Dear Grace:

We just heard about your illness and were so distressed. Please know that you are in our thoughts and prayers every moment and I just wish I could drop in and talk and talk!

Lyndon and I have been busy, but it is a luxurious relief to have the freedom to do things when we want to and not on that rigid timetable of the past so-many years. We're doing exactly the same thing you did for President Roosevelt-- sorting out some thirty years' accumulation of papers, books, and files. All of them bring back so many warm and wonderful memories of times past and you, Grace, are right at the heart of so many of them. Weren't they exciting years and didn't we have fun?

Luci is expecting her second child at the end of the year, and Lynda is busy getting settled into a new house in Arlington, Virginia. It is the first real home that she and Chuck have had and she did not realize all the work that it would entail-- she does now, poor dear! It is very satisfying to both Lyndon and me to see our girls so happily married.

Grace, we are thinking of you with love and affection,

Much, much love,

Lady Bird

Dear Grace:

I am in the midst of packing and doing last minute errands before leaving Monday for a two week vacation with Lynda Bird--but I didn't want to go without dropping you another note.

You know, everytime I pass my coffee table in the living room, I see the pewter cigarette holder that you gave me from Mrs. Roosevelt's shop. I often mention it when I am telling visitors the story of our Ranch house and all the prized possessions we have accumulated over the years--each has such special meaning to us.

Grace, please know that all the Johnsons are thinking of you and praying for your recovery.

Affectionately,

Dear Grace:

One of the greatest thrills on my birthday was receiving a telegram from you for it showed that your illness had in no way lessened your thoughtfulness and kindness.

It is wonderful news to all of us that your operations are over and you are recuperating nicely. Be a good girl and follow doctor's orders and I know you will soon be well.

Lady Bird, Lynda, and Luci all join me in sending our affectionate best wishes.

Well, it was quite a day! But as we sat there and looked at that wonderful sea of faces who have been part of the Johnson life, we missed seeing you. So much of what you have done through the years has made this whole day come true.

Thank you and I hope that you will enjoy the program and visualize some of the ceremony and nostalgia that went with it.

Dear Grace:

Looking into the future for history's sake sometimes means looking into the past. But I need no prodding to stir thoughts of you and our many shared memories!

I do hope you are well and that you will want to review the transcript of the oral history interview that you did for the Library back in 1968. It would be such a loss not to have your own unique view of the world and your recollections kept intact here forever.

Fondly,

Lady Bird

Dear Grace,

Please forgive another gentle nudge about your oral history interview. I speak on the subject out of a long silence only because I think of you often, appreciate the interest you have shown in the Library and know so well that your recollections belong in our collections.

You were not satisfied, I well recall, with your remarks as recorded. But I am hoping you will be kind enough to read through the transcript another time, knowing that you are free to make any and all revisions, additions or restrictions that you feel are necessary. The tape recording could be handled accordingly. I don't want to push, but the Library now has a new legal agreement on the use of oral history transcripts and tapes and, if you are interested in seeing a sample copy outlining all the options that are open to you, I would be glad to have one sent.

Of course, if you still do not want to return this transcript even with revisions, please think seriously of recording another interview on your own, as you once suggested, or with our help. We would be happy to help in any way, and I would love to hear from you.

Fondly,

Lady Bird

Dear Grace,

Bless you for returning your oral history transcript and signed legal agreement! You've enriched the Library collections and pleased me very much in the process.

Your role during the years that Lyndon's public service spanned was a very special one indeed, so you have filled a gap in the Library's research sources with insights from your own unique vantage point.

Thank you, thank you, for this gift and for your friendship through so many, many years.

Dear Grace,

Over the holidays as we sat and reminisced around the fireside, old friends were much in our thoughts. Mine went gratefully to you. Although travels to Mexico and to the Galapagos Islands (of all places!) prevented me from telling you so earlier, I did want you to know that the memories of your friendship and kindness made Christmas happier.

Everytime I think about our years in Washington, I recall how many of them were blessed by your caring heart. I'm so deeply appreciative.

May the year ahead bring you every joy and serenity.

Dear Grace,

You have been so lovingly in my thoughts these past days, and I hope that you are comfortable and feeling stronger.

This is my first day back in the office after a wonderful respite with friends on a small island in the Bahamas. We walked the sandy beaches, searched for shells, lazed and watched glorious sunsets. I feel refreshed and ready to begin again!

Luci left last week to be with her husband in the Cayman Islands -- after commuting so often since her wedding in March, waiting for the end of the school year, I know she is happy to keep her feet on solid ground for a time. Later this Summer, she and Ian are taking a house in Scotland. Lynda, her two oldest daughters, Cindy and Cathy, and I plan to join them in August. Afterwards, we will go to London for a few days. Then we're off on a cruise together from Vancouver to Alaska!

Meanwhile, I look forward to celebrating my grandson, Lyn's seventeenth birthday in a few days. He is taking flying lessons of all things, and often on the weekends flies out with his instructor to see me!

Please know I'm keeping up with you through friends and keeping you close in my prayers -- and always in my affection.
