Mr. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, a candidate for admission to the bar, I have known well for a number of years, and I take great pleasure in0uding for his fitness in every respect.

He graduated from Harvard College in 1904 and takes his law degree from the Columbia Law School this spring, after which he expects to commence practice in this city. He has always been popular among his associates, and is a man of intelligence and of strict integrity and a gentleman of much charm. Very Respectfully, Lempdorflar Marvin.
