FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, JR
August 17, 1914 - August 17, 1988

Fifth-born child of Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt. Franklin, Jr., was born at Campobello Island, the Roosevelt's summer home. Following family custom, he graduated from Groton and Harvard (A.B. 1937), where he distinguished himself both in scholarship and athletics. He earned an LL.B. from the University of Virginia in 1940.

Franklin, Jr., formed close relationships with both of his parents; within the family he was known as "Brother" or "Brud." He chose to study law after FDR's suggestion that a few years' practice in a law firm would be good preparation for politics, and he was the first son to hold elected political office. Following his graduation from the University of Virginia, he worked on FDR's reelection campaign throughout the summer and fall of 1940, coordinating youth activities of the Democratic National Committee as well as those of various Roosevelt college clubs.

He also entered law practice in New York in 1940, but his stay was short; in March 1941 he accepted active duty with the U.S. Navy. Before he was discharged in October 1945, he rose to the rank of lieutenant commander and earned several awards, including the Purple Heart and a Silver Star. After the war, he returned to law practice in New York, joining the firm of Poletti, Diamond, Rabin, Freidin, and Mackay in November 1945; one year later he became a partner in the firm.

He also embarked on his political career after the war, serving as chairman of housing activities for the American Veterans Committee (1945-47); as national vice-chairman of Americans for Democratic Action (1947), a nonpartisan organization of noncommunist liberals; and as vice-chairman of the President's Civil Rights Commission (1949) under Truman. In 1949 he was elected to represent New York's Twentieth Congressional District in the House, and he served as a member of the Eighty-first through the Eighty-third Congresses. He later served as under secretary of commerce during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations (1962-65) and as chairman of the Equal Opportunity Commission under Lyndon Johnson (1965-66). His political philosophy echoed that of his parents, and throughout his political career he championed such causes as public housing, fair employment practices, and civil rights.

He married Ethel du Pont in 1937; the couple had two children: Franklin Delano 111, born in 1939, and Christopher du Pont, born in 1940. Following their divorce in 1949, he married Suzanne Paren. in the same year; two daughters, Nancy Suzanne and Laura D., were born in 1952 and 1959, respectively. The second marriage also ended in divorce, and in 1970, he married Felicia Warburg Sarnoff. The marriage ended in divorce, and in 1976 he married Patricia Oakes. One child, John Alexander, was born of that union in 1977. In 1983, after that marriage ended in divorce, he married Linda Weicker.
