived the idea of a school where serious-minded mature students would be free at all times to evaluate the truth for its own sake.

They were the founders of the New School:
George W. Bacon, Charles A. Beard, Mrs. Henry Bruere, Charles C. Burlingham, John Dewey, Mrs. Leonard K. Elmhirst, Felix Frankfurter, Mrs. Learned Hand, Alvin Johnson, Mrs. Thomas W. Lamont, Mrs. Henry Goddard Leach, Mrs. Walton Martin, Wesley C. Mitchell and Mrs. George Haven Putnam.

This year marks the Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of the New School. And it presents us with the opportunity to pay tribute to the School's Founders, in recognition of their great service to American liberal education.

This tribute will be paid at a dinner to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York on Monday evening, May 22, 1944.

As Chairman of the Twenty-Fifth Anniversary Committee, I invite you to join me as a Sponsor of this dinner. Your service on the Sponsors' Committee will involve no obligation other than your expression of appreciation to the Founders of the New School.

Will you please write me at the New School,
66 West 12th Street, at your first opportunity? I hope you will accept.

Sincerely,

Leon Fraser
